

Alan Rosenthal receives the 1995 Charles E. Merriam Award from Program Co-Chair Mary Fainsod Katzenstein. Katzenstein hosted the Presentation of Awards Ceremony with her Program Co-Chair Peter J. Katzenstein.

with a paper presented was Liberalism and the American Political Condition, chaired by Jane Mansbridge of Northwestern University. The paper presented was authored by Michael Sandel of Harvard University, and discussed by Richard Rorty of the University of Virginia.

Other "top ten" panels included Liberalism and Its Alternative in International Relations: Are Paradigmatic and Methodological Debates Obsolete? (organized by International Political Economy); The Critique of Liberalism at Century's End and Roundtable on Nietzsche and Liberalism (organized by Foundations of Political Theory); and Roundtable on Trust as a Political Variable (organized by Political Economy.)

Association Distributes Annual Awards

The 1995 APSA Awards Ceremony, held August 31, featured a slate of 19 awards, including the Sola Pool Award and Lectureship given to a scholar exploring the implications of research on issues of politics in a global society and evoking the broad range of scholarship pursued by Ithiel de Sola Pool. On September 1, Putnam delivered the first of what will be triennial lectures. Entitled "Tuning In, Tuning Out: The Strange Disappearance of Social Capital in America," the piece appears in this issue of P.S. The Charles E. Merriam Award, given for the first time since 1987, was presented to Alan Rosenthal of Rutgers University. The award honors a scholar whose published work and career represents a significant contribution to the art of government through the application of social science research. Merriam Award Committee chair Twiley Barker, University of Illinois-Chicago noted "this is a career award and Alan's career reflects, in a profound way, the critical attributes that characterized Merriam's work. . . ." The revived Merriam Award will be presented on a biennial basis.

Seven dissertation prizes were presented at the Awards Ceremony. Included among the winners were two recent University of Chicago Ph.Ds. David Pizza, University of Chicago, was named winner of the William Anderson Award in presentation of one new and one revived award. Robert D. Putnam, Harvard University, was selected as winner of the inaugural Ithiel de Winners of the Franklin L. Burdette/Pi Sigma Alpha Award, Barry Weingast (l) and Kenneth Schultz (r) with committee chair Robert S. Erikson.

Peter Gourevitch, chair, Woodrow Wilson Foundation Award Committee and winner, Beth A. Simmons.

for the best paper at the 1994 annual meeting for "The Democratic Advantage: The Institutional Sources of State Power in International Competition." Gary King, Harvard University, and Andrew Gelman, University of California-Berkeley, were awarded the Heinz Eulau Award for the best article published in the American Political Science Review during 1994 for "Enhancing Democracy Through Legislative Redistricting."

Book award winners for 1995 included William H. Tucker, Rutgers University-Camden, who was presented with the Ralph J. Bunche Award for the best scholarly work published in 1994 exploring the phenomenon of ethnic and cultural pluralism for The Science and Politics of Racial Research (University of Illinois Press). Paul Pierson, Harvard University, accepted the Gladys M. Kammerer Award for the best political science publication in 1994 in the field of U.S. national policy for Dismantling the Welfare State (Cambridge University Press). Women and Politics Worldwide (Yale University Press), edited by Barbara Nelson, Radcliffe College, and Najma Chowdhury, University of Dhaka, was named winner of the Victoria Schuck Award for the best book published state and local politics and Walter Mattli, now at Columbia University, accepted the Helen Dwight Reid Award in international relations, law and politics. Mark Hansen and Charles Lipson served as dissertation chairs respectively. The Gabriel A. Almond Award in comparative politics was given to Jonah Levy, University of California-Berkeley; Suzanne Berger, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, dissertation chair. The Edward S. Corwin Award had co-winners in Cary Coglianese, Harvard University, and James Spriggs III, University of California-Davis. Kim Lane Scheppele, University of Michigan, and Lee Epstein, Washington University, served as dissertation chairs respectively. John Carey, University of Rochester, received the Harold D. Lasswell Award in policy studies. Arend Lijphart, University of California-San Diego, was his dissertation chair. Patrick Deneen, currently a post-doctoral fellow at the United States Information Agency received the Leo Strauss Award in political philosophy. Wilson Carey McWilliams, Rutgers University, served as his dissertation chair. Completing the year's dissertation awards, Robert C. Lieberman, Columbia University, was presented with the Leonard D. White Award in Public Administration; Paul E. Peterson, Harvard University, served as dissertation chair.

Barry Weingast and Kenneth Schultz of Stanford University were the recipients of the Franklin L. Burdette/Pi Sigma Alpha Award in 1994 on women and politics. Beth A. Simmons, Duke University, took home the 1995 Woodrow Wilson Foundation Award for the best book published in the United States during 1994 on government, politics or international affairs. Her winning book, Who Adjusts? Domestic Sources of Foreign Economic Policy During the Interwar Years, was published by Princeton University Press.

Barbara Nelson receives the Victoria Schuck Award from committee chair Eileen McDonagh.

The Benjamin E. Lippincott Award, given to a work of exceptional quality by a living political theorist that is still considered significant after a span of at least 15 years since the original publication, was awarded to Charles E. Lindblom of Yale University for Politics and Markets, The World's Political-Economic Systems. The 1978 winner of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation Award, Politics and Markets was published by Basic Books in 1977. Lindblom, a former APSA President (1981-82), later returned to the dais named as this year's John Gaus Distinguished Lecturer. The Gaus Award honors the recipient's lifetime of exemplary scholarship in the joint tradition of political science and public administration and, more generally, to encourage scholarship in public administration.

The Hubert H. Humphrey Award, presented each year in recognition of notable public service by a political scientist, was awarded to Madeleine Albright. Albright, formerly of Georgetown University, is currently U.S. Permanent Representative to the United Nations. Recognizing his pioneering work and "original vision," Brian Lamb, President and CEO, C-SPAN, was named winner of the Carey McWilliams Award, honoring his contribution to our understanding of politics.

A number of departments celebrated multiple award recipients. Harvard University faculty members Robert D. Putnam, Gary King and Paul Pierson each walked to the dais. Recent Harvard graduate Robert C. Lieberman was also a winner. Rutgers University APSA award winners, Patrick Deneen and Alan Rosenthal, were later joined by section award winners Elizabeth Kelly, who received her Ph.D. from Rutgers in 1990, recipient of the Michael Harrington Award from the Caucus for a New Political Science and Gerry Pomper, winner of the Samuel Eldersveld Career Achievement and Jack Walker Awards from the Political Organizations and Parties section. Details on all the Organized Section Awards follows later in Association News.

Travel Grants Bring International Scholars to Annual Meeting

In a continuing effort to internationalize the annual meeting, the APSA secured travel funding for 51 international scholars to attend the 1996 Annual Meeting in Chicago. Twenty-four international graduate students, representing 16 countries, were selected to receive travel money. These international students,

Annual Meeting Perspectives

Participation by Women in the 1995 APSA Annual Meeting

Martin Gruberg, University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh

Participation by women in the 1995 annual meeting continues its positive trend.

Year	CHAIRPERSONS
	Total	Women	%
1971	154	12	7.8
1981	137	16	11.7
1991	439	107	24.4
1992	463	106	22.9
1993	452	115	25.4
1994	509	164	32.2
1995	480	134	27.9
	PAPERGIVERS
1971	552	43	7.8
1981	520	98	18.8
1991	1940	512	26.4
1992	1986	445	22.5
1993	2053	525	25.6
1994	2200	576	26.2
1995	2160	598	27.7
	DISCUSSANTS
1971	184	13	7.1
1981	161	28	17.4
1991	455	120	26.4
1992	568	118	20.8
1993	521	152	29.2
1994	594	157	26.4
1995	583	157	26.9

Where women head divisions or panels, there is a greater likelihood of other women being selected for program contributions. This year (and next) we have a male and a female co-chairing the Program Committee. In 1995 19 of the 49 division persons were women (38.8%). The divisions they headed had women as 30.7% (59 of 192) of the chairpersons, 34.2% (287 of 839) of the papergivers, and 31.0% (66 of 213) of the discussants.

The program divisions led by women had 44.0% of the meeting's female panel chairs, 48.0% of the papergivers, and 42.0% of its discussants. Women-chaired panels had 41.0% female papergivers and 42.5% female discussants. These constituted 40.8% of the women giving papers at the 1994 convention and 43.3% of the women serving as discussants.

The divisions with the strongest female representation were those on Normative Political Theory, Foundations of Political Theory, Public Policy, Women and Politics*, Race, Gender and Ethnicity*, Communist Politics and After*, and Political Psychology (* = headed by women).

The divisions with the weakest female representation in 1995 were those on Political Methodology, Elections and Electoral Behavior, Foreign Policy Analysis, Representation and Electoral Systems, Conflict Processes, Applied Political Science, Computers and Multimedia, New Political Science, Internships and Experiential Education, and Teaching and Learning in Political Science.