Thoreau's Reading

A Study in Intellectual History with Bibliographical Catalogue

Robert Sattelmeyer

Thoreau's Reading charts Henry Thoreau's intellectual growth and its relation to his literary career from 1833, when he entered Harvard College, to his death in 1862. It also furnishes a catalogue of nearly fifteen hundred entries of his reading. The catalogue provides bibliographical data for, and lists all Thoreau's references to, the books and articles that he read.

The introductory essay traces the shifts in his literary career marked in the chronology of his reading. The book reveals a Thoreau who was deeply interested in and conversant with the major intellectual questions of his times and whose stance of withdrawal from his age masked a lively involvement with many of its most perplexing questions.

In Search of Florentine Civic Humanism

Essays on the Transition from
Medieval to Modern Thought

Hans Baron

Hans Baron's Crisis of the Early Italian Renaissance is widely considered one of the most important works in Italian Renaissance studies. Now the Press makes available a two-volume collection of eighteen of Professor Baron's essays, most of them thoroughly revised, unpublished, or presented in English for the first time.

The book includes studies of medieval antecedents and special studies of Petrarch, Leonardo Bruni, and Leon Battista Alberti. It offers a thoroughly re-conceived profile of Machiavelli and culminates in a reassessment of Jacob Burckhardt's pioneering thought on the Renaissance.

Fabricating History English Writers on the French Revolution

Barton R. Friedman

Barton Friedman demonstrates the ways in which English men of letters in the nineteenth century attempted to grasp the dynamics of history. The authors he discusses—Blake, Scott, Hazlitt, Carlyle, Dickens, and Hardy—found in the French Revolution an event more compelling as a paradigm of history than their own "Glorious Revolution." To them the French Revolution seemed universally significant. For these writers maintaining the distinction between "history" and "fiction" was less important than making sense of epochal historical events in symbolic terms.

Ancient Scripts and Modern Experience on the English Stage, 1500–1700

Bruce R. Smith

It was not until the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries that tragedy and comedy regained their ancient importance as ways of giving dramatic coherence to human events. Ancient Scripts and Modern Experience on the English Stage charts that rediscovery not in the pages of scholars' books, but on the stages of England's schools, colleges, inns of court, and royal court, and, finally, in the public theaters of sixteenth- and seventeenth-century London.

Blindness and Autobiography

Al-Ayyām of Tāhā Husayn

Fedwa Malti-Douglas

The three-volume life-story of the Egyptian intellectual Tāhā Husayn (1889–1973) is a landmark in modern autobiography, in Arabic letters, and in the literature of blindness. This justly celebrated text, however, has never been subjected to the sustained literary analysis here presented by Fedwa Malti-Douglas, who shows that the personal, social, and literary reality of the hero's blindness gives the autobiography its unity and force. Blindness and Autobiography is not only a rich explication of al-Ayyām but a pioneering study of the interaction between a severe physical handicap and the autobiographical process.
