JOHN MACDONALD BROWN, M.D., F.R.C.S., formerly Physician, Army, Navy, and Air Force Institutes, and Lecturer on Anatomy, Surgeons' Hall, Edinburgh, died on November 18, 1935. He was the author of various contributions in the Journ. Anat. Physiol. and other scientific and medical journals.

He was elected a Fellow of the Society in 1885.

JOSEPH STRICKLAND GOODALL, M.B., M.R.C.P., F.R.C.S., was educated at Harrow, Eastbourne, Middlesex Hospital, London University, Edinburgh, and Paris, and held a number of important appointments in hospitals and colleges in London. He was the author of papers on digestion and on the heart in Proc. Anat. Soc., Journ. Anat. Physiol., Arch. Middlesex Hosp., etc.

He was elected a Fellow of the Society in 1910, and died on November 22, 1934.

WILLIAM MACDONALD, Sc.D.(Agric.), Ph.D., D.Sc., Editor and Proprietor of the Agricultural Journal of South Africa, was born in Edinburgh in 1875 and educated at the Royal High School there. Later he studied at the State University of Minnesota, the College of Agriculture of Cornell University, and at the Institut National Agronomique, Paris. He was a well-known authority on land settlement and founder of the practice of dry farming in South Africa. Dr Macdonald was the author of Dry Farming: its Principles and Practice, and other valuable works.

He was elected a Fellow of the Society in 1904, and died on November 20, 1935, aged 60 years.

REV. ALEXANDER MOFFAT, M.A., LL.D., formerly Professor of Physics, Christian College, Madras, was elected a Fellow of the Society in 1906, and died on June 4, 1936.

NANABHAI ARDESHER FRAMJI Moos, D.Sc.(Edin.), Director of the Bombay Observatory from 1896 to 1919, died on March 12, 1936. In addition to publishing the Observatory data in periodical volumes his discussions of these and other allied data were most valuable. His research work was mainly directed to the problems of terrestrial magnetism and seismology, and he published two volumes entitled Colaba Magnetic Data, 1846–1905, which form an outstanding contribution to the science of terrestrial magnetism.

He was elected a Fellow of the Society in 1887.

JAMES M. P. MUIRHEAD, J.P., F.R.S.L., F.S.S., of Rondebosch, South Africa, was elected a Fellow in 1907, and died on May 7, 1936.

JOHN THOMSON PEARCE, B.A., B.Sc., formerly Headmaster of Tranent Public School, was elected a Fellow of the Society in 1907, and died on June 22, 1936.

A. W. NOEL PILLERS, F.R.C.V.S., D.V.S.M., Chief Veterinary Officer of the City of Liverpool, died on April 2, 1936. His chief scientific work lay in veterinary parasitology, in which subject he published many valuable papers. During the War he served in the Royal Army Veterinary Corps in France and was twice mentioned in despatches.

He was elected a Fellow of the Society in 1933.

ALBERT H. TURTON, M.Inst.M.M., was elected a Fellow of the Society in 1895, and died on December 3, 1935.