European Community Law and National Law: Cases on Their Relationship

Andrew Oppenheimer, Editor

This is the first casebook devoted entirely to the relationship between European Community law and the national laws of the Member States. It contains some ninety decisions of both the Community's Court of Justice and the national courts of the twelve Member States, translated into English wherever necessary. Its ease of reference, with concise summaries, key-word headings preceding every case, and an alphabetical digest, makes the volume both a comprehensive reference work and a detailed introduction to the working relationship between Community law and national law.

The Refugees Convention, 1951

The Travaux Préparatoires Analysed with a Commentary by Dr. Paul Weis

Paul Weis

This book provides the first authoritative commentary on Articles 2-37, in which the rights of refugees were also enshrined in 1951. Both a commentator on the travaux préparatoires and a former refugee, Paul Weis' direct participation in the process that led to the adoption of the Convention by the United Nations in 1951 has enabled him to provide an invaluable guide to the understanding of the text.

Regional Peacekeeping and International Enforcement: The Liberian Crisis

Marc Weller, Editor

This book reproduces significant documents, many of which are not otherwise available, including statements of the parties to the conflict, official documents emanating from ECOWAS detailing its peace-keeping efforts, and materials relating to the involvement of the United Nations and humanitarian organisations in the conflict. A substantive introduction provides a detailed analysis of the legal issues raised by this controversial operation.

American Journal of International Law

Cumulative Index 1981-1990

With over 12,000 entries, this ten-year index to the AJIL is thorough and highly specific in its coverage. The Table of Cases pinpoints the location of over 800 cases that have been discussed over the course of a decade in the AJIL. The Subject Index displays headings in bold-faced print, in addition to alphabetically listing the title of articles and the names of authors.

In this age of computerized research, the Cumulative Index is also a useful companion to researchers conducting online searches of some 10,000 pages on either LEXIS® or WESTLAW®.

For all concerned with international law and international relations, the new Cumulative Index is unquestionably an indispensable and authoritative resource.

CUMULATIVE DIGEST OF UNITED STATES PRACTICE IN INTERNATIONAL LAW, 1981-1988. BOOK I.

Book I of the Cumulative Digest of United States Practice in International Law, 1981-1988 (xvi, 1311), published by the Department of State, became available at the U.S. Government Printing Office in April. It includes materials on which work was first begun in 1989, as well as a number of articles originally submitted by its Editor, Marian Nash (Leich), to the Journal under "Contemporary Practice of the United States Relating to International Law".

The contents of the five chapters in Book I cover the following subjects: (1) International Law in General (nature, sources, relation to municipal law); (2) Subjects of International Law (states, continuity and succession of states, diplomatic relations and recognition, international organizations, self-governing and non-self-governing territories, trust and former trust territories, and other subjects of international law, such as Antarctica, Commission of the European Communities, insurgent movements (the Palestine Liberation Organization), Jerusalem, and the U.N. Council for Namibia); (3) The Individual in International Law (nationality, passports and other travel documents, aliens, refugees, extradition, and protection of human rights); (4) State Representation (diplomatic missions and embassy property, consular officers and consulates, special trade missions and trade delegations, and foreign agents); and (5) The Law of Treaties and Other International Agreements (conclusion and entry into force, observance, application, and interpretation, amendment and modification, invalidity, termination and suspension of operation, and executive agreements).

Although the work of many members of the Department's Office of the Legal Adviser, past and present, is embodied in various documents without specific attribution, the authorship of all direct Digest contributions is identified by the initials of the drafters, who included members of other U.S. Government departments or agencies. Full names appear in the Introduction. The work product of the Legal Advisers themselves is also indicated.

Human Rights: An Agenda for the Next Century

Louis Henkin and John Lawrence Hargrove, Editors

The end of the Cold War has transformed the international human rights agenda for centuries to come. It has made it possible to take a fresh look at what half a century has done with the human rights idea, and has raised hopes of developing additional rights as well as more effective international enforcement of established rights. At the same time, it has spawned new conflicts, which have brought terrible events calling urgently for new means of responding to massive human rights violations. This 524-page book is the work of a group convened to study issues addressed at the UN World Conference on Human Rights held in Vienna in June 1993. It provides a basis for recommendations to the World Conference and to U.S. officials for action in response to the challenges facing the world at the turn of the century.

SPRINGER FOR INTERNATIONAL LAW

Max-Planck-Institute for International Law

Prepared By: R. HOFMANN, J. KOKOTT, K.OELLERS-FRAHM, S. OETER and A. ZIMMERMAN

WORLD COURT DIGEST

Volume I: 1986-1990

This current volume presents the important issues of international law, covering the period of 1986-1990. The compilation of this reference is a new start of an old activity of the Max-Planck-Institute for Foreign Public Law and International Law. Since 1931, a Digest of the Decisions of the Permanent Court and later, the International Court of Justice has been published. The last volume appeared in 1990 covering the period of 1976-1985. In the World Court Digest, the general pattern of the earlier volumes has been maintained but a few important changes should be noted. The parts of the judgements or separate opinions reproduced are frequently longer, to make it easier for the reader to see the context of a specific statement. Separate opinions are being reproduced in a restrictive manner, only where they concern essential points of a judgement. The World Court Digest should prove to be a valuable reference for all those involved with international law.

Yearbook of International Environmental Law

Volume 4

Edited by GÜNTER HANDL
Wayne State University Law School

Established in 1990 and now published by Oxford University Press, this major Yearbook draws contributors from around the world to provide the most reliable, up-to-date, and comprehensive review of internationally significant developments in environmental law. A "Year-in-Review" section summarizes year-by-year trends and each volume also features a documents section, a bibliography, and theoretical articles and book reviews. As part of an attempt to increase awareness of the subject throughout the world, Oxford University Press has more than halved the price of the Yearbook.

Charter of the United Nations

A Commentary

Edited by BRUNO SIMMA, University of Munich

Written as a guide to the U.N. Charter for practicing lawyers as well as scholars, and originally published to wide acclaim in German, the Commentary provides an article-by-article account of the legislative history, interpretation, and practical application of each Charter provision, and is the first commentary in any language to take into account the complete workings of the U.N. The English translation has been fully revised and updated since the appearance of the German edition, with most of the articles updated to November 1993. At once scholarly, authoritative, and immensely practical, this single volume will make a significant impact on the ways in which the U.N. Charter is discussed and understood.

New on International Law

Federal Union, Modern World

The Law of Nations in an Age of Revolutions, 1776-1814

Peter Onuf and
Nicholas Onuf

In this thought-provoking analysis of international relations, the Onufs deepen our understanding of the ideas that forged the law of nations in a world of revolutions. Federal

Union, Modern World relates the emergence of the modern concept of state-societies to the remarkable experiments in constitution-making in the United States. It shows how efforts to model a federal union in America influenced the broader relations of European nation-states.

Relying on ancient and early modern sources prominent in the minds of the Founders, the authors show how the idea of a federalism was applied to the nations of the world. This profound paradigm shift in international relations split the law of nations from naturalism and grafted it onto modern ideas of liberalism.

The formation of the United States as a federation, argue the Onufs, "expressed Enlightenment impulses . . . more fully than any contemporaneous developments in Europe." Furthermore, as the Founders attempted to secure a tenable position for their creation, they inspired a shift in international relations theory from natural legal doctrine to the positive law of states.

This relevant and timely study of international union and disunion informs us as much about the decades of revolution as it does about the context of international relations and federalism in our own time.

"Federal Union, Modern World is an excellent volume and an evident collaborative success."—James Farr, University of Minnesota

Introduction to Foreign Legal Systems

Richard A. Danner and
Marie-Louise H. Bernal, Editors

♦ 1994

♦ ISBN:0-379-21350-8

♦ 456 pgs.

$85.00

Introduction to Foreign Legal Systems, the valuable new work from the American Association of Law Libraries (AALL) and Oceana Publications, has been designed specifically with you in mind.

This is a text written by subject area specialists, it is not a collection of proceedings! Introduction to Foreign Legal Systems is the outgrowth from the first AALL/Oceana research institute (Winter '93)*. It provides in-depth analysis and expert guidance on accessing information. You will now be able to locate the right resources easily and skillfully.

Topics include:

- ♦ Comparing Legal Systems
- ♦ Resources for foreign law researchers
- ♦ Foreign Law Collection Building
(including translation problems/sources & acquisition of materials from difficult jurisdictions)
- ♦ African Legal Systems
- ♦ Asian Legal Systems
- ♦ Civil Law Systems
(including France & Mexico)

* In an effort to provide law librarians with instruction on foreign legal systems and legal research in foreign, comparative and international law, the AALL and Oceana have just concluded three in a series of five co-sponsored institutes. Texts from each institute are being co-published by the AALL and Oceana. This series is an essential for anyone building or completing an international collection of legal materials, or needs source information or expert guidance on research techniques. Introduction to Foreign Legal Systems, the first institute's publication is being met with critical acclaim by law librarians nationwide. Look for the forthcoming publications from the second and third institutes: Introduction to International Organizations (Summer '93) and Transnational Legal Transactions (Summer '94); and mark your calendar for the fourth research institute which will focus its attention on international taxation and business, to be held July 1995 in Philadelphia, PA.

International and Comparative Law Quarterly

BOARD OF EDITORS

General Editor: Hazel Fox

P. B. Carter, Lawrence Collins, Piers Gardner, John A. Usher

Why subscribe to the I.C.L.Q.? Because the I.C.L.Q. is the leading journal in the English language providing comprehensive coverage, quality, and worldwide participation in International Law, Comparative Law, EC Law, Conflict of Laws, Human Rights and Commonwealth Law. Since the work of leading experts and scholars is published, no law teacher, writer or student of these areas of law can afford to ignore the I.C.L.Q. It is the journal of the British Institute of International and Comparative Law, whose Chairman is Lord Goff of Chieveley. Professor Rosalyn Higgins, Lawrence Collins and the Rt. Hon. the Lord Slynn of Hadley are the Chairmen of the sections of the Institute's Advisory Board.

Contents: Each quarterly part contains 250 pages of articles, such as: THE FRENCH CONSTITUTION AND THE TREATY OF MAASTRICHT (Peter Oliver), CORPORATE CRIMINAL LIABILITY: A COMPARATIVE PERSPECTIVE (Guy Stessens), THE EUROPEAN CONVENTION ON HUMAN RIGHTS, CUSTOMARY INTERNATIONAL LAW AND THE CONSTITUTION (Andrew J. Cunningham) and REPRODUCTIVE TECHNOLOGY, TRANSEXUALISM AND HOMOSEXUALITY: NEW PROBLEMS FOR INTERNATIONAL PRIVATE LAW (Kenneth McK. Norrie). The section of shorter articles, comments and notes has recently featured such pieces as IMPROPERLY OBTAINED EVIDENCE AND PUBLIC POLICY: AN AUSTRALIAN PERSPECTIVE (Frank Bates) and SOERING'S LEGACY: THE HUMAN RIGHTS COMMITTEE AND THE JUDICIAL COMMITTEE OF THE PRIVY COUNCIL TAKE A WALK DOWN DEATH ROW (William A. Schabas). There is also a current developments section which deals alternately with EC and Public International Law, a collection of book reviews and a list of books received.

Freedom for the Seas in the 21st Century

Ocean Governance and Environmental Harmony

Edited by Jon M. Van Dyke,
Durwood Zaelke, and
Grant Hewison

Published by Island Press

Co-Winner of the 1994 Sprout Award for best book on international environmental affairs

Freedom for the Seas in the 21st Century brings together leading international experts on marine policy to address current threats to the health of the seas and to offer new approaches to the challenge of protecting our marine environment. The paradigm presented is one of ocean governance rather than of law or policy; it challenges the prevailing concept of "freedom of the seas" and calls instead for a governing notion of "freedom for the seas" where the primary goal is in the protection of ecological vitality.

Topics covered include:

- strategies for controlling ocean pollution
- regulation of high-seas fishing
- defects in current deep seabed mining regulatory provisions
- threats to the marine environment posed by military activities

Jon M. Van Dyke is Professor of Law at the University of Hawaii and Director of the University of Hawaii Institute for Peace.

Durwood Zaelke is President of the Center for International Environmental Law and Adjunct Professor of Law at American University.

Grant Hewison is a Law Fellow at CIEL.

"At last—a book that can jolt mankind out of the dangerously optimistic attitude that the oceans are infinitely resilient. Readers will be inspired. Shining through the entire volume is a resounding sea change in attitude, a shift from mankind's self-centered terrestrial view to a perspective that acknowledges the overwhelming importance of the sea to our species—and all of life on Earth."

— Dr. Sylvia A. Earle, former Chief Scientist, National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, and holder of the world record for deepest untethered dive

"By explicitly focusing on that part of international law which is based in idealist theories, this book is less interested in examining the is than outlining the ought or the possible. Its thesis that the Convention on the Law of the Seas has within it sufficiently radical components that could be an engine of transforming international relations is a provocative and important approach."

— Leonard P. Hirsh, International Liaison, Office of International Relations, Smithsonian Institution in announcing Freedom for the Seas in the 21st Century as the co-winner of the 1994 Sprout Award for best book on international environmental affairs.

"This book provides signposts for the future preservation of our oceans. To ignore them is to continue the current crisis in ocean governance."

— Sir Geoffrey Palmer, former Prime Minister of New Zealand

FORDHAM UNIVERSITY
SCHOOL OF LAW

MASTER OF LAWS PROGRAM

LL.M. degrees in:

*BANKING, CORPORATE & FINANCE LAW
INTERNATIONAL BUSINESS & TRADE LAW*

The Graduate Program of Fordham University Law School offers two courses of study leading to graduate degrees. Students may pursue either course of study on a full or part-time basis.

International business and trade law, along with banking, corporate and finance law, are vitally important and expanding areas of law today, given the interdependence of the United States and its trading partners and the convergence of the banking, corporate, insurance and other financial sectors. Fordham Law School has developed special resources and expertise in these areas. Fordham University School of Law has been the leading U.S. center for the study of European Community Law for two decades. It is also one of the few law schools in the country with advanced curriculum in banking law and regulation.

The Graduate Program is limited to forty students, full and part-time, in any academic year. For a catalogue and application contact:
