The Use of Experts by International Tribunals

Gillian M. White

"This is the fourth study in the series, published under the general editorship of Richard B. Lillich, on the procedural aspects of international law. The topic which Dr. White has chosen might seem narrow but, in handling it with both fine scholarship and imagination, she has not only produced a most valuable survey of the practice of international tribunals but has illuminated basic issues of the place of fact and the elucidation of fact in any judicial process. . . . "Dr. White surveys the use of experts by international tribunals in four main kinds of case, as being the most common: boundary-disputes; the determination of international responsibility; the variation of damages; and proposals for a new regime, where they are requested of the tribunal adjudicating a dispute. She brings to light, in her detailed and lucid exposition of many different proceedings, much matter of great interest, and she stresses two basic problems throughout: the freedom, or lack of freedom, of the tribunal to obtain expert evidence and opinion; and the principle that the application of expertise by the tribunal must not displace its proper judicial function. . . . "There are two chapters on the mundane necessities of privileges, immunities, fees and expenses for experts assisting international tribunals, but they will be closely studied by those who have the practical handling of these matters in their charge.

"Altogether this is a study of outstanding quality, instructive of international law and of practical help to all those who have to do with the working of international tribunals."—J. E. S. Fawcett, Cambridge Law Journal $8.95

FEDERALISM AND SUPRANATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS

PATTERNS FOR NEW LEGAL STRUCTURES

By Peter Hay. Using the three European Communities as models, these timely essays explore the nature of supranational organizations, the techniques they utilize, and their contribution to the formulation of international law. The author offers a provocative discussion of constitutional problems that would evolve from United States participation in such Communities, and examines similar adjustments being effected in Germany under the Bonn Constitution. “. . . well documented and scholarly . . . recommended for specialists in the field of political science and international law.”—Library Journal. 335 pages. $7.50.

INTERNATIONAL TRADE, INVESTMENT, AND ORGANIZATION

Edited by Wayne R. LaFave and Peter Hay. This comprehensive introduction to the rapidly expanding area of international trade and investment explores current practical problems of international trade, its regulation by regional international organizations, and the impact of these organizations on the development of uniform standards and legal norms. Nineteen authorities in the field provide timely discussion of a wide range of topics including basic trends in East-West trade, the move to reduce tariff restrictions, incorporation of American business abroad, regional trade associations, and the implications of economic association among underdeveloped countries. 499 pages. $7.50.

LAW IN THE SOVIET SOCIETY

Edited by Wayne R. LaFave. The Khrushchev era of Soviet history was a time of reform for Soviet law. Published shortly before Khrushchev's downfall, these essays provide a valuable general assessment of the changes produced during this critical period. Specific areas examined include Soviet law and United States-Soviet relations, Soviet tort and contract law, civil procedure, law and the distribution of consumer goods, and the spread of Soviet legal principles and institutions abroad. Contributors are Demitri B. Shimkin, Dennis M. O'Connor, Bernard A. Ramundo, Dietrich A. Loeber, Whitmore Gray, Zigurds L. Zile, and John N. Hazard. 297 pages. Cloth, $4.75; paper, $1.95.

PEACEFUL COEXISTENCE

International Law in the Building of Communism

By Lt. Col. BERNARD A. RAMUNDO

This study explores the Soviet position on basic questions of international law and contemporary international legal problems. The purpose throughout is twofold: to determine the manner in which the Soviets utilize international law to support policy objectives, and to decide whether, and to what degree, the Soviet approach to international law differs from that of other countries. The Soviet Union, Dr. Ramundo contends, has outgrown its earlier role as an "outlaw state," and now manifests an acute sensitivity to the need to demonstrate legal propriety in international relations. The law of peaceful coexistence has been devised to fill this need in the interest of the realization of Soviet foreign policy objectives.

Dr. Ramundo, a lieutenant colonel in the U. S. Army, is currently serving with the Directorate of Foreign Military Rights Affairs in the Department of Defense and is a member of the law faculty of The George Washington University. $6.95
