Performance Research

Performance Research features documents, original art and text works, new scholarship and criticism, profiles of individual artists and companies as well as book, archive and performance reviews.

Performance Research brings together informed critical writing with the work of new and established artists within an exciting exchange of ideas, images and analysis. The innovative and flexible format charts the often difficult and unstable field of contemporary art and performance. The journal is international in scope with an emphasis on contemporary European performance in both old and new media.

'fulfils a genuine need... the journal's most convincing writing captures, through an interdisciplinary approach, the essence of contemporary performances... Such well-written, informative and stimulating articles give performance art credibility'

IAN MITCHELL, THE TIMES HIGHER

General Editor: Richard Gough
Joint Editors: Claire MacDonald, Ric Allsopp
Consultant Editor: Talia Rodgers
