CHURCH HISTORY

STUDIES IN CHRISTIANITY AND CULTURE

The Reformation was about ideas and power—those two invisible, intangible, omnipresent forces in human society. Yet it also expressed itself through physical objects: physical things served as the means to embody, to communicate, to remember, and as vehicles for beliefs and ideas. In this special issue, scholars examine the intimate entanglement of beliefs with the material and the aesthetic, and vice versa. The Reformation offers an opportunity to reflect on the relationship between ideas and matter. The essays in this special issue do this in various interconnecting and illuminating ways.
