International Journal of the Legal Profession

EDITOR

Professor Avrom Sherr, *Institute of Advanced Legal Studies,
University of London, UK*

Supported by an International Editorial Board

International Journal of the Legal Profession is an academic journal addressing the organisation, structure, management and infrastructure of the legal professions of the common law and civil law world. It encompasses studies of the work, work practices, skills and ethics of the legal profession as well as the internal management of law firms and chambers. It also considers the methods and extent of provision of legal studies. Major changes are occurring in the legal professions of America, Europe and Australasia. The profession has become much more open for study and accountability to the public and to government. Academic interest has grown during the past fifteen years and study of the legal profession is now well respected and represented within law departments.

International Journal of the Legal Profession considers these issues at an academic level, but also provides strategic solutions emanating from its literature. It is therefore of interest to theorists within law firms as well as academics.

International Review of Applied Economics

MANAGING EDITOR

Malcolm Sawyer, University of Leeds, UK

ASSOCIATE MANAGING EDITOR

Saziye Gazioglu, University of Aberdeen, UK

Supported by an International Editorial Board

The International Review of Applied Economics is devoted to the practical applications of economic ideas. Applied economics is widely interpreted to embrace empirical work and the application of economics to the evaluation and development of economic policies. The interaction between empirical work and economic policy is an important feature of the journal.

The journal is international in scope. Articles that draw lessons from the experience of one country for the benefit of others, or that seek to make cross-country comparisons are particularly welcomed. Contributions which discuss policy issues from theoretical positions neglected in other journals are also encouraged. Although the International Review of Applied Economics associates itself broadly with the non-neo-classical tradition, it does not identify itself with any specific theoretical or political position.

International Review of Law, Computers & Technology

EDITOR
Dr Kenneth Russell

ASSOCIATE EDITORS

Euan Cameron, De Montfort University, UK; Andrew Charlesworth,
University of Hull, UK; Richard P. Jones, Liverpool John Moores University,
UK; Professor David P.T. Price, De Montfort University, UK

Supported by an International Editorial Board

International Review of Law, Computers & Technology is an international review devoted to the study of both the principles and practices bearing on the interaction of computers, other new technologies, and the law. The rapid advances made by technology are radically changing the face of our society. New media now exist in areas such as the creation and the distribution of information and entertainment. They must still be governed by law but which laws are relevant, and which new laws need to be established?

International Review of Law, Computers & Technology is now published three times a year, and features articles from a wide variety of disciplines and perspectives.

International Journal of the Economics of Business

EDITORS

Eleanor Morgan, University of Bath, UK
Mick Silver, University of Wales, UK

NORTHAMERICAN EDITOR

H.E. Frech III, University of California, USA

International Journal of the Economics of Business presents original research in economics that is clearly applicable to business and related public policy problems or issues. The term 'business' is used in its widest sense to encompass both public and private sector, governmental, private non-profit and cooperative organisations, as well as profit-seeking ventures. Services and distribution are included along with manufacturing and extractive industries. Coverage also includes the former Eastern Bloc and less developed countries, as well as industrialised countries.

The International Journal of the Economics of Business carries papers relating to three main spheres: the organisation - to analyse and aid decision-making and the internal organisation of the business; the industry - to analyse how businesses interact and evolve within and across industries; and the external environment - to show how public policy, technological developments and other outside forces affect business behaviour.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. Addresses for editorial correspondence are given on the inside front cover of this issue.
2. A complete style guide is available from the editor, or by accessing the Journal's web site at www.ch.net/HisEcSoc/
3. The final version should be in Word or WordPerfect for Windows, or in ASCII text readable in one of these formats. Please send a 3.5" disk and one hard copy.
4. All copy must be double-spaced, including indented quotations, footnotes, and references. The right margin should be ragged, and authors should use a 12pt. font.
5. The layout of papers, including title, section (sub-) headings, notes, and references should conform to the style evidenced in the Journal.
6. Citations in the text must be in round parentheses. The page numbers should be preceded by p., or pp. if multiple pages are cited. E.g., (Peart 1996, pp. 167–68).
7. Footnote numbers should be indicated by superscripts in the text. All footnotes should be collected together and placed, double-spaced and beginning with a new page, at the end of the paper.
8. Symbolic letters are italicized, whether in an equation or in the text. Numbers in equations and in symbolic terms in the text are not italicized, even if they are subscripts or superscripts.
9. Use an italic font, rather than underlines, for titles, emphases, etc. unless you do not have an italic font.
10. The first time that a person's name is used in the text, his or her first name and middle initial should also be given, no matter how well known the individual may be.
11. The references should appear immediately after the text of the paper, and in the following format:
