

an unindicted co-conspirator in the Watergate cover-up. Four categories of information were not ruled on in this order: grand jury, national security, executive privilege, and transcripts of Presidential conversations.

On April 1, 1986, Judge Sirica ruled that the grand jury materials were to remain sealed. The transcripts of Presidential conversations however, were unsealed and transferred to the custody of the National Archives. In his opinion, the Judge stated that the transcripts should be processed under the access provisions of the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act, the statute controlling access to the Nixon Presidential records.

This order reflects an earlier decision of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia in the case Penny G. Ricchio v. Ray Kline. In that case, the Court of Appeals ruled that transcripts of presidential conversations among the records of the Watergate Special Prosecution Force were not subject to the Freedom of Information Act, but were under the control of the provisions of the Presidential Recordings and Materials Preservation Act.

Senate Foreign Relations Committee Opens Bulk of Archival Records

The Legislative Archives Division was recently informed by Senator Richard Lugar, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, that most of the Committee's records can now be made available for public inspection. The exceptions are documents that contain national security classified information and information that relates to personal privacy. According to the Senate rules on access, these records would normally be closed for 20 years after their creation. The Division currently has records of the Committee from 1816 to the early 1980s. With this action, Sen. Lugar has made the records of the Foreign Relations Committee the most accessible of any committee in Congress. □

Announcements

PS* Starts Book Search Column

At the request of Martha Derthick, an APSA member, PS plans to publish on a regular basis requests from readers unable to locate out-of-print books. Derthick is trying to locate a text by Ranney and Kendall, Democracy and the American Party System. If you can assist her in obtaining this title, please contact her at: Woodrow Wilson Department of Government and Foreign Affairs, 232 Cabell Hall, University of Virginia, Charlottesville, VA 22901; Phone (804) 924-3192. □

Publius* Invites Manuscripts

Publius: The Journal of Federalism invites manuscript submissions for a special topical issue to be published in 1988 on Federalism in West Germany.

The issue will focus on the following kinds of questions: What are the historical origins of German federalism and the forces that have shaped German federalism, especially since the eighteenth century? How does the modern German federal model differ from previous federal models and experiments in Germany? How does the German federal system differ, if at all, from other federal systems, such as those of the United States, Canada, or Australia? How, and how well, does it function, and what can be regarded as the strengths and weaknesses of German federalism? Does the federal system function in the manner intended by its founders? How has German federalism developed over the years, especially in comparison to other federal systems? What is the interplay between unitary principles and forces and federal principles and forces in Germany? To what extent do issues and processes peculiar to federalism influence national politics as well as politics in the Lander and localities? How does German federalism affect Germany's relationship with the EC, other European institutions, or non-European institutions and nations?

News of the Profession

What are the powers and roles of the Lander, courts, legislative bodies, and executive officials in the German federal system? How is the federal system financed, and what are the effects of changing financing patterns? What patterns of "intergovernmental relations" have developed in the German federal system? What are the reciprocal influences between the federal system and the political parties and interest groups in Germany? What are the important trends and developments, and how are those trends and developments likely to affect the future of German federalism? What light does German federalism shed on theoretical issues in the study of federalism and comparative federalism?

Other relevant ideas are also welcome. Proposals for articles (three copies) should be sent by December 15, 1986, to Arthur B. Gunlicks, Department of Political Science, University of Richmond, Richmond, VA 23173. □

Southeast Asia Council Seeks Award Nominations

The Harry J. Benda Prize of the Association of Asian Studies is awarded biennially to an outstanding younger scholar in any field of Southeast Asian studies. The award, which honors one of the pioneering scholars in Southeast Asian studies, has been given five times since 1977. The first recipient was Sartono Kartodirdjo, an historian at Gajah Mada University in Indonesia; the second was Lim Teck Ghee, also an historian, from Universiti Sains Malaysia; the third was Huynh Sanh Thong, a Vietnamese poet, critic, and translator who lives in the United States; the fourth was Renato Rosaldo, an anthropologist at Stanford University who is known for his work on the Ilongot of the Philippines; and the latest is Reynaldo Ileto, a Philippine historian currently teaching at James Cook University, Queensland.

The Southeast Asia Council of the Association selects the members of the Benda Prize Committee. The Committee for 1985-1986 consists of John A. Larkin (chair), Judith Becker, William J. Duiker, Hildred Geertz, Josef Siiverstein, and Stanley J. Tambiah.

The committee is charged by the Southeast Asia Council to seek nominations of candidates and to select a recipient from among those nominated. Those nominated should be outstanding younger scholars and be from any field or country specialization in Southeast Asian studies. There is neither citizenship nor residence requirement for nominees.

Nominations for the 1987 prize may be sent before November 15, 1986, to John A. Larkin, History Department, SUNY/Buffalo, Buffalo, NY 14261. Letters of nomination should include the following information about the nominee: (a) name; (b) institutional affiliation; (c) field of specialization; (d) list of most significant works; and (e) brief statement about why she or he merits the award. Self-nomination is discouraged.

The award of the Benda Prize affords a unique opportunity to honor a Southeast Asian scholar. The Committee looks forward to receiving nominations of deserving candidates. □

Authors Sought for Series on Leadership Studies

The State University of New York Press has initiated a new series on leadership. Manuscripts are welcomed from the fields of political science, social psychology, business/management/organizational behavior and any of the other several disciplines that generate theory and data on leadership. It is expected that most books in the series will be centered on the American experience, but a comparative approach is also of interest. Manuscripts are sought in leadership and followership as they manifest themselves in both the public and private sectors.

The series will reflect an eclectic mix that will include, for example, biographies of individual leaders, theoretical explorations of leadership systems in groups and organizations, and analyses of relevant concepts such as power, authority, and influence.

Please submit all inquiries about the series and all manuscripts and book proposals to: Michele Martin, Editor, SUNY Press, State University Plaza, Albany, NY 12246-0001. □

Cheney Confirmed as Chair of Humanities Endowment

The U.S. Senate unanimously confirmed President Reagan's nomination of Lynne V. Cheney as chair of the National Endowment for the Humanities. Most recently Cheney has been a senior editor of The Washingtonian Magazine and is a member of the Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution. She is the author of two novels, Executive Privilege and Sisters, as well as many articles on American history and culture. Cheney succeeds William J. Bennett as chair. □

Wakeman Elected President of Social Science Research Council

Frederic E. Wakeman, Jr., professor of history and former chair of the Center for Chinese Studies at the University of California, Berkeley, has been elected president of the Social Science Research Council, effective July 1, 1986. Wakeman has authored or edited six books on China, including The Fall of Imperial China (1976), and numerous articles.

The Council is a not-for-profit organization founded in 1923 "for the purpose of advancing research in the social sciences." Wakeman's goals for the Council include the strengthening of the social sciences as research enterprises; increasing their application to social policy issues; and improving their interrelationship with the humanities. □

Western Group Establishes Information Network

At the Western Political Science Association (WPSA) meeting in Eugene, Oregon, March 20-22, a roundtable was held to discuss a means for those interested in the government, politics, and public policy in the American West to exchange ideas. This would include both politics of individual states and the region as a whole.

The outcome of the meeting was the establishment of the Western Politics Network (WPN), which will perform the following functions:

1. Establish an information clearinghouse. This is to be operated by Cal and Janet Clark of the political science department at the University of Wyoming. The clearinghouse will: (a) develop a bibliography on western government and politics; (b) act as a liaison to facilitate contact between those working on similar research projects; (c) issue occasional newsletters detailing research in progress, publications, etc. on western politics.

2. Attempt to secure one or more panels on the subject of western politics at the annual meeting of the WPSA.
3. Organize a luncheon or reception for Network members at WPSA meetings.

Anyone who has bibliographical information that they would like to submit, or who would like to be included on the WPN mailing list, should contact: Cal and Janet Clark, Department of Political Science, University of Wyoming, Laramie, WY 82071.

Initially, there will be no charge for the Network's services. □

Western Members Select New Officers

Richard A. Brody, Stanford University, was elected vice president of the Western Political Science Association at the annual meeting at Eugene, Oregon, on March 20-22, 1986. He will serve as program chair for the next annual meeting at the Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim, California, on March 26-28, 1987, and will then serve as president in 1987-1988.

Judith H. Stiehm, University of Southern California, who served as vice president and program chair the past year, became president for 1986-1987 at the conclusion of the Eugene meeting, succeeding David J. Olson, University of Washington.

After serving for six years as secretary-treasurer, the longest anyone has served in that capacity since the WPSA was founded in 1947, A. J. Wann, University of Utah, retired from the position effective at the end of the 1986 meeting. Elizabeth F. Moulds, California State University, Sacramento, was selected as the new Secretary-Treasurer.

The following were elected to the Executive Council for three-year terms: Marilyn K. Dantico, Arizona State University, Edward S. Greenberg, University of Colorado, Boulder, and M. Kent Jennings, University of California, Santa Barbara. The terms of the following Council members expired in 1986: Dale Rogers Marshall, University of California, Davis, former president, Jana G. Everett, University of Colorado, Denver, John A. Garcia, University of Arizona, and Raymond E. Wolfinger, University of California, Berkeley. Janet A. Flammang, University of Santa Clara, was elected president of the Women's Caucus for Political Science, West.

Tom Hovet, University of Oregon, was the local arrangements chair for the outstanding Eugene meeting, which surpassed even the highly successful 1985 Las Vegas meeting as the largest in the history of the Association, with a total of 86 panels organized into 14 sections attended by over 500 persons.

The 1987 meeting of the Association has been scheduled for March 26-28, 1987, at the Disneyland Hotel, Anaheim, California. The local arrangements chair is Alan Saltzstein, Department of Political Science, California State University-Fullerton, Fullerton, CA 92634; (714) 773-3521.

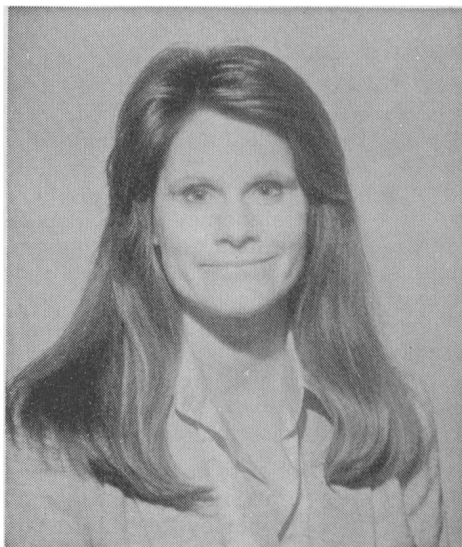

All those wishing to be considered as section chairs, panel chairs, paper presenters, discussants and roundtable or workshop organizers should communicate this information as soon as possible to Richard A. Brody, department of political science, Stanford University, Stanford, CA 94305; (415) 497-3583.

Pennsylvania Association Reports on 1986 Meeting

John Peeler of Bucknell University was given the Best Paper Award for a paper delivered at the 1985 meeting of the Pennsylvania Political Science Association. His paper, "Costa Rican Democracy: Pluralism and Class Rule" was recognized at the 1986 Annual Meeting held April 4-5 at Pennsylvania State University's Capital Campus at Middletown.

The featured speaker at the dinner meeting was Clifford Jones, president of Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce. It was announced at the business meeting that the Association's new publication, Commonwealth: A Journal of Political Science, will be published on an annual basis beginning in fall of 1986.

New officers were also elected at the business meeting: Frank Colon (Lehigh University), President; Donald Tannenbaum (Gettysburg College), First Vice-President; Mike Roskin (Lycoming College), Second Vice-President; Mel Kulbicki (York College), Secretary-Treasurer. Elected to the Council were Joe Melusky (St. Francis College) and Patricia Crotty (East Stroudsburg College). Continuing on the Council are Wes McDonald (Elizabethtown College), Tom Baldino (Juniata College), Lloyd Woodruff (PSU-Capital Campus), and Zachery Irwin (PSU-Behrend College).

A complete list of the titles of papers and participants at the 1986 meeting is available from M. A. Kulbicki, Department of Political Science, York College of Pennsylvania, York, PA 17403.

The next meeting will be held on April 3 and 4, 1987, at Albright College in Reading, PA. Tom Brogan will be local arrangements chairman.

Marquette Establishes Institute for Democracy and Public Values

Financed by a grant from the Lynde and Harry Bradley Foundation, Marquette University has established the Bradley Institute for Democracy and Public Values. The Institute's goal is to foster appreciation for and work toward the perfection of political democracy and democratic public values by means of teaching, research, publications, and civic education. The Institute began operations in July, with John R. Johannes as its director.

Among the activities to be undertaken by the Institute will be support of research and teaching activities by the Marquette faculty, holding of conferences and sponsoring of lectures by a variety of scholars, hosting both established scholars and newly minted Ph.D.s for periods of up to two years for purposes of research and writing, and a variety of civic education programs. The Institute's activities will cover political democracy in both U.S. and comparative contexts.

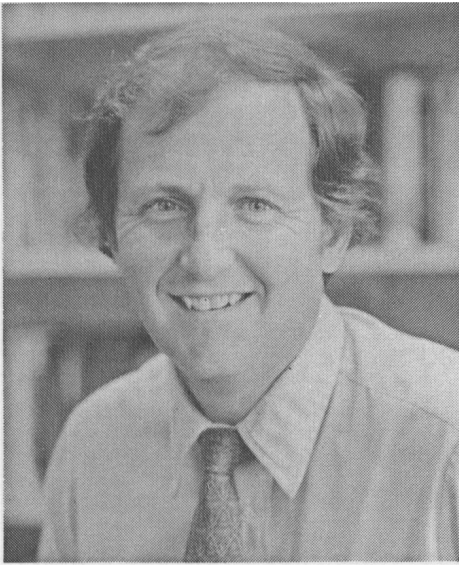

The Institute's director is very interested in establishing relationships with research centers and institutes sharing interests in issues of democracy and democratic values. □

Themes Planned for Study in Comparative Health Policy

The Study Group on Comparative Health Policy within the International Political Science Association plans to investigate the nature and direction of changes in health and medical care programs in response to financial constraints in declining or stagnant economies in both developed and developing nations. The following themes will be dealt with: (1) 1986. Development of Budgetary Strategies by National and/or Local Actors and the Effects of the Adoption of These Strategies in Terms of Outputs. (2) 1987. Privatization or Horizontal Decentralization. (3) 1988. Health Policy Context, Content and Outcomes.

Southwestern Association Elects Officers

The Southwestern Political Science Association is a regional organization and an affiliate of the multidisciplinary Southwestern Social Sciences Association.

Officers elected in March 1986 are: David W. Brady, Rice University, President; Charles Wiggins, Texas A&M University, President-Elect; Elaine Sharp, University of Kansas, Vice-President and Program Chair; and Mary R. Mattingly, Texas A&I University, Kingsville, Secretary-Treasurer. The Association publishes Social Science Quarterly, which is edited by Charles M. Bonjean, University of Texas at Austin.

The next meeting will be held March 18-21, 1987, Dallas Hilton, Dallas, Texas. □

Editorship Changes at Women & Politics

Beginning with volume 7, issue number 1, which will be published in winter 1987, Rita Mae Kelly, professor of public affairs, Arizona State University, will become editor of Women & Politics: A Journal of Research and Policy Studies. Sarah Slavin, editor of volume 6, is at the department of political science, SUNY, College at Buffalo.

Women & Politics publishes work from multiple perspectives and disciplines on gender, politics, and policy. Two types of studies are of primary interest: (1) studies focusing on sex and gender as variables within disciplinary frameworks and policy problems; and (2) studies that make gender and feminist theories central to reconstructing philosophical and empirical theories about politics and political life. In its "Perspectives" section readers are invited to engage in an ongoing dialogue about their intellectual concerns.

To obtain a subscription to this quarterly journal, write to: The Haworth Press, Inc., 28 East 22nd Street, New York, NY 10010-6194. Rates for the volume beginning in winter 1987 are: $34, individuals; $77, institutions; and $117, libraries. Members of the Women's Caucus for Political Science are entitled to a special discount.

Errata Notice: The Haworth Press regrets that in a recent brochure it inadvertently listed Rita Mae Kelly, rather than Sarah Slavin, as editor of volume 6 of Women & Politics. □
