Kuan-yin

The Chinese Transformation of Avalokiteśvara

Chün-fang Yü

“Without a doubt, Yü’s Kuan-yin will surely become the starting point for all future research on this extraordinarily popular Buddhist figure. Yü leaves no stone unturned in her quest to describe Kuan-yin in all her complex glory. The book is sui generis for Buddhist Studies.”—

Sources of Chinese Tradition, Second Edition, Volume 2

From 1600 Through the Twentieth Century

Edited by Wm. Theodore de Bary and Richard Lufrano

“If I were asked to recommend only one book for anyone who wishes to know something about Chinese culture, I would name, without a moment of hesitation, this new edition of Sources of Chinese Tradition.” —Ying-shih Yü, Princeton University

656 pages • 1 map • $24.50 paper

Chikamatsu

Five Late Plays

C. Andrew Gerstle

Gerstle has translated five plays that reveal new dimensions to the work of this great Japanese artist, resulting in a set of plays that are better viewed as expressions of Chikamatsu’s views of contemporary Japan than as “histories.”

376 pages • $39.50 cloth

The Mandate of Heaven

Hidden History in the I Ching

S. J. Marshall

Marshall’s historical readings show how the earliest layer of the I Ching has preserved a hidden history that has remained undetected for three millennia.

Outstanding New Scholarship

Women, Property, and Confucian Reaction in Sung and Yüan China (960-1368)

Bettine Birge

This book argues that the Mongol invasion of China in the thirteenth century precipitated a lasting transformation of marriage and property laws that deprived women of their property rights and reduced their legal and economic autonomy.

Timber Booms and Institutional Breakdown Southeast Asia

Michael L. Ross

Michael L. Ross explores the breakdown of the institutions that govern natural resource exports in developing states. Using case studies of timber booms in Indonesia, Malaysia, and the Philippines, he shows that these institutions often break down when states receive positive trade shocks—unanticipated windfalls.

Mao's War Against Nature

Politics and the Environment in Revolutionary China

Judith Shapiro

"Dr. Shapiro's well-researched book records the disastrous degradation of China's natural environment during the era of Mao Zedong. The traditional teaching that men must live in harmony with nature was declared backward and counter-revolutionary. Scholars and experts who opposed his policy were persecuted. As a result, damage to China's environment will take generations to recover. This book provides a timely warning, and an encouragement to the enlightened few who have realized the seriousness of the situation."

Caste, Society and Politics in India from the Eighteenth Century to the Modern Age

Susan Bayly

This volume explores the emergence of ideas and practices that gave rise to the so-called "caste-society." The analysis is framed in the context of India's economic and social order, interpreting caste as a contingent and variable response to changes in India's political landscape through the colonial conquest.

Commodifying Communism

Business, Trust, and Politics in a Chinese City

David L. Wank

"Professor Wank demystifies China's marketization by showing how new entrepreneurs are frequently former government officials who are using their old ties to reorganize production. As a result, Chinese capitalism is forging its own path: clientistic and focused on local government-firm cooperation. This is a major contribution to the field of Chinese studies and economic sociology."

Chinese Impressions of the West (c. 1840–1916) Nos. 53 & 54 (Spring & Autumn 2000)

The fiasco of the two Opium Wars (1840–42 and 1856–60) forced China to reckon with the implications of Western technological and military might. In the second half of the 19th century, how best to preserve China's nationhood became the general concern of the educated class as well as government officials. It was in this context that they started exploring the various aspects of Western civilization.

This special issue presents the experience and observations of those who had journeyed to the West, as well as the impressions and opinions of those who had never been outside of China. Included are excerpts from petitions, diaries and travelogues written by government officials, diplomats, dissidents, scholars and students, as well as the depiction of westerners in popular journals and magazines.

DEPARTMENT OF JAPANESE STUDIES Faculty Appointments

The National University of Singapore (NUS) invites applications for full-time tenure-track faculty positions in the Department of Japanese Studies.

Established in 1981, the Department is one of the largest Japanese Studies departments in the Asia-Pacific region, providing a multi-disciplinary approach to the study of Japan, including such areas as language and linguistics, society and culture, business and economics, politics and international relations, history and literature, and art and aesthetics. With a current strength of 28 full-time staff, 20 part-time language instructors and over 1,000 students, the Department emphasises excellence in research and teaching.

The Department's main research focus is on "Japan and Asia", especially Japanese-Chinese studies and Japanese-Southeast Asian studies. Funding for research is available and many staff have published in major international journals and academic presses. The University and Department also have good Japanese resource collections totalling more than 26,000 Japanese books, 175 periodicals and numerous audio-visual materials.

We are looking for outstanding faculty members who possess a relevant PhD degree and have teaching/research interests in the following areas:

- (1) Japanese sociology or anthropology
- (2) Japanese business or economics
- (3) Japanese geography, or science and technology

All faculty members are expected to teach undergraduate and graduate courses, supervise graduate students, and conduct rigorous research programmes that generate external funding and scholarship and intellectual output typical of that of a world-class university. Besides appointments on normal 3-year contracts, visiting appointments for one or two years may also be considered.

Interested parties should submit their applications, supported by a resume, detailed research plan and three letters of references immediately to:
