

Chicago

By Frank Lentricchia

Criticism and Social Change

Lentricchia has written an ideal complement to After the New Criticism. By taking up the central arguments and political implications of the work of Paul de Man, Lentricchia goes beyond his earlier critique as he revises, from his explicitly activist position, the consequences of poststructuralist theory.

"Frank Lentricchia's new book is a pleasure to read. . . . [It will be an] important intervention into contemporary critical discussions."

—Hayden White, University of California, Santa Cruz

After the New Criticism

"A courageous book and a splendidly written non-stop exercise in sardonic and high-powered theoretical interpretation, yet always informed by a secret sympathy for the work and achievements of the master thinkers he here challenges."—Fredric Jameson

Cloth $21.00 Paper $9.00 389 pages

Making Tales

The Poetics of Wordsworth's Narrative Experiments

Don H. Bialostosky

The author demonstrates the value of Wordsworth's narrative experiments in the Lyrical Ballads and explains how a Platonic poetics of speech can guide our re-creation of these poems. "A work of genuine theoretical significance, unusual intellectual honesty, critical sophistication, and cogency of argument."—Ralph W. Rader, University of California, Berkeley

Chicago and the American Literary Imagination, 1880–1920

Carl S. Smith

Chicago's phenomenal growth at the turn of the century embodied for writers like Hamelin Garland, Theodore Dreiser, Willa Cather, Carl Sandburg, Upton Sinclair, Jane Addams, and Sherwood Anderson the sudden and even violent transition to what we call the modern period. Carl Smith combines literary analysis with social and intellectual history in his innovative study of the period.

The Incredible Reader

Literature and the Function of Disbelief

By CLAYTON KOELB. "Koelb's is a fascinating study: wide-ranging, critically incisive, original. . . . It is unusual surely to find a critic who is as much at home with Plato, Aristophanes, and Lucian as he is with Derrida, Lacan, and Wolfgang Iser." —Melvin Friedman, University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee. $19.50

The Rhetoric of Doubtful Authority

*Deconstructive Readings of Self-Questioning Narratives,
St. Augustine to Faulkner*

By RALPH FLORES. "This is an elegant and intelligent piece of criticism, exploring five major works from different periods and traditions. Flores succeeds in shedding new light on each while contributing, through these practical readings in the wake of Derrida, to an understanding of the genealogical issues in self-questioning narrative." —Jonathan Culler, Cornell University. $17.50

The Romantic Fantastic

By TOBIN SIEBERS. "A sophisticated, insightful, learned book. The subject is important, and there is no study of it comparable in scope and depth to this one." —Lawrence Buell, Oberlin College. "Deserves to be known as the book on the romantic fantastic." —A.J. McKenna, Loyola University. $19.50

Narrative Irony in the Contemporary Spanish-American Novel

By JONATHAN TITTLER. "As a narrative device, irony in the Latin American novel has been treated before in a rather fragmented, non-systematic way. It needed a cohesive study based on close textual examination of several major novels. Professor Tittler has done just that and done it well. . . . The best and most comprehensive study of the ironic mode that we have." —Myron I. Lichtblau, Syracuse University. $25.00

Feydeau, First to Last

*Eight One-Act Comedies
by Georges Feydeau*

Translated and with an Introduction by NORMAN R. SHAPIRO. "Never, it seems, has Feydeau fared better in translation." —Nineteenth-Century French Studies. $9.95

The Daughter's Seduction

Feminism and Psychoanalysis

By JANE GALLOP. Gallop examines the relationship between contemporary feminism and the psychoanalytic theories of Jacques Lacan. "Lively, witty, extremely clever." —Times Literary Supplement. $9.95
