The Xiamen Academy of International Law

The Xiamen Academy of International Law aims to promote academic exchanges among legal communities across the globe, encourage examination of major international issues and, by so doing, seek ways to improve the possibilities for world peace and international cooperation. It seeks to achieve this aim by providing the highest level of education to individuals, particularly those from Asian countries, interested in the development and use of international law – persons such as young lecturers in international law, diplomats, practitioners of transnational law, government officials in charge of foreign affairs, and officials of international organizations. The Program of Summer Courses it offers has been designed to be both practical and highly scholarly. These courses are given in English or French, and are taught by highly qualified legal professionals. They are published in the Collected Courses of the Xiamen Academy of International Law.

Settling Self-Determination Disputes

Complex Power-Sharing in Theory and Practice

Edited by Marc Weller and Barbara Metzger
Assistant Editor: Niall Johnson

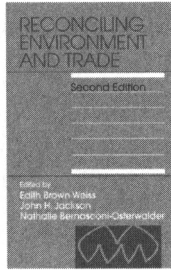

- May 2008
- ISBN 978 90 04 16482 6
- Hardback (900 pp.)
- List price EUR 185.- / US$ 265.-

The study is the result of an international collaborative project supported and funded by the Carnegie Corporation of New York. The project team was united in its wish to explore whether long-standing secessionist conflicts have been addressed effectively through the significant number of self-determination settlements that were generated in response to the wave of internal conflicts of the 1990s.

- Hardback (482 pp.)
- List price EUR 160.- / US$ 238.-

International frontiers and boundaries separate land, rivers and lakes subject to different sovereignties. Frontiers are zones of varying widths and they were common many centuries ago. By 1900 frontiers had almost disappeared and had been replaced by boundaries that are lines. The divisive nature of frontiers and boundaries has formed the focus of inter-disciplinary studies by economists, geographers, historians, lawyers and political scientists. Scholars from these disciplines have produced a rich literature dealing with frontiers and boundaries. The authors surveyed this extensive literature and the introduction reveals the themes which have attracted most attention.

Multilevel Regulation and the EU

The Interplay between Global, European and National Normative Processes

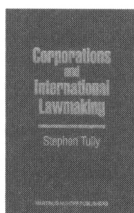

Edited by Andreas Follesdal, Ramses A. Wessel and Jan Wouters

- February 2008
- ISBN 978 90 04 16438 3
- Hardback (xxii, 426 pp.)
- List price EUR 150.- / US$ 223.-

This book introduces the notion of 'multilevel regulation' as a way to study these normative processes and the interplay between different legal orders. It indicates that many rules in such areas as trade, financial cooperation, food safety, pharmaceuticals, security, terrorism, civil aviation, environmental protection or the internet find their origin in international cooperation.

Corporations and International Lawmaking

Stephen Tully

- October 2007
- ISBN 978 1 5710 5372 5
- Hardback (528 pp.)
- List price EUR 125.- / US$ 125.-

The classical model of international lawmaking posits governments as exclusively authoritative actors. However, commercially-oriented entities have long been protagonists within the prevailing international legal order, concluding contracts and resolving disputes with governments. Is the international legal personality of corporations undergoing further qualitative transformations?

The Landmark Rulings of the Inter-American Court of Human Rights on the Rights of the Child

Protecting the Most Vulnerable at the Edge

Mónica Fera Tinta

- March 2008
- ISBN 978 90 04 16513 7
- Hardback (xxiv, 672 pp.)
- List price EUR 195.- / US$ 291.-
- International Studies in Human Rights, 96

This is the first comprehensive treatment of the topic of the Rights of the Child as reflected in the jurisprudence of the Inter-American Court of Human Rights. It reviews all decisions of the Inter-American Court relating to the Rights of the Child and analyses the principles held therein making them available to practitioners, academics and students of this area of the law.

LAW ACROSS BORDERS

Law Across Borders, a new series by Aspen Publishers, is being offered to professors who want to introduce an international perspective into their courses easily and confidently.

These brief paperbacks, 150-250 pages in length, will center around a single high-interest problem of international significance as it pertains to a specific course area. The problem orientation will offer a framework for asking fundamental questions and teaching students how to think about international law issues. Each title in the series will be accompanied by Professor's Notes that explain how the author uses his or her materials in their class.

New Titles Available in 2009:

- Plea Bargaining Across Borders Civil Procedure
Jenia I. Turner
- Climate Change and Property Rights

INTERNATIONAL LAW

THE POWER AND PURPOSE OF INTERNATIONAL LAW

MARY ELLEN O'CONNELL, Robert and Marion Short Chair in Law at the University of Notre Dame Law School

By exploring the roots and history of international law this book demonstrates the why and the how of international law and its enforcement. It directly confronts the notion that international law is "powerless" and that working within the framework of international law is useless or counter-productive.

NAVAL WAR COLLEGE, NEWPORT, RI

PROFESSOR, INTERNATIONAL AND OPERATIONAL LAW

The Naval War College is seeking an experienced international law attorney to fill a new position in the International Law Department at the earliest opportunity, but not earlier than August 18, 2008, at an academic rank of Associate Professor of Law or Professor of Law, determined by the successful candidate's experience level. The successful applicant will be expected to research, publish, and teach in the international and operational law field, focusing on the law as it impacts the planning and conduct of military operations. Participation in selected war games and various conferences and seminars is required. Applicants must have a Juris Doctor or equivalent degree and must have either teaching experience at a graduate or law school level or substantial experience as a legal advisor to senior military operational commanders. Experience in both areas is preferred. Applicants must be U.S. citizens and hold or qualify for a Top Secret/SCI security clearance. This is a test designated position under the Department of Navy drug free workplace program requiring that the selected individual pass a drug screening test prior to appointment and randomly thereafter. Curriculum vitae or resume and cover letter must be postmarked no later than July 15, 2008 and sent to: Deputy Chairman, International Law Department (Code 36), Naval War College, 686 Cushing Road, Newport, RI 02841-1207. Questions concerning the position may be referred to Colonel Chip Boucher at leo.boucher@nwc.navy.mil. Details regarding the Naval War College and the curriculum of the courses can be obtained by visiting the Naval War College web site at www.nwc.navy.mil. Information concerning the International Law Department is at <http://www.nwc.navy.mil/cnws/ild/ild.aspx>. Applicants claiming Veterans Preference must state this information with their application. The Naval War College is an Equal Opportunity Employer.

Meet the New Global Arbitrators

THE INTERNATIONAL JUDGE

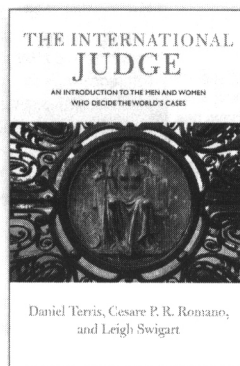

An Introduction to the Men and Women Who Decide the World's Cases

Daniel Terris, Cesare P.R. Romano, Leigh Swigart;

Foreword by Sonia Sotomayor

"This is a timely and interesting book on the judges who sit on international and transnational courts. I warmly commend this well written account of the most important issues facing those judges and the courts on which they sit. It is essential reading for practitioners, teachers and students who are interested in global justice."

—RICHARD J. GOLDSTONE, former justice of the Constitutional Court of South Africa and former chief prosecutor for the International Criminal Tribunals for the former Yugoslavia and Rwanda

"Unlike most treatments of the subject, it treats the judge—some 200 strong—as human beings and not as impersonal agents of 'legalization.' The book...addresses topics that are likely to become ever more timely as the judicialization of international law proceeds, including concerns over geographic and other forms of 'representation,' the prospects and limits of 'transjudicial' communication, and the likelihood of harmonized notions of professional ethics and avoidance of conflicts."

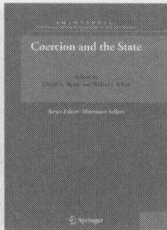

—JOSÉ E. ALVAREZ, Hamilton Fish Professor of International Law & Diplomacy, Columbia Law School

The World Trade Organization

A Legal and Institutional Analysis

The World Trade Organization, set up in 1995, has become a centrepiece of global economic governance in a fragmented international legal and institutional system. The WTO oversees an extensive body of international trade rules. But it has also become a widely contested organization, as its trade rules affect a great variety of rules and policies on environmental protection, public health, technical standards, cultural diversity, financial stability and professional qualifications. Whether it likes it or not, the WTO is put at the centre of global economic governance and no internationally oriented legal practitioner, government official, academic or student can afford to neglect this swiftly developing body of law. This book introduces the institutional and substantive legal aspects of the WTO. It thereby addresses both the vertical interactions of WTO law with domestic legal systems and the horizontal interactions between WTO rules and other areas of international regulation.

Starting from the history and theory of international trade law, the book discusses the content and application of the basic principles in the different WTO agreements.

Furthermore, it also clarifies the decision-making processes and dispute settlement system of the WTO.

Jurisdiction over Antitrust Violations in International Law

In a global economy, anticompetitive agreements and transactions often have transnational repercussions. In the absence of a global enforcer of antitrust or competition law, States have, since the Second World War, increasingly resorted to self-help. In other words, they have exercised unilateral jurisdiction over restrictive business practices they considered harmful to their economy, even when those practices originated abroad. Not surprisingly, this has often led to serious sovereignty concerns.

This book analyzes whether, and to what extent, the exercise of extraterritorial jurisdiction in cartel and merger matters is in fact lawful under international law. It does so from a transatlantic perspective, with an emphasis on practice in the United States and the European Community. The book mainly focuses on the use of the controversial effects and implementation doctrines of jurisdiction. Without turning a blind eye to the necessity of those doctrines in a decentralized global economy, it proposes a number of restraining principles in order to soothe other States' sovereignty concerns.

ELGAR EUROPEAN LAW SERIES

Elgar European Law Series

Series editor: John Usher

European integration is the driving force behind constant evolution and change in the laws of the member states and the institutions of the European Union. This important series offers short, state-of-the-art overviews of many specific areas of EU law, from competition law to consumer law and from environmental law to labor law. While most books take a thematic, vertical approach, others offer a more horizontal approach and consider the overarching themes of EU law.

Distilled from rigorous substantive analysis, and written by some of the best names in the field, as well as the new generation of scholars, these books are designed both to guide the reader through the changing legislation itself, and to provide a firm theoretical foundation for advanced study.

New Series International Commerce and Arbitration

The Resolution of International Investment Disputes: Challenges and Practical Solutions

by Mariel Dimsey

This work deals with the current state of investment dispute resolution and analyzes the problems associated with investor-state arbitration. In search of solutions, the author examines developments in the existing legal framework and looks at the mechanisms under existing domestic and international systems, such as judicial review and class actions, to see if these can be applied to investment dispute resolution.

The author concludes that the features of traditional arbitration are not flexible enough to meet the needs of this modern form of international dispute resolution: investment arbitration is now entering a new phase of its development. The traditional, typically arbitration-related issues of consent, privity and confidentiality are making room for the now more important questions of disclosure, transparency, legal certainty and consistency. The author calls for setting up a "model procedure" specifically created for international investment disputes as this would enable the establishment of a "tailor-made" process for this ever-growing area of law.

As investment dispute resolution gains in importance, a book that specifically deals with this issue and suggests ways of improving it, will be of interest to anyone interested in this field.

About the series

International Commerce and Arbitration is a new book series set up with the aim of establishing a collection of prominent studies in international commercial law and arbitration, aimed at practitioners (e.g. solicitors, in-house counsel, attorneys, arbitrators), in addition to scholars involved in the research and study of international commerce and arbitration. The series will be a useful source of information for those interested in the latest developments in international commercial law and arbitration. All volumes in the series have been peer reviewed.

The Series will focus on the following topics: International and European Contract Law; Electronic Commerce; International Sales; Agency and Distribution; Franchising; International Financing; International Secured Transactions; Conflict of Laws; International Civil Procedure; International Commercial Arbitration; International Investment Arbitration.

The series editor of International Commerce and Arbitration is Prof. Dr. iur. Ingeborg Schwenzer, LL.M. She is Professor of Private Law at the University of Basel, Switzerland.

You are invited to submit manuscripts or drafts of manuscripts to either Eleven International Publishing or directly to the series editor at: Prof. Dr. Ingeborg Schwenzer, Peter Merian-Weg 8, P.O. Box, CH-4002 Basel, Switzerland; e-mail: Ingeborg.Schwenzer@unibas.ch.

THE GRADUATE INSTITUTE | GENEVA

INSTITUT DE HAUTES ÉTUDES
INTERNATIONALES ET DU DÉVELOPPEMENT

GRADUATE INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL
AND DEVELOPMENT STUDIES

Welcome to International Law at the Graduate Institute of International and Development Studies, Geneva (The Graduate Institute, or IHEID). The International Law Unit is a high level and diverse academic community that is strongly engaged in the issues of theory, policy and practice that arise in international law today. It offers a unique graduate education in international law with a wide variety of courses at both the master s and doctoral level.

Master in International Studies (MIS), specialisation in International law

The MIS, undertaken with a specialisation in International Law, is a two year programme that provides in-depth training in international law. This programme also allows students to gain access, subject to certain conditions, to the Ph.D. programme in international law.

The MIS requires intensive work at an advanced level in the field of international law, and familiarization with at least one other discipline (international economics, political science or international history and politics).

The degree programme comprises compulsory courses, optional seminars and the writing of an original research dissertation in the course of the second year.

The MIS programme sets out to provide participants with the tools and approaches necessary for a rigorous analysis of contemporary international legal problems.

Ph.D. in International Studies, specialisation in International Law

The Ph.D. in International Studies with a specialisation in International Law is a four year programme preparing graduates for academic careers, as well as for executive and research positions in the public or private sector.

The Ph.D. curriculum requires students to undertake coursework prior to writing and defending a dissertation. This programme is a challenging degree tailored for exceptional Master's students with a strong commitment to the field of international law and proven abilities in independent inquiry and research.

More details on the MIS and Ph.D. programmes regarding admission requirements and courses offered are available on our website.

THE GRADUATE INSTITUTE | GENEVA

INTERNATIONALES ET DU DÉVELOPPEMENT

GRADUATE INSTITUTE OF INTERNATIONAL
AND DEVELOPMENT STUDIES

The International Law unit at the Graduate Institute

Our faculty members are respected international experts in their fields who are active in research and publication of their work, as well as providing advice to governments and international organisations, and serving on key bodies in their fields.

In both the Master's and Ph.D. programmes of the International Law Unit, teaching is structured around small classes (between 8 to 25 students). Both oral presentations and written research are encouraged and can be done in either English or French, the two working languages of the Institute.

The small size of the International Law Unit, in particular the favourable student to faculty ratio, allows for personal contact with professors and the active exchange of ideas amongst students. Discussions are also enriched by the international diversity of the faculty and the student body, which typically represents more than 80 different countries.

Outside the classroom, the International Law Unit is well connected to Geneva's international organisations and the international legal community. This allows classes to be supplemented by regular guest speakers. Students also benefit from an attractive variety of internships and employment opportunities, as well as exchange programs, with Harvard Law School and Michigan Law School, among other universities.

Many graduates of the Master's programme find positions at international organisations or non-governmental organisations. Others follow government careers or pursue careers in law firms. Graduates of the Ph.D. programme often work in similar organisations, although in higher-level positions. In particular, the International Law Unit has a number of alumni working as international lawyers. Alumni are also found teaching in international law at universities around the world.

For more information, please contact Ms. Guillemette Carlucci, Administrative Assistant of the International Law Unit, at law@graduateinstitute.ch.

SAY GOODBYE TO international law as we knew it.

To old ideas about environmental regulation, global financial transactions and the traditional hierarchies of domestic and international courts.

SAY HELLO TO international law as we're getting to know it.

One which recognizes that there are fewer degrees of separation between issues once treated in isolation. Like foreign investment and human rights. Or labor relations in one country and capital markets on the other side of the globe.

AT THE FOREFRONT OF THIS PRACTICE IS COLUMBIA.

With first-of-their-kind dual degree programs. Through joint programs with the U.N., as well as the schools of business, public health and public affairs. On campus, you'll find endowed centers for Chinese, Japanese and Korean legal studies. Elsewhere, you'll find double degree programs with law schools in Paris, Frankfurt and London. And everywhere we are, you'll see pioneering scholarship on everything from climate control to international terrorism.

All of it developing just as fast as the world is changing. And that's pretty fast indeed.

Dispute Settlement Reports 2006

By World Trade Organization

The Dispute Settlement Reports of the World Trade Organization (WTO) include Panel and Appellate Body reports, as well as arbitration awards, in disputes concerning the rights and obligations of WTO Members under the provisions of the Marrakesh Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization. These are the only authorized paginated reports in English. As such, they are an essential addition to the library of every practicing and academic trade lawyer, and will be widely consulted by students taking courses in international economic or trade law. The WTO authorized printed DSR volumes commenced publication with DSR, 1996:I. Publication of the Cambridge printed edition follows the WTO website publication of all new reports, which will continue in the three working languages of English, French and Spanish. Once a report has been released on the WTO website, it will be published in the next Cambridge printed volume.

International Law Reports

Elihu Lauterpacht and Christopher J. Greenwood
in association with Andrew Oppenheimer
Assisted by Karen Lee

The International Law Reports is the only publication in the world wholly devoted to the regular and systematic reporting in English of decisions of international courts and arbitrators as well as judgments of national courts. Since the Reports began in 1922 over 10,000 cases have been reported in full or digest form. This new companion volume is an indispensable guide to the Reports themselves, and also an essential compendium to the vast range of international law jurisprudence over the last eighty years. The Tables of Cases provide a complete consolidated list of cases included in volumes 1-125, arranged alphabetically and by jurisdiction and date. Early volumes in the series have been revisited in order to bring previous reference practice into conformity with current practice. This new consolidation offers easy access through a single point to the whole of international law jurisprudence in the years 1918-2000.

INTERNATIONAL LAW:

100 WAYS IT SHAPES OUR LIVES

Many find international law abstract and static. Topics such as war and peace or relationships between countries are considered by some to be not so much questions of law, but of power and influence. Others question the existence of international law.

International Law: 100 Ways It Shapes Our Lives was conceived from the proposition that international law not only exists, but also penetrates more deeply and broadly into everyday life than is generally recognized. Some ways are of relatively recent vintage, while others are long-standing. 100 examples were identified by ASIL members, vetted by a smaller group of experts, and organized into seven chapters: 1) daily life; 2) leisure; 3) travel; 4) commerce 5) health and the environment; 6) personal liberty; 7) public safety and global security.

Join us in demonstrating how international law shapes our lives by

- Visiting 100 Ways at <http://www.asil100.org/ways.html>;
- Using it in teaching and general civic education programs;
- Adding ways to the list; and
- Sharing your experiences using International Law: 100 Ways It Shapes Our Lives.

We hope that this creative and interactive project will help demonstrate the diversity and the centrality of international law to our lives today.
