CONTRIBUTORS

Olive Baldwin and Thelma Wilson have been working on seventeenth- and eighteenth-century singers and stage music for many years. They contributed entries to New Grove and were Research Associates for the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography. They edited The Complete Songs of Richard Leveridge (1997) and The Monthly Mask of Vocal Music 1702–11 (2007). Their ‘Theatre Dancers at the Court of Queen Anne’ was published in Court Historian in December 2010.

William Cheng is a Ph.D. candidate in musicology at Harvard University. His dissertation examines changing technologies of music and musicianship in American video game cultures through the lens of comparative studies in opera, film, theatre and new media; articles are forthcoming in 19th-Century Music and The Oxford Handbook of Sound and Image in Digital Media.

Christopher Chowrimootoo is a Ph.D. candidate at Harvard University and a Visiting Research Associate at King’s College London. His dissertation, entitled ‘Middlebrow Modernism’, focuses on Benjamin Britten’s operas and their reception.

Jennifer Sheppard recently completed her Ph.D. at the University of California, Berkeley on the production and reception of Janáček’s last four operas in the Czech Republic. She is currently working on a new project that looks at the intersections between music and sport in the decades around the turn of the twentieth century.

David Trippett is a University Lecturer at Cambridge University, and a Junior Research Fellow at Christ’s College. His research on nineteenth- and twentieth-century topics has been published in various journals and books; currently he is working on a monograph, Wagner’s Melodies, for Cambridge University Press, and a translation of Carl Stumpf’s The Origins of Music for Oxford University Press. In 2009 he won the AMS’s Alfred Einstein award.
