Editorial Secretary

Marjorie Murphy, Swarthmore College
Published for MARHO: The Radical
Historians' Organization

Radical History Review presents innovative scholarship and commentary that looks critically at the past and its historians from a non-sectarian left perspective. RHR scrutinizes conventional history and seeks to broaden and advance the discussion of crucial issues such as the role of race, class and gender in history. The journal offers original articles; review essays that examine the uses and abuses of history in the popular media, film, history museums and other public forums; and interviews with leading radical historians. Each volume is illustrated with drawings, cartoons, photographs and other graphic art. Issues are often thematic and cover a wide range of geographic areas and subjects. Volume 58 will be devoted to "Latin American Labor".

Comparative Studies in Society and History

Editor

Raymond Grew, Department of History,
University of Michigan

Comparative Studies in Society and History is an international forum for the presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues. In each part, articles on a particular question are grouped together to stimulate comparison of diverse cases. Also included in each issue are "CSSH Notes" and book reviews.

The Great Disorder

Politics, Economics, and Society in the German Inflation, 1914-1924

GERALD D. FELDMAN,
University of California, Berkeley

"The Great Disorder is the best sort of economic history in a wider sense—explaining not only how economic ideas evolve and events happen, but also how economic decisions can transform society and profoundly shape political culture. As with all of Feldman's work, it is based on an intense and comprehensive grasp of archival sources."—Harold James, Princeton University.

Cyclical Growth in Market and Planned Economies

Edited by CLAUDE HILLINGER,
University of Munich

This book presents a comprehensive approach for analyzing and explaining economic fluctuations. The approach is distinct from Keynesianism and Real Business Cycle Theory, and is representative of the Disequilibrium Theory of Cyclical Growth. The book emphasizes the need for determining the stylized facts of economic fluctuations independently of the explanatory models.

Politics in the Portuguese Empire

The State, Industry, and Cotton, 1926-1974

M. ANNE PITCHER, Colgate University

This book examines the complex relationship between the Portuguese authoritarian regime, the domestic textile industry, and colonial cotton production in Angola and Mozambique. Pitcher argues that conflicting interests and contradictory policies had unintentional, even debilitating, effects on many participants in the system.

1993 344 pp.; illus. $62.00

British Multinational Banking 1830-1990

GEOFFREY JONES, University of Reading

This is a study of the emergence, growth, and performance of British multinational banks from their origins in the 1830s until the present day. In the first modern general history of these banks, Geoffrey Jones reveals details of the real profits and secret reserves of these banks, and uses these data in a unique analysis of their financial performance over more than a century.

1993 528 pp.; illus. $69.00

British Monetary Policy 1945-51

SUSAN HOWSON, University of Toronto and Wolfson College, Cambridge

The postwar Labour government pursued low interest rate policies at a time of severe inflationary pressure and serious balance-of-payments problems. This study examines the causes and consequences of these policies.

1993 384 pp. $59.00

The Formation of Econometrics

A Historical Perspective

DUO QIN, University of London

Duo Qin examines the history of econometrics from 1930 to 1960 in terms of the basic issues in econometric modelling: the probability foundations, estimation, identification, testing and model construction, and specification.

1993 224 pp. $37.00

The Economic History of Italy 1860-1990

VERA ZAMAGNI, University of Bologna

Vera Zamagni traces the growth of industrialization and argues that much of Italy's success is derivative not from its own individuality but from its ability to be flexible and incorporate the successes of other countries such as Japan's integrated business network and Germany's financial structure.

Econometric Theory

Editor

Peter C.B. Phillips

Cowles Foundation for Research in Economics

Econometric Theory is an international quarterly journal dedicated to advancing theoretical research in econometrics. The journal provides an authoritative, centralized, professional outlet for original contributions in all of the major areas of econometrics. As well as periodic book reviews and articles that embody original theoretical research, the journal publishes historical studies on the evolution of econometric thought and on major scholars. Econometric Theory also serves an educational role by the inclusion of an on-going "Problems and Solutions" series and by "ET Interviews" with pre-eminent scholars in the field.

SCALE AND SCOPE

The Dynamics of Industrial Capitalism

ALFRED D. CHANDLER, JR.

"Chandler started out years ago to make sense out of the transformation of capitalist enterprise caused by the growth of giant industrial companies...He has succeeded with a power and authority that will not soon be matched."

—Jonathan Hughes,
New York Times Book Review

"The book is important. It traces the evolution of the economic environment in which we breathe, and which we need to interpret without the blinders of doctrine or dogma...It is an exhaustive, nation-by-nation, industry-by-industry, company-by-company survey...Chandler is what social science is all about."

CONTRIVED COMPETITION

Regulation and Deregulation in America

RICHARD H. K. VIETOR

This is the story of a revolution in American industry: the massive deregulation of markets by the government starting in the late 1970s. Business historian Richard Vietor explains how each of four major firms — American Airlines, El Paso Natural Gas, AT&T, and Bank America — was challenged by deregulation, and how its leadership struggled to adjust to new forms of intense competition.

These four parallel stories illustrate a dynamic process of market restructuring and organizational adjustment. We see managers and regulators alike painfully learning to operate effectively as their business and political environments shift around them.

Purchasing Power

Consumer Organizing, Gender, and the Seattle Labor Movement, 1919–1929

Dana Frank

“...a careful, nuanced study of consumer organizing within the labor movement in the 1920s. Frank exposes the pivotal importance of gender relations inside and outside the home in shaping the successes and failures of labor boycotts, cooperatives, and union label campaigns. Her analysis also adds a great deal to our understanding of organized labor’s decline in the 1920s...”

The Culture of the Market

Historical Essays

Thomas L. Haskell and

Richard F. Teichgraeber III, Editors

“At a time when a simplistic rhetoric of the market is commonplace, these essays, with their historical concreteness, multifaceted perspectives, and nuanced understanding of the embeddedness and implications of the market, are both timely and powerful.”

—Thomas Bender, New York University

Contributors: Jonathan Dewald, Chandra Mukerji, Margaret C. Jacob, Martin J. Wiener, Joyce Appleby, Richard B. Latner, Jean-Christophe Agnew, Marilyn R. Brown, Richard F. Teichgraeber III, William M. Reddy, Howard Brick, Wilfred M. McClay, Thomas L. Haskell. 44468-3 Hardcover $49.95

Citizen Worker

David Montgomery

This original and significant work examines the relationship between workers and government by focusing not on the legal regulations of unions and strikes, but on popular struggles for citizens’ rights. The extent and failures of workers’ efforts to exercise power through political parties provide insights from the nineteenth century to guide our thinking about the twenty-first.

Exploring the Black Box

Technology, Economics and History

Nathan Rosenberg

Presenting a unique account of how technological change is generated and the processes by which improved technologies are introduced, this text implies that such changes are often “path dependent” because they tend to be so strongly influenced by the sequence of events from which a new technology has emerged.
