
People in Political Science

Activities

Shlomo Avineri, Herbert Samuel Professor of Political Science at the Hebrew University of Jerusalem, will spend the spring term of 1989 as Carlyle Lecturer at All Souls College, Oxford.

Marguerite Ross Barnett, chancellor of the University of Missouri-St. Louis, was named to the Board of Directors of Monsanto Company in January.

Roger Benjamin has resigned as Provost, University of Minnesota, and returned full time to the department of political science.

MARGUERITE ROSS BARNETT

Merle L. Bowen, of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, spent academic year 1987-88 as a post-doctoral fellow at the Frederick Douglas Institute of Afro-American Studies at the University of Rochester.

David C. Colby, associate professor of policy sciences at the University of Maryland Baltimore County, is on leave of absence to serve as senior analyst for the Physician Payment Review Commission.

William Crotty, professor, Northwestern University, is the president of the Midwest Political Science Association, 1988-89.

Bob Darcy, professor, Oklahoma State University, was elected to the executive council of the Southwestern Political Science Association.

George C. Edwards III, Texas A & M University, has been awarded the U.S. Army's highest civilian decoration, the Distinguished Civilian Service medal. In May he spoke in Brasilia to a gathering of those involved in writing Brazil's new constitution. He has also been an issue leader in the National Academy of Public Administration's Presidential Transition Project. In August he served as a consultant for the USIA Overseas Visitors Program at the Republican National Convention.

Kathie Stromile Golden will be a Chancellor's Minority Postdoctoral Fellow in the department of political science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign for 1988-89.

Jeffrey A. Hart, professor of political science, Indiana University, will be conducting research on the impact of high definition television (HDTV) on manufacturing in the U.S. for the National Center on Manufacturing Sciences (Ann Arbor) during the 1988-89 academic year. He will be based at the Berkeley Roundtable on the International Economy at the University of California, Berkeley.

Kenneth Hoover, Western Washington University, has been appointed Senior Fellow at the Center for Twentieth Century Studies at the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee for the fall semester. He will do research on political utopias, and offer a course on ideology and politics on the Wisconsin state radio network through the U.W.-Milwaukee Department of Political Science.

Gary Hoskin, associate professor of political science at the State University of New York at Buffalo, will be on sabbatical leave in 1988-89. He will be spending the fall semester based at Los Andes University in Bogota, Colombia, continuing work on a grant from the National Endowment for Democracy. In the spring, he will be teaching in Ecuador under the FLASCO program.

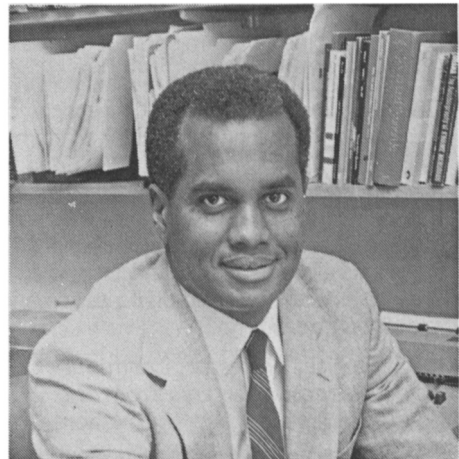

Herbert Jacob, Center for Urban Affairs and Policy Research, Northwestern University, has received a $65,092 grant from the Fund for Research on Dispute Resolution to examine the effects of "bargaining in the shadow of the law" in the context of divorce negotiations.

Richard A. Joseph has been appointed the Asa G. Candler professor of political science and Fellow of the Carter Presidential Center of Emory University. He recently completed a two-year assignment as a Program Officer of the Ford Foundation in West Africa and will be a Guggenheim Fellow and Visiting Professor at the Kennedy School of Government at Harvard University until December 1988. At Emory he will direct a new Institute of African Studies and create a program on African governance at the Carter Center.

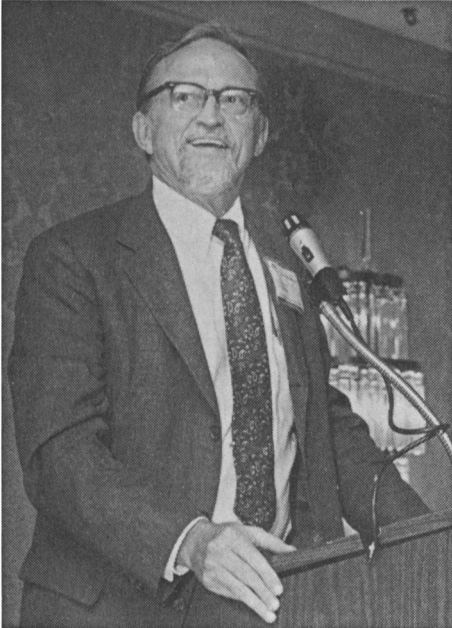

David Kettler of Trent University has been awarded the first Social Science Faculty Research Award by his University. For the academic year 1988-89, in the second year of a research grant from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, he is Bard Center

WILLIAM CROTTY

RICHARD JOSEPH
Photo © Martha Stewart 1988

PHILIP E. CONVERSE

Fellow at Bard College. During the preceding academic year, he was in turn a research fellow in the Centre of Criminology at the University of Toronto, a scholar at the Rockefeller Research and Conference Center in Bellagio, Italy, and a visiting fellow in the department of law at the European University Institute in Fiesole, Italy. Kettler is the new chair of the Committee of Examiners for the GRE Political Science Test.

Charles Lipson, of the University of Chicago, is spending the 1988-89 academic year as a visiting fellow at the London School of Economics and the Royal Institute of International Affairs. Lipson is conducting research on the protection of international investments and on the linkages between international debt and security affairs.

Ian S. Lustick, professor, Dartmouth College, has received grants from the U.S. Institute for Peace and the National Endowment for the Humanities to write a book comparing Irish and Algerian problems in British and French political history. The project is titled, "Between Secession and Decolonization in Britain, France, and Israel: Ireland, Algeria, the West Bank and Gaza."

David B. Magleby of Brigham Young University is a visiting fellow at The Brookings Institution.

William R. Marty, department of political science, Memphis State University, is on faculty developmental leave fall semester to study the role of religion in contemporary American politics.

Albert P. Melone, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, is Co-Director of the Bicentennial Project held on the SIUC campus. Funded through a grant of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the United States Constitution, the project held last June a one-week summer institute on the U.S. Constitution for 30 southern Illinois elementary and secondary school teachers.

Lester Milbrath, professor of political science at the State University of New York at Buffalo, will be spending the fall of 1988 at Taiwan University under a Fulbright fellowship working on a study of environmental protection issues in Taiwan.

Sheldon W. Simon, professor of political science at Arizona State University, recently returned from three months of research in 15 countries along the Asian-Pacific rim on topics dealing with Asian reactions to America's forward deployment in the Pacific and China's views of the Sino-Soviet future. After eight years as director of the Center for Asian Studies at ASU, Simon has returned full time to the political science department.

Sarah Terry, associate professor of political science at Tufts University, continues as member of the board of Council for International Exchange of Scholars.

Richard Tobin, associate professor of political science at the State University of New York at Buffalo, is spending the calendar year 1988 at the Institut Teknologi Mara in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, under the SUNY/Buffalo-Malaysian Cooperative Education Program.

Martin E. Weinstein, of the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, will continue his appointment as the Japan Chair at the Center for Strategic and International Studies, Washington, DC, for academic year 1988-89.

Joe Westphal, associate professor, Oklahoma State University, is serving a second year as a visiting scholar at the Institute for Water Resources, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Ernest J. Wilson III, associate professor, University of Michigan, spoke in France in May at the invitation of several French institutions, where he gave a series of guest lectures on the changing economic role of the state in developing countries.

Administrative Appointments

Joseph M. Bessette, acting director, Bureau of Justice Statistics, Department of Justice.

Cole Blasier, chief of Hispanic Division, Library of Congress; formerly University of Pittsburgh.

Tony Brown, coordinator, Oklahoma State University programs at the University Center in Tulsa.

Jonathan D. Casper, chair, department of political science, Northwestern University.

Philip E. Converse will become director of Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences in Stanford in September 1989; currently director of the Institute for Social Research, University of Michigan.

William J. Daniels, associate dean of undergraduate programs at Union College, has been named dean of Rochester Institute of Technology's College of Liberal Arts.

Roger Durand, director, Bureau of Research, University of Houston, Clear Lake.

Lon S. Felker, director, Master's Program in Urban Administration, and associate professor, department of political science, East Tennessee State University; formerly of East Carolina University.

Edwin Fogelman, chair, University of Minnesota.

Earl H. Fry, professor at Brigham Young University, has been named associate director of the David M. Kennedy Center for International Studies.

Richard Gaulton, professor of political science at Colgate University, to American co-director of Johns Hopkins Nanjing Center for Chinese and American Studies.

Benjamin Ginsberg, director of the Institute for Public Affairs at Cornell University, to director of the Cornell-in-Washington program.

Milda K. Hedblom, department of politics and media, Augsburg College, has been appointed as Coordinator of Canadian Studies to administer an endowed program, the Mildred Joel Bequest in Canadian Studies, at Augsburg College.

Charles F. Hermann, Acting Vice Provost for International Affairs (1988-89), Ohio State University.

Martin B. Hickman, professor at Brigham Young University, has been named director of the Jerusalem Center for Near East Studies.

Bruce W. Jentleson, University of California at Davis, to associate director of the Cornell-in-Washington Program.

John R. Johannes, dean of college of arts and sciences, Marquette University.

Charles H. Kennedy, assistant professor in the department of politics at Wake Forest University, has been selected to be director of the American Institute of Pakistani Studies.

Cornelius M. Kerwin, acting dean of School of Public Affairs, American University.

John Kincaid, currently on leave from the University of North Texas, Denton, has been appointed Executive Director of the U.S. Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations, Washington, DC.

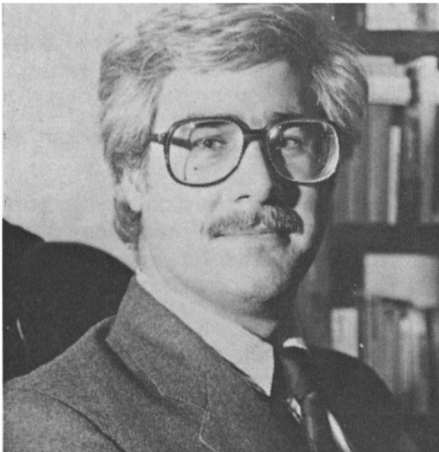

Joseph J. Kruzal, acting director of the Mershon Center (1988-89), Ohio State University.

Thomas P. Lauth, head, department of political science, University of Georgia.

People in Political Science

DIANNE M. PINDERHUGHES

GARRETT WARD SHELDON

Russell Leng, chair, department of political science, Middlebury College.

Paul Light, associate dean, Hubert H. Humphrey Institute of Public Affairs, University of Minnesota; formerly on professional staff of Senate Committee on Governmental Affairs and APSA Congressional Fellow, 1983-84.

Richard W. Mansbach, professor and chair, Iowa State University; formerly Rutgers University.

Manindra Kumar Mohapatra, dean of the School of Public Affairs, 1988-89, Kansas State University.

Dianne M. Pinderhughes's appointment as acting director of the Afro-American studies and research program in the college of liberal arts and sciences at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, has been extended through academic year 1988-89.

Bernard Reich, chair, department of political science, The George Washington University.

James M. Rhodes, chair, department of political science, Marquette University.

Lucille A. S. Rich, assistant dean in the college of liberal arts and sciences at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign; she will also be affiliated with the department of political science.

Ralph A. Rossum, vice president and dean of the faculty at Claremont McKenna College. He will continue to act as director of the Salvatori Center, Claremont McKenna College.

Anne L. Schneider, head, department of political science, Oklahoma State University.

Jack Schrems, chair, department of political science, Villanova University.

Garrett Ward Sheldon, chair, department of social science, Clinch Valley College of the University of Virginia. Also promoted to associate professor.

Howard J. Silver, executive director, Consortium of Social Science Associations, effective July 1, 1988.

Maurice D. Simon, Coordinator of International Studies and Scholarships, East Carolina University; formerly chair, department of political science.

Wallace Spencer, chair, department of political science, Pacific Lutheran University.

Bob Spurrier, director, arts and sciences honors program, Oklahoma State University; from assistant director, Arts and Sciences Extension.

Floyd E. Stoner, senior federal legislative representative and manager, community and agricultural banking, American Bankers Association.

Stan Taylor, acting chairman, department of political science, Brigham Young University.

Robert J. Thompson, chair, department of political science, East Carolina University.

Charles W. Washington, director of John C. Stennis Institute of Government at Mississippi State University; formerly associate dean of the School of Government and Business Administration at George Washington University.

Lettie McSpadden Wenner, professor and chair, department of political science, Northern Illinois University; formerly University of Illinois at Chicago.

Gunnar Wikstrom, Jr., director of academic affairs, Inter-Faculty Organization, Minnesota State University System; formerly The College of Idaho.

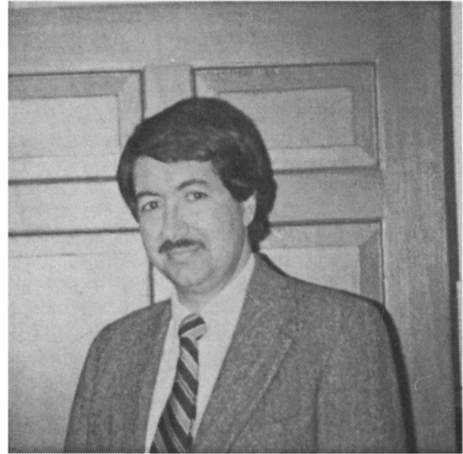

New Appointments

Leslie E. Armijo, assistant professor, Northeastern University.

Lynn W. Bachelor, assistant professor, department of political science, The University of Toledo; formerly with the Personnel Department, City of Detroit.

Hans-George Betz, assistant professor, department of political science, Marquette University.

Amy Bridges, associate professor of political science, University of California, San Diego; formerly Harvard University.

HOWARD J. SILVER

James M. Butterfield, assistant professor, department of political science, Western Michigan University.

Thomas Callaghy, associate professor of political science with tenure, University of Pennsylvania; formerly at Columbia University.

James E. Campbell, associate professor, Louisiana State University; formerly University of Georgia.

Matthew B. Campbell, instructor, Troy State University European Program.

Tun-Jen Cheng, adjunct assistant professor of political science and assistant professor, Graduate School of International Relations/Pacific Studies, University of California, San Diego.

Jane T. Christensen, lecturer, department of political science, East Carolina University.

Youssef Cohen, associate professor with tenure, department of politics, New York University; formerly University of Pennsylvania.

W. Jackson Crittenden, assistant professor of political science, Arizona State University.

People in Political Science

Diane Duca, instructor, Troy State University European Program; formerly University of Colorado.

Euel Elliott, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Georgia; formerly at the University of Oklahoma.

John W. Ellwood, professor, Hubert H. Humphrey School of Public Affairs, University of Minnesota.

James Farr, associate professor, University of Minnesota; formerly University of Wisconsin, Madison.

Picot Floyd, professor, Troy State University European Region; formerly University of South Florida.

Kim E. Fox, assistant professor, Troy State University European Program; formerly University of North Carolina.

Christopher J. Froke, assistant professor, Arkansas State University; formerly University of California–Santa Barbara.

Geoffrey M. Garrett, assistant professor of political science, Stanford University.

Ralph Hancock, assistant professor, Brigham Young University; formerly University of Idaho.

Margaret G. Hermann, associate professor, Ohio State University.

Rodney E. Hero, associate professor of political science, Arizona State University; formerly University of Colorado, Colorado Springs.

Claus Hofhansel, lecturer, department of political science, East Carolina University.

Eduardo A. Honold, instructor of political science, Bates College.

Valerie Hudson, assistant professor, Brigham Young University; formerly assistant professor, Rutgers University.

Eric Hyer, assistant professor, Brigham Young University; formerly Columbia University.

Lawrence Jacobs, instructor, University of Minnesota.

Joel Jenswold, assistant professor of political science, Oklahoma State University.

Chalmers Johnson, adjunct professor of political science and professor, Graduate School of International Relations/Pacific Studies, University of California, San Diego; formerly University of California, Berkeley.

Ellen Kennedy, associate professor of political science, University of Pennsylvania; formerly Queen Mary College, The University of London.

Matthew R. Kerbel, assistant professor, department of political science, Villanova University.

M. Aman Khan, assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University; formerly of Florida International University.

George Klay Kieh, Jr., assistant professor, department of political science, Memphis State University.

Bradley S. Klein, assistant professor, College of the Holy Cross, and associate with Program on Nonviolent Sanctions at Harvard University, Center for International Affairs; formerly St. Lawrence University/SUNY College at Potsdam.

David Kowalewski, associate professor of political science, Alfred University; formerly University of Texas at San Antonio.

Friedrich V. Kratochwil, associate professor of political science with tenure; University of Pennsylvania; formerly at Columbia University.

John Christian Laursen, assistant professor, department of politics, Wake Forest University; formerly at Union College.

John W. R. Lepingwell, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign.

Hubert G. Locke, professor, Troy State University European program; formerly University of Washington.

Brad Lockerbie, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Georgia; formerly graduate student at University of Iowa.

Michael Loriaux, assistant professor, department of political science, Northwestern University; formerly of the University of Utah.

Victor V. Magagna, assistant professor of political science, University of California, San Diego; formerly University of California, Riverside.

William R. Mangun, associate professor and graduate director, department of political science, East Carolina University; formerly of Indiana State University.

Bruce B. Mason, professor, Troy State University European Program; formerly Arizona State University.

Patricia J. Mills, assistant professor, department of political science, University of Massachusetts/Amherst; formerly University of Toronto.

Carlos G. Miranda, assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Christian University.

Margaret D. Moore, professor, Troy State University European Program; formerly Franklin University.

Anthony Mughan, associate professor, Ohio State University.

Gregory W. Noble, assistant professor of political science, University of California, San Diego; formerly Harvard University.

Dick W. Olufs, professor, Troy State University European Program; formerly Pacific Lutheran University.

James R. Pace, instructor, Troy State University European Program; formerly Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

Benjamin I. Page, Gordon Scott Fulcher Chair in Political Science, Northwestern University; formerly of the University of Texas at Austin.

Margaret A. Paternek, assistant professor, Northeastern University.

Gregory Peacock, assistant professor of political science, Brigham Young University; formerly a graduate student, Ohio State University.

John H. Portz, assistant professor, Northeastern University.

Hal Rainey, professor, department of political science, University of Georgia; formerly at Florida State University.

Nathaniel Richmond, assistant professor of political science, Utica College of Syracuse University; formerly University of Northern Iowa.

Albert C. Ringelstein, instructor, department of political science, East Carolina University.

Diane Schmidt, assistant professor of political science, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale; formerly of Washington University (St. Louis).

Stephen Schwark, assistant professor of political studies, Sangamon State University; formerly University of Redlands.

Kathryn Sikkink, assistant professor, University of Minnesota.

James D. Slack, associate professor of public administration and director of the Master of Public Administration Program in the College of Urban Affairs at Cleveland State University; formerly Central Michigan University.

Elizabeth Trousdell, assistant professor, Troy State University European Program; formerly Indiana University.

Susan L. Wiley, assistant professor, political science department, The George Washington University.

John P. Willerton, assistant professor of political science, University of Arizona; formerly at the James Madison College, Michigan State University.

Dwayne Woods, assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Christian University.

John Quansheng Zhao, assistant professor of political science, Old Dominion University; formerly Cleveland State University.

Promotions

Peter J. Bergerson, professor of political science, Southeast Missouri State University.

Gary Bryner, associate professor with tenure, department of political science,

People in Political Science

Brigham Young University.

Richard J. Collings, professor of political science, Southeast Missouri State University.

Robert E. DiClerico, professor, department of political science, West Virginia University.

Mary Dietz, associate professor, University of Minnesota.

John R. Freeman, professor, University of Minnesota.

Leslie Friedman Goldstein, professor, University of Delaware.

Richard K. Herrmann, associate professor with tenure, Ohio State University.

Brian Job, professor, University of Minnesota.

Farhad Kazemi, professor, department of politics, New York University.

Kathleen Knight, associate professor with tenure, University of Houston.

James Lebovic, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, The George Washington University.

David Mares, associate professor of political science, University of California, San Diego.

Connie Mauney, director of the Public Affairs Program, was promoted to associate professor with tenure at Emporia State University.

Jack Nagel, professor, University of Pennsylvania.

Jill Norgren, professor, department of government, CUNY, John Jay College of Criminal Justice, effective January 1988.

Suzanne P. Ogden, professor, Northeastern University.

William Parle, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Oklahoma State University.

John P. Pelissero, associate professor of political science, Loyola University of Chicago.

Jerry Perkins, professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University.

Brian M. Pollins, associate professor with tenure, Ohio State University.

James W. Riddlesperger, Jr., associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Texas Christian University.

Sue Tolleson Rinehart, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, Texas Tech University.

David A. Rochefort, associate professor, Northeastern University.

Anne L. Schneider, professor, department of political science, Oklahoma State University.

Nancy L. Spalding, assistant professor, department of political science, East Carolina University.

Carter A. Wilson, associate professor with tenure, department of political science, The University of Toledo.

Robert L. Youngblood, professor, Arizona State University.

Resignation

Jung-gun Kim, professor, department of political science, East Carolina University.

Retirements

Charles R. Adrian, professor, University of California, Riverside, as of June 30, 1988.

George I. Blanksten, professor emeritus, department of political science, Northwestern University, August 1988.

Ikua Chou, professor of political science, Southern Illinois University at Carbondale, as of June 15, 1988.

Raymond Habiby, professor, Oklahoma State University.

Edwin T. Haefele, professor, University of Pennsylvania, as of June 30, 1988.

J. Keith Melville, professor emeritus, Brigham Young University, August, 1987.

Lester G. Seligman, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, in August 1988.

William F. Troutman, professor emeritus, East Carolina University, as of May 1988.

Arthur Campbell Turner, professor, University of California, Riverside, as of June 30, 1988.

John E. Turner, Regents' Professor, University of Minnesota, June 1988.

Visiting and Temporary Appointments

Jiangji An, of the Chinese Academy of Sciences, will be a visiting scholar in the department of political science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign during 1988-89.

Abraham Blumberg, visiting professor, department of political science, University of California, San Diego; formerly University of Missouri.

Horace Campbell, visiting professor of political science, Northwestern University.

Philip Cerny, visiting professor, department of politics, New York University.

Louise Comfort, visiting scholar at the Institute of Governmental Studies, University of California at Berkeley; on leave from the University of Pittsburgh.

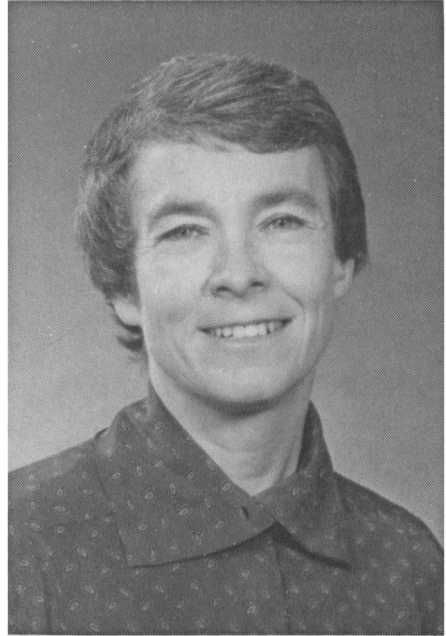

Edwin Corr, U.S. Ambassador, El Salvador, has received a U.S. State Department fellowship to serve as visiting professor at the University of Oklahoma and Oklahoma State University.

Henry W. Ehrmann, visiting professor, department of political science, University of California, San Diego; from Dartmouth College.

Stefan Hatys, of the Polish Institute of International Affairs, Warsaw, will be a Fulbright Scholar in the department of political science at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign during 1988-89.

Mike Herlinger, visiting assistant professor, Oklahoma State University.

Leslie I. Hill-Davidson, instructor, Bates College, fall semester 1988.

ANNE L. SCHNEIDER

IKUA CHOU

People in Political Science

Hans-Dieter Klingemann, professor at the Free University in Berlin, will be Visiting Garvin Professor in the department of political science at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University during the 1988-89 academic year.

Lawrence LeDuc, University of Toronto, is visiting professor of political science at Florida State University, 1988-89.

Edward B. Lewis, visiting assistant professor, department of political science, East Carolina University.

Michael S. Lewis-Beck, professor of political science at the University of Iowa, will be a fellow at the Camargo Foundation, Cassis, France, fall semester, 1988.

Melvin P. Mabey, professor emeritus at Brigham Young University, was a fellow at St. Antony's College, Oxford, during 1987.

Michael Machan, visiting assistant professor, starting August 1988, department of political science, Marquette University.

Eileen L. McDonagh, associate professor, Northeastern University, will serve as National Science Foundation Visiting Professor at Radcliffe College during 1988-89.

Robert McKinlay, visiting professor of political science, Northwestern University.

Mike Minor, visiting assistant professor, Oklahoma State University.

ROGER F. PAJAK

Maureen Moakley, visiting assistant professor of political science, Connecticut College; formerly of Boston College.

Roger F. Pajak, National Security Adviser for Soviet and Middle East Affairs in the Office of the U.S. Secretary of the Treasury, has been appointed visiting professor of strategy for 1988-89 at the Naval War College.

Paul R. Schattman, visiting assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University; formerly of University of Akron.

Ward Schinke, visiting assistant professor, department of political science, Texas Tech University; formerly of Northern Arizona University.

Ira Sharkansky, Hebrew University of Jerusalem, visiting professor of political science, academic year 1988-89, Brigham Young University.

Morris A. Shepard, visiting associate professor, Northeastern University.

Edward Sidlow, visiting professor of political science, Northwestern University.

James R. Simmons, temporary assistant professor, Iowa State University.

Jerry D. Stubben, temporary assistant professor, Iowa State University; formerly at University of Nebraska.

Douglas C. Telling, assistant professor, Bates College, 1988-89.

Dennis L. Thompson, Brigham Young University, will be at Trinity College, 1988-89.

Sheila Tobias, visiting lecturer, department of political science, University of California, San Diego, from Arizona State University.

Guntram Werther, visiting assistant professor, Oklahoma State University.