“Affording Defense, is a concise summary of the pressing problems we face in providing an effective and affordable defense for the future. Jack [Gansler] is right to start with the need for a thorough review of our nation’s long-term strategy. Only with a firm strategic foundation can we build a defense establishment that will meet our Nation’s requirements into the next century.”—Sam Nunn, Chairman, United States Senate Committee on Armed Services

AFFORDING DEFENSE

Jacques S. Gansler

Gansler’s sensible proposals for reform and revitalization are based on extensive research and on his broad experience in private industry and in weapons procurement for the Department of Defense. He identifies areas where armed conflict may break out in the future, and considers the development of defense strategy and the difficult choices to be faced in carrying out that strategy.
