

Comparative Judicial Systems: Challenging Frontiers in Conceptual and Empirical Analysis

Editor:

John R. Schmidhauser

Comparative Judicial Systems comprises eleven empirically based essays by distinguished American, Canadian and Japanese scholars investigating the challenging frontiers of research in comparative cross-national judicial and legal systems. These essays are cohesively organized in accordance with the progression of scientific inquiry in the field. The initial section investigates comparative judicial and legal models, conceptual frameworks, and the challenges and problems of integrating judicial and legal personnel and institutions into the comparative study of politics. Section two maps the bases for scientific cross-national investigation of such personnel and institutions by means of single nation analysis. Section three embodies extensions of the frontiers of scientific judicial comparison through multinational investigations.

Contents: From the Series Editor • Foreword • Preface • Part I Comparative Models and Conceptual Frameworks • Judicial Institutions in Cross-national Perspective: Toward Integrating Courts into the Comparative Study of Politics • Alternative Conceptual Frameworks in Cross-National Legal and Judicial Research • Part II Single National Analyses: Mapping Bases for Scientific Investigation • Judicial Review in a Federal and Plural Society: The Supreme Court of Canada • Judicial Activism in a Divided Society: the Rule of Law in the Weimer Republic • The Changing Role of the Israeli Supreme Court • The Institutionalization of the Supreme Court of India • A Cross-National Perspective on the Structure of Trial Court Outputs: The Case of the English High Court • Part III Multi-Nation Analyses: The Extension of the Scientific Frontier • Judicial Leadership: English and American Experience • Constitutional Organization and the Protection of Human Rights in Britain and the United States • A Comparative Analysis of the Internal Procedures and Customs of the Supreme Courts of Japan and the United States • Subcultures and Judicial Background: A Cross-Cultural Analysis • Conclusion • Abstracts/Resumes • About the Contributors

June 1987

256 pages 216 × 138 mm 0 408 03165 4 Hardcover £25.00

Butterworths
meeting professional needs

BOROUGH GREEN, SEVENOAKS, KENT TN15 8PH, UK