DREAMS IN LATE ANTIQUITY

Studies in the Imagination of a Culture
PATRICIA COX MILLER

Dream interpretation was a prominent feature of the intellectual and imaginative world of late antiquity, for martyrs and magicians, philosophers and theologians, polytheists and monotheists alike. Finding it difficult to account for the prevalence of dream-divination, modern scholarship has often condemned it as a cultural weakness, a mass lapse into mere superstition.

In this book, Patricia Cox Miller draws on pagan, Jewish, and Christian sources and modern semiotic theory to demonstrate the integral importance of dreams in late-antique thought and life. She argues that Graeco-Roman dream literature functioned as a language of signs that formed a personal and cultural pattern of imagination and gave tangible substance to ideas such as time, cosmic history, and the self.

AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CHURCH HISTORY

Membership Information

The American Society of Church History was founded in 1888 by Philip Schaff and a group of colleagues. It is affiliated with the American Historical Association. Its purpose is to foster interest in the history of Christianity, and its interrelationship with its cultural context by encouraging research, writing, and teaching in this discipline.

The membership of the society consists of scholars, men and women, the majority of whom serve on faculties of colleges, universities, and seminaries. Others are archivists, clergy members, professional writers, and students, or simply those who have a serious interest in church history. The society is ecumenical in character, comprising members of various religious persuasions.

In addition to Church History, a journal published quarterly, the society holds an annual meeting in conjunction with the American Historical Association and a spring meeting on the campus of a host institution. The meeting programs and the journal provide opportunities for exploring a wide variety of subjects and the exchange of thought. Membership dues entitle one to receive the journal, with its informative articles and large book review section, and attend the meetings of the society.

In order to interest younger scholars, particularly those of ethnic minorities, in the work of the society, the council has voted to offer a dues-free membership (up to two years) to all graduate students working in the area of church history at an accredited institution upon the approval of a professor who is also a member of the society.

Persons who have been members of the society for at least five years and are now retired from professional life may continue membership at $15.00 per year. Membership in the society includes a subscription to Church History. The council approves applications at its semiannual meetings.
