What Can She Know?

Feminist Theory and the Construction of Knowledge

By LORRAINE CODE. "A splendid book. Code surveys and discusses a great range of recent feminist writings. She also has a distinctive line of her own. This is feminist philosophy at its very best."

—Annette C. Baier, University of Pittsburgh. $42.50 cloth, $14.95 paper

Whose Science? Whose Knowledge?

Thinking from Women's Lives

By SANDRA HARDING. "Must reading."—Anne Fausto-Sterling, author of Myths of Gender. Harding argues persuasively that Western science explains the world from the perspective of the white male scientist and that a feminist approach could revitalize and transform the scientific enterprise. $34.50 cloth, $12.95 paper

The Interpretive Turn

Philosophy, Science, Culture

Edited by DAVID R. HILEY, JAMES BOHMAN, and RICHARD SHUSTERMAN. In philosophy and the sciences the turn to interpretation has challenged many fundamental assumptions, forcing scholars to contest the status of knowledge claims. Fifteen new essays here address aspects of the relationship between the human and the natural sciences, as well as epistemological and normative issues in interpretation. $39.95 cloth, $12.95 paper

Place, Void, and Eternity

By PHILOPONUS and SIMPLICIUS. Translated by David Furley and Christian Wildberg. This volume makes available in translation two key documents from the commentaries on Aristotle's Physics by the sixth-century philosophical adversaries Philoponus and Simplicius: Philoponus' Corollaries on Place and Void and a polemical excerpt in which Simplicius seeks to refute Philoponus' case against Aristotle's concept of an eternal world. Ancient Commentators on Aristotle. $44.50

Value-Free Science?

Purity and Power in Modern Knowledge

Robert N. Proctor

Why have scientists shied away from politics, or defended their work as value free? How has the ideal of neutrality come to dominate the world of science? These are some of the core questions that Robert Proctor addresses in this provocative look at the politics of modern science. Proctor lucidly demonstrates how value-neutrality is a reaction to larger political developments, including the use of science by government and industry, the specialization of professional disciplines, and efforts to stifle intellectual freedoms or to politicize the world of the academy.

QUESTIONS OF SCIENCE

One Long Argument

Charles Darwin and the Genesis of Modern Evolutionary Thought

Ernst Mayr

In this gem of historical scholarship, Ernst Mayr achieves a remarkable distillation of Darwin's scientific thought and his enormous legacy to twentieth-century biology. Here is a book by a grand master that spells out in simple terms the revolutionary ideas that Darwin thrust upon the world.
