HARVARD THEOLOGICAL REVIEW 75:2

HTR

Issued Quarterly by the Faculty of Divinity in Harvard University

The Harvard Theological Review is maintained on the foundation established under the will of Mildred Everett, daughter of Charles Carroll Everett, Bussey Professor of Theology in Harvard University, 1869-1900, and Dean of the Faculty of Divinity, 1878-1900. The scope of the Review embraces theology, ethics, the history and philosophy of religion, and cognate subjects. It aims to publish investigations, discussions, and reviews which contribute to the enlargement of knowledge or the advance of thought.

The four issues of Harvard Theological Review 75 (1982) are printed from camera-ready copy typed by our staff. The transition to a new operation of production of the Journal as well as our efforts to bring the Journal back to a regular publication schedule have made it necessary for us temporarily to suspend regular type-setting, which we intend to resume with volume 76:1 or as soon as our reorganization is completed. Issues 1-4 of HTR 75 will be produced and mailed in rapid succession during the remaining months of this year, and HTR 76:1, we trust, should be in your hands early next year. I am confident that the Journal in its present format will be as pleasing to the eye as the contents of the articles will be stimulating to the mind of the reader.
