

NOTES ON THE CONTRIBUTORS

BARRY LYONS is Assistant Professor of Anthropology at Wayne State University. He is currently completing a book on authority and resistance on highland Ecuadorian haciendas. He may be reached by e-mail (barry.lyons@wayne.edu).

ZEPHYR LAKE FRANK completed a Ph.D. in history at the University of Illinois, under the direction of Joseph Love. He teaches Latin American history at Stanford University.

A. J. R. RUSSELL-WOOD is a professor of history at The Johns Hopkins University. He has written numerous studies on colonial Brazil and on the Portuguese seaborne empire. He recently published The Portuguese Empire, 1415–1808 and edited Local Government in European Overseas Empires, 1450–1800 and Government and Governance of European Empires, 1450–1800.

JORGE DURAND is Professor of Geography and Anthropology at the University of Guadalajara. During the academic year 1999–2000, he was a visiting fellow at the Russell Sage Foundation in New York City. His most recent book, coauthored with Patricia Arias, is La experiencia migrante: Iconografía de la migración México–Estados Unidos, published in Mexico by Altexto.

DOUGLAS S. MASSEY is the Dorothy Swaine Thomas Professor and Chair of the Department of Sociology at the University of Pennsylvania. He coauthored with Jorge Durand Miracles on the Border: Retablos of Mexican Migrants to the United States, a study of Mexican migration through the eyes of those who lived it.

RENE ZENTENO is Professor and Investigator in the Centro de Estudios Estratégicos of the Guadalajara Campus of the Technical Institute of Monterrey, where he directs the Centro de Investigación Demográfica e Información Geográfica. He coauthored with Douglas Massey contributions to the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences and International Migration Review.

MICHAEL CLANCY is Assistant Professor of Politics and Government at the University of Hartford in West Hartford, Connecticut. He earned a Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin and has taught at Williams, Mount Holyoke, and Smith Colleges. He is currently working on a project on tourism and development in Cuba.

RENATO MONSEFF PERISSINOTTO is a professor in the Departamento de Ciências Sociais of the Universidade Federal do Paraná. He wrote Classes dominantes e hegemonia na República Velha and Estado e capital cafeeiro em São Paulo (1889–1930) and co-edits the Revista de Sociologia e Política. His research interests focus on theories of the capitalist state and comparative analysis of the state-building process in Brazil and Argentina.

ERIC SELBIN is Brown Distinguished Research Professor and Associate Professor of Political Science at Southwestern University. He has published articles, essays, and Modern Latin American Revolutions. Currently, his work focuses on exploring the reasons why revolutions are made here and not there, now and not then, by these people and not those.

HANNAH W. STEWART-GAMBINO teaches in the Political Science Department at Lehigh University.

JOÃO RESENDE-SANTOS earned a Ph.D. at Harvard University in 1997. He is a lecturer in the Political Science Department at the University of Pennsylvania, where he teaches courses in Latin American studies and international relations. He recently contributed an essay on Fernando Henrique Cardoso's political thinking to Technopols: Freeing Politics and Markets in Latin America, edited by Jorge I. Domínguez.

JEROME BRANCHE is Assistant Professor in the Department of Hispanic Languages and Literature of the University of Pittsburgh. He has published articles on Caribbean and Afro-Hispanic literature.

KATHERINE ELAINE BLISS is Assistant Professor of Latin American history at the University of Massachusetts. She received a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago in 1996. She has published articles in the Hispanic American Historical Review and the Journal of Family History. Her book, Compromised Positions: Gender and the Politics of Sexuality in Revolutionary Mexico City, will be published by Penn State University Press.