

"All researchers working in the tropics or who attempt to follow tropical literature will find it essential reading" GH Orians, Nature

Journal of Tropical Ecology

Editor: Dr Adrian G Marshall, Institute of Tropical Biology, University of Aberdeen

The Journal of Tropical Ecology, first published in 1985, has now become a major international ecological journal. Attractively printed with excellent quality illustrations and tables, it examines the special problems of tropical environments and their proper management. The breadth and quality of papers, the format and price, are also aimed to stimulate the research activities of young ecologists in tropical nations.

Published quarterly by Cambridge University Press, the journal is for all those interested in the biology of the tropics - agriculturalists, foresters, developmental planners, conservationists, and wildlife biologists.

Increasing pressure is being put upon tropical ecosystems by rapid national development which, if it is to succeed, must take into account ecological principles. The Journal of Tropical Ecology aims to assist this process by providing a platform for the dissemination of information in all aspects of tropical ecosystems. The Editors particularly welcome the submission of papers by ecologists indigenous to the tropics who seek a wide international audience for their findings.
