Studies in Church History 55 takes as its theme ‘Churches and Education’. It offers a collection of peer reviewed articles selected from the range of communications presented at the Ecclesiastical History Society’s Summer Conference and Winter Meeting 2017–18, which took place at the University of Exeter and at the Institute for Historical Research, London under the presidency of Professor Morwenna Ludlow.

As is apparent from this rich collection of articles, Professor Ludlow’s chosen theme, ‘Churches and Education’, generated considerable interest, and the resulting volume offers insights into a wide range of educational projects through which the Church has presented itself and its beliefs. We are grateful to Professor Ludlow for identifying this theme and also for the commitment she has shown to the society as its president during 2017–18. Our thanks go also to all those who contributed papers at the conferences, attended sessions and enhanced the quality of this volume by acting as peer reviewers. We thank particularly the authors of the articles which appear in this volume. We are particularly grateful to Dr Tim Grass for his careful editorial work and his engagement in so many aspects of the society’s work, and to the Ecclesiastical History Society for funding his post.

The Summer Conference and Winter Meeting could not have taken place without the sterling work of the society’s conference secretary, Dr David Hart, who was assisted by the conference teams at the University of Exeter and by staff at the IHR, and by the society’s secretary, Dr Gareth Atkins, and treasurer, Simon Jennings. Our thanks, and those of all who participated, go to them all.

The Ecclesiastical History Society awards two prizes for articles accepted for publication in Studies in Church History. The Kennedy Prize, for the best contribution by a postgraduate student, has this year been awarded to Jennifer Bond for her article “‘The One for the Many’: Zeng Baosun, Louise Barnes and the Yifang School for Girls at Changsha, 1893–1927’. The President’s Prize, for the best contribution by an early career scholar, goes to Dr Marina Xiaojing Wang for her article ‘Western Establishment or Chinese Sovereignty? The Tientsin Anglo-Chinese College during the Restore Educational Rights Movement, 1924–7’. We are delighted to present these fascinating insights into the history of Christian education in China, and congratulate both authors.

Figs 3–4: The hour lines of lunation on the first face of the first disc of Richard of Wallingford's Albion. The two medium-sized circles should intersect on the horizontal diameter DGB; this has been done successfully in Fig. 3 (left), but in Fig. 4 (John Westwyk's copy) the intersection is clearly too low. Westwyk also did not divide the inner, middle and outer circles evenly into the correct number of parts. Oxford, Corpus Christi College, MS 144, fol. 58^v; Bodl., MS Laud Misc. 657, fol. 15^v.
