Pinochet

The Politics of Power

Genaro Arriagada, Translated by Nancy Morris

In 1988 Chile will hold its first democratic elections since the military coup of September 11, 1973. This timely analysis of the Pinochet regime by a prominent Chilean political scientist gives the first in-depth account of the internal workings of its politics, revealing Pinochet's manipulation of Chile's political machinery, press, and military in support of his reactionary rule. June 1988 224pp. $34.95 cloth, $12.95 paper Thematic Studies in Latin America

Policymaking in Mexico

From Boom to Crisis

Judith A. Teichman

Policymaking in Mexico examines the historical and political dimensions of Mexico's 1982 economic dilemma. Professor Teichman analyzes the motivations, interests, and alliances that patterned Mexico's economic policymaking between 1976 and 1982, arguing that the goals of state managers, the growing contradictions of peripheral capitalism, and international events interacted to produce policies that have deepened Mexico's economic crisis and exacerbated social conflicts. 1988 192 pp. $34.95 cloth, $13.95 paper Thematic Studies in Latin America

Land, Power, and Poverty

Agrarian Transformation and Political Conflict in Central America

Charles D. Brockett

The changes that have occurred in Central America's rural areas involve not only the causes of widespread hunger and malnutrition — they are fundamental to the region's politics over the last few decades, including revolution, civil war, reformism, and repression. Professor Brockett explores the development of rigid, unequal structures in rural Central America, the challenge in recent decades by the peasantry, and the roles played by the area's national governments and the U.S. March 1988 256pp. $39.95 cloth Thematic Studies in Latin America

Political Change in the Third World

Charles F. Andrain

This well-organized, clearly written, informative book provides a sophisticated analysis of political changes in five Third World countries. It develops a theory of the dynamics of Third World political change based on models of various political systems — folk, bureaucratic-authoritarian, reconciliation, and mobilization — and then uses these models to account for political changes in Vietnam, Cuba, Chile, Nigeria, and Iran. April 1988 320pp. $39.95 cloth, $16.95 paper

THE HUMAN TRADITION IN LATIN AMERICA
The Twentieth Century

Edited by William H. Beezley and Judith Ewell

Available now. 311 pages. Paper, 0-8420-2284-8. $12.95

This unique collection emphasizes the human element in the study of Latin American history by focusing on the lives of 23 men, women, and children, whose stories vividly bring to life the impact that modernization—revolution, economic upheaval, urbanization, and destruction of community and family life—has on the daily lives of ordinary people in a traditional society.

“These twenty-three mini-biographies put a human face on the recent past. They return the study of Latin America to its rightful locus: the people...Long overdue.”
—E. Bradford Burns, UCLA

“Just the right mix...The chapters stand on their own, each telling a human story and illustrating a particular national setting, but also add up to a whole that provides an entirely different image of Latin America.”

—Charles D. Ameringer, Penn State University

“An uncommon, informative and compelling book. What were once only events in history now become vivid and unforgettable realities as we see their consequences in the daily lives of the people who lived through them.”

—David L. Chandler, Brigham Young University

SEARCHING FOR RURAL DEVELOPMENT

Labor Migration and Employment in Mexico

By Merilee S. Grindle. Throughout the Third World, rural people must leave their homes in ever greater numbers to seek temporary work in cities, in distant rural areas, or even in other countries. Focusing on Mexico, Merilee Grindle addresses the critical question of how rural development strategies can help provide more secure livelihoods for the many people who can no longer support themselves and their families in their local communities. The first in a new series, Food Systems and Agrarian Change, edited by Frederick H. Buttel, Billie R. DeWalt, and Per Pinstруп-Anderson. $24.95

Archivo Biográfico de España, Portugal e Iberoamérica

- Over 300 original biographical reference works.
- Approximately 600 volumes from the 17th to the 20th centuries.
- Cumulated into a single alphabetical sequence on microfiche.

The Archivo Biográfico de España, Portugal e Iberoamérica – the fourth in Saur's international series of biographical archives – will reproduce in a convenient and otherwise unavailable format the biographical dictionaries and encyclopedias of earlier centuries. The scope of the Archivo reflects the reaches of Spain and Portugal – from the Iberian Peninsula, the Balearic and Canary Islands to Mexico, Honduras, Brazil, Argentina and Mozambique or Macao and the Phillipines. Compiled from the vast resources of the national libraries in Spain, Portugal, and Mexico, only 55% of the material pertains exclusively to Spain and Portugal.

No other resource provides users with such a wealth of easily accessible information on individuals of every class and calling – the monarchy and nobility, military and religious figures, statesmen – ethnic groups, foreigners who became part of the fabric of life, and especially women are included.

Nonviolent Insurrection in El Salvador

*The Fall of Maximiliano Hernandez
Martínez*

Patricia Parkman

Drawing extensively on archival material in both El Salvador and the United States, Parkman examines the events leading up to the civic strike that forced the resignation of dictator Martínez in 1944. "It provides a detailed account of an event overwhelmingly overlooked by Central American historians... a model of imagination and diligence." (Charles L. Stansifer) "This book is likely to be trusted by all shades of ideological opinion." (José Z. García) About 260 pages, $35.00.

in Northwestern Mexico*

Thomas E. Sheridan
Arizona Studies in Human Ecology

Focuses upon both the external linkages and internal adaptations that shape three peasant corporate communities characterized by sharp economic inequality and longstanding conflict over land and water. Sheridan examines the ecological and economic constraints which scarce and necessary resources place upon households, and then investigates why many such households have formed corporate communities to insure their access to resources they cannot control on their own. About 270 pages, $29.95.

The People of Sonora and Yankee Capitalists

Ramón Eduardo Ruiz
A PROFMEX Book

Examines how the advent of North American dollars between 1882 and 1910 helped reshape the economic, social, and political contours of one Mexican province. Ruiz challenges the popular notion that American investment is a cure for third-world ills; for while the money invested in Sonora may have brought order and progress, it also gave life to a nascent working class increasingly at odds with a dependent bourgeoisie and laid the foundations for a rebellion that toppled a regime linked with its American patrons. About 330 pages, $35.00.

Troublesome Border

Oscar J. Martínez
A PROFMEX Book

Addresses salient issues in the history of the U.S.-Mexican border, offering a synthesis of current literature to focus on the most important events and interpretations regarding past and present conditions in the region. Martínez demonstrates the complex nature of the border by highlighting the web of relationships that link one side with the other, delineating the social, economic, and cultural predicaments of its population to emphasize the estrangement between the "bi-national" periphery of each nation and the core societies. About 175 pages, $22.95.

ARIEL

By José Enrique Rodó

Translated by Margaret Sayers Peden

Prologue by Carlos Fuentes

"Irritating, insufferable, admirable, stimulating, disappointing Rodó: . . . you are part of our family quarrels, and must bear with your disrespectful, equally disappointed, intuitive, incomplete nephews, living in a world that you helped define for us, and offered unto our revolt." —Carlos Fuentes

Now available in a new English translation, Latin America's most famous essay on aesthetic and philosophical sensibility. Rodó's allegorical conflict between Ariel and Caliban is widely regarded as a metaphor for the conflicts and cultural differences between Latin America and the United States. An essential work for the student of Latin American studies.

PUERTO RICAN HOUSES in Sociohistorical Perspective

Carol F. Jopling

"Carol Jopling has made an impressively thorough reconnaissance of the Puerto Rican house. In this book she gives us an instructive typology of the diversity of house types, anchoring that typology in the history of Puerto Rico and the dynamics of acculturation among Indians, Spaniards, and other Europeans, Africans, and continental Americans. She also addresses in a novel way the relation between house types and the dynamics of the social order and the class system."—James W. Fernandez, University of Chicago.

THE COAL OF EL CEREJÓN

Dependent Bargaining and Colombian Policymaking

Harvey F. Kline

This study of two contracts the Colombian government made for coal development in the early 1980s goes beyond the literature on dependencia and on bargaining to closely examine the power struggles between "Nationalists" and "Reactionaries" in the decision-making process. The Coal of El Cerejón shows that matters such as coal development in Third World countries are not completely determined by international forces, but rather that much of the credit for beneficial contracts — and the blame for prejudicial ones — is rightly deserved by the political elites of the countries. A fascinating study of contract-bargaining and its political, economic, and social effect.
