At the height of the religious ferment of the 1970s, David Van Zandt studied firsthand the most vilified of the new radical religious movements—the Children of God, or the Family of Love. First feigning membership and later gaining the permission of the Family, the author lived full-time in COG colonies in England and the Netherlands. From that experience, he has produced an informed, insightful, and humane report on how COG members function in what seems to be a completely bizarre setting. This is a vivid eyewitness account that will fascinate anyone interested in life in modern radical communal religions. Cloth: $24.95 ISBN 0-691-09463-2

Spinoza and Other Heretics

The Marrano of Reason • The Adventures of Immanence

Yirmiyahu Yovel

The Marrano of Reason and The Adventures of Immanence present Baruch Spinoza as the most outstanding and influential thinker of modernity—and examine the issue of whether he was the “first secular Jew.” Yirmiyahu Yovel locates the origins of Spinoza’s “philosophy of immanence” in the culture of the Marranos—Jews in Spain and Portugal who had been forcibly converted to Christianity—and discloses the presence of Spinoza’s philosophical revolution in the work of later thinkers who shaped the modern mind—including Goethe, Kant, Hegel, Heine, Marx, Nietzsche, Freud, and Einstein.

Egypt, Canaan, and Israel in Ancient Times

Donald B. Redford

Covering the time span from the Paleolithic period to the destruction of Jerusalem in 586 B.C., the eminent Egyptologist Donald Redford explores three thousand years of uninterrupted contact between Egypt and Western Asia across the Sinai land-bridge. Why did Egypt act like a magnet on the peoples of Palestine? And what did Egypt see in the area later called the Holy Land? Why did she create an empire there?

In answering these questions, Redford argues that Egypt's attitude arose from a fundamental position adopted toward Asia in general. This stance was taken by Pharaonic civilization centuries before the Israelites appeared and prevailed long after the end of the Biblical period.

Intertwined Worlds

Medieval Islam and Bible Criticism

Hava Lazarus-Yafeh

Exploring the lively polemics among Jews, Christians, and Muslims during the Middle Ages, Hava Lazarus-Yafeh analyzes Muslim critical attitudes toward the Bible, some of which share common features with both pre-Islamic and early modern European Bible criticism.

Muslim critics drew on pre-Islamic, Gnostic, and other sectarian writings as well as on Rabbinic and Christian sources. Elements of this criticism may have later influenced Western thinkers and helped shape early modern Bible scholarship.

"This book deals with an important and surprisingly neglected subject of concern both for Islamic and for Biblical studies."

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

1. Contributions in duplicate and books for review should be sent to Mr Peter Byrne at Department of Theology and Religious Studies, King's College London, Strand, London WC2R 2LS.
2. Articles submitted to the journal should in general be between 5,000 and 10,000 words long, though articles outside these limits will be acceptable if there is some good reason for their exceptional length or brevity. Articles in two or more parts may occasionally be accepted provided each part is independently intelligible. They should normally be in English.
3. Submission of an article is taken to imply that it has not previously been published, or is not being considered for publication elsewhere.
4. Contributions should be clearly typed in double spacing, preferably on A4 paper, with a wide left-hand margin. The typescript should be prepared to accord as closely as possible with the typographical conventions of the journal.
5. Footnotes should be used sparingly: in general, to give sources of direct quotations, references to main authorities on disputable questions, and evidence relied on for a new or unusual conclusion. They should be numbered in one sequence throughout the article, and should preferably be typed in double spacing at the end of the article.
6. Contributors should keep one copy of the typescript for correcting proofs.
7. First proofs may be read and corrected by contributors provided that they can give the Editor an address through which they can be reached without delay and can guarantee to return the corrected proofs to the Editor, by airmail where necessary, within ten days of receiving them.
8. Correction should be kept to an absolute minimum. It should be confined to errors of the typist or printer unless the Editor authorises otherwise.
9. All contributors of articles receive 50 free offprints. Reviewers will receive five or more offprints of their reviews.
10. If rejected manuscripts are to be returned, stamps or international coupons should be sent to cover postage, but it would normally be simpler just to retain a copy.
11. Contributors of accepted articles will be asked to assign their copyrights, on certain conditions, to Cambridge University Press, to help protect their material, particularly in the USA.
