DE WOLF, Gaelan Dodds, GREGG, Robert J., HARRIS, Barbara P. & SCARGILL, Matthew H. (1998). Gage Canadian Dictionary (revised and expanded edition). Toronto: Gage Educational Publishing Company. xxv + 1718 pp. Hb Cdn$32.95 ISBN 0-7715-7399-5.

This new edition of the Gage Canadian Dictionary is noteworthy in that it adopts IPA transcription principles for all of its entries and pronunciation guides, perhaps the first dictionary in North America to do so. Over 140,000 definitions including 13,000 new entries are thoroughly Canadian in their grounding, not a reworking of an originally American or British publication. There are several hundred illustrations and 200 photographs. Spelling reflects accurately the usage of government departments and agencies and of academic institutions. Etymological and synonym/idiomatic usage notes are plentiful.

The Irish-English section is abstracted from an earlier edition edited by N. Ó Dónaill et al., and for the first time introduces a phonetic transcription in IPA of each Irish Gaelic headword — the product of a committee chaired by Dónall P. Ó Baoill of the Institiúid Teangeolaíochta Éireann. Grammatical notes, a pronunciation guide, and a thesaurus of rules and examples covering various aspects of Irish pronunciation are also included.
