Valley of Discord

Church and Society along the Connecticut River, 1636–1725

by Paul R. Lucas

Taking issue with those who characterize the Puritan social order in New England as monolithic, and communally oriented, Lucas reveals a society molded by ideas in conflict and torn by social and ecclesiastical disorder. The first comprehensive treatment of religion and society in the Connecticut Valley since 1905, and the first to consider the ideas of both clergy and laity, the book rewrites the early history of American Presbyterianism, showing there is no evidence for a unified blueprint of the religious, social, and political components of a godly commonwealth.

God's Messengers

Religious Leadership in Colonial New England, 1700-1750

J. William T. Youngs, Jr.

Winner of the Brewer Prize awarded by the American Society of Church History

The history of the New England clergy is the story of mortal men entrusted with a divine mission. The author attempts to construct an "inside view" of the ministers' experience, to discover how they perceived and shaped their own reality. Accordingly, their diaries, letters, informal records, and sermons have supplied the most valuable evidence. The picture that emerges is one of men whose lives were sometimes petty and often prosaic but who nonetheless sought to serve as God's messengers to His people on earth. Important in itself, the history of the clergy is even more significant for the patterns of social change it reveals. $10.00

FROM WESLEY TO ASBURY
STUDIES IN EARLY AMERICAN METHODISM

Frank Baker

An informal history of early American Methodism illustrating the importance and persistence of Wesley's thought and methods in America through carefully documented studies of significant themes and individuals. cloth, $9.75

IN HIS IMAGE, BUT . . .
RACISM IN SOUTHERN RELIGION, 1780 — 1910

H. Shelton Smith

"This work is no narrow institutional history, for it relates religion to other social and intellectual currents in the nineteenth century. . . . This abundantly documented product of sound historical scholarship will be a standard reference work for those interested in the social, intellectual, and religious influences of one of the South's most important institutions." Societas

"The best book on the religious base of southern whites' view of blacks." The Christian Century cloth, $9.75

THE LAST CRUSADE
THE CHURCH OF ENGLAND IN THE FIRST WORLD WAR

Albert Marrin

"A welcome addition to the literature on how different churches have responded to particular modern wars. Marrin provides a comprehensive account of the Church of England's problems before the 'Great War' and a good understanding of why the Anglican clergy responded as they did to the war . . . a worthwhile book." Choice cloth, $9.75

WAR AND THE CHRISTIAN CONSCIENCE CAN MODERN WAR BE CONDUCTED JUSTLY?

Paul Ramsey

"A powerful analysis of religious attitudes toward present military policy. . . . The book is most satisfying and is a bright piece of contemporary thought on Christian morality and the State." The Western Political Quarterly paperback, $5.75
