FROM THE EDITORIAL OFFICE

The Editorial Board thanks Michael Hymers and Luc Faucher for their time spent on the editorial board, and welcomes to the board Matt Bedke and Tracy Issacs.

Most papers received by CJP are sent anonymously to two expert external referees. When papers are sent to referees, the Journal aims at a six-month response time for the author. For papers not sent for external review, the Journal aims at a three-month response time for authors.

All papers are given an initial anonymous review in the editorial office. Promising papers are sent to an editor in their area, who may then send them (anonymously) to two referees. Papers with two strong referees' reports and the endorsement of the editor are sent to the editorial board as a whole, still anonymously, for discussion and a vote on acceptance.

Because of the number of papers it receives, CJP is normally able to consider papers of no longer than 10,000 words. Longer papers may be returned to authors with a suggestion to shorten them or to submit them elsewhere.

CJP is available at its own website, on an open access model, but with a twenty-four month embargo on current content to protect our revenues from other sources:

<http://www.canadianjournalofphilosophy.com>

Almost all authors are now submitting their papers electronically. This enables us to process papers more quickly, within the constraints mentioned above. Papers should be sent to Marda Schindeler, the Journal's Executive Secretary, at cjp@uleth.ca, in either Word or WordPerfect (native and RFT file format), and formatted according to the Journal's directions for authors.
