Essays on the Cultural History of Vienna and Budapest

Péter Hanák

With a preface by Carl E. Schorske

A century ago, Vienna and Budapest were the capital cities of the unstable Austro-Hungarian empire and scenes of intense cultural activity. However, as Péter Hanák shows in these vignettes of fin-de-siècle life, the intellectual and artistic vibrancy common to the two cities emerged from deeply different civic cultures.

Here Hanák paints a remarkable portrait of turn-of-the-century life in Central Europe.

"Péter Hanák was one of Central Europe's most respected cultural historians, who in the course of his long academic career developed a marvelous sense of appreciation for Vienna and Budapest. [His essays are] erudite, charming, and witty. . . ."—Istvan Deak, author of Beyond Nationalism

the End of East Germany

Charles S. Maier

Against the backdrop of one of the great transformations of our century, the sudden and unexpected fall of communism as a ruling system, Charles Maier recounts the history and demise of East Germany.

"Dissolution is the best available one-volume account of East Germany's decline and fall."
—New York Times Book Review

"[Dissolution] is history in the full sense of the word. Maier does not just piece together the events leading to the breaching of the wall and the rush to reunification. He searches constantly for the meaning of this history. . . ."—Foreign Affairs

Welfare, Modernity, and the Weimar State, 1919–1933

Young-Sun Hong

This is the first comprehensive study of the turbulent relationship among state, society, and church in the making of the modern German welfare system during the Weimar Republic.

Young-Sun Hong examines the competing conceptions of poverty, citizenship, family, and authority held by a variety of groups and institutions. She shows how these conceptions created a situation in which the Nazi critique of republican "welfare" could acquire broad political resonance.

"An imaginatively conceived and theoretically sophisticated study. . . ."

Journal of Early Modern History

Contrasts, Contacts, Comparisons

Editor-in-Chief: Heiko A. Oberman
(University of Arizona)

Managing Editor: James D. Tracy
(University of Minnesota)

Book Review Editor: Anthony Black
(University of Dundee)

The 'early modern' period of world history (ca. 1300-1800) was marked by a large increase in the level of global interaction. Between the aftermath of Mongol conquest in the East and the onset of industrialization in the West, European expansion set the framework for new kinds of contacts and collective self-definition. The Journal of Early Modern History offers a broad audience of historians explorations of different cultures on a given theme, whether in explicitly comparative studies, or by the grouping of studies (or books reviewed). One of the elements juxtaposed in this way will often be European, but not always. In addition, there will be articles dealing with two or more elements of the same culture, or bringing quite different kinds of source materials to bear on the same phenomenon. Its coverage is broad, both geographically - Europe, the Americas, Asia - and in terms of subject matter. Half of the articles will treat subjects which are not primarily European.

Medieval Encounters

A Journal of Jewish, Christian and Muslim Culture in Confluence and Dialogue

Edited by L. Simon

Medieval Encounters is intended to promote discussion and dialogue across cultural, linguistic and disciplinary boundaries about the interactions of Jewish, Christian and Muslim culture during the period from the fourth through to the fifteenth century C.E.

Culture is defined in its widest form to include history, languages, literature, medicine, music, philosophy, religion, science and art. The geographic limits of inquiry are bounded only by the limits in which the three traditions interact and intersect.

Articles may deal with specific texts, events, or phenomena as well as theories of interpretation and analysis. The journal actively promotes a representative spread across all the humanistic disciplines and from scholarly communities.

The Tessera of Antilia

Utopian Brotherhoods & Secret Societies in the Early Seventeenth Century

Donald R. Dickson

A study of the Protestant utopian movement that began in Germany, inspired in large measure by the writings of Johann Valentin Andreae, and came to England through the efforts of the émigré Samuel Hartlib. The first chapters examine Andreae's utopian writings, including the Rosicrucian manifestos, as part of his lifelong commitment to found a Societas Christiana, a spiritual élite that would improve religious and intellectual life.

His writings sparked a transnational movement in early modern Europe. The most significant of the German learned societies are discussed: The Societas Ereunetica, Unio Christiana, and Antilia. The latter chapters consider Hartlib's English circles and various utopian and learned societies in the 1650s. This study contributes to our understanding of the role that "secret" societies and epistolary networks had in the republic of letters.

Donald R. Dickson, Ph.D. (1981) in English, University of Illinois, is Professor of English at the Texas A & M University. He has published extensively on seventeenth-century literature, including The Fountain of Living Waters: The Typology of the Waters of Life in Herbert (Vaughan and Traherne), (1987).

Rose Cross over the Baltic

The Spread of Rosicrucianism in Northern Europe

Susanna Åkerman

This volume is a study of Rosicrucianism in the early period of the seventeenth century with emphasis both on the local reception of the Rosicrucian pamphlets in the Baltic area and on the original group of Rosicrucian authors in Tübingen.

In the first part of the book the Runic theosophy of the Swedish Rosicrucian Johannes Bureus is studied in its millenarian context, beginning with his Adulruna Rediviva of 1616. The Paracelsian prophecy of the Lion of the North is also shown to be a Rosicrucian theme.

The general millenarian background to the Rosicrucian publications is then explored and implications are drawn from the Rosicrucian doctrine of the great conjunctions, from the emergence of new stars, and from their comet research.

Susanna Åkerman, Ph.D. (1989) in Philosophy, Washington University, St. Louis, is Research Fellow in the History of Ideas at Stockholm University. She is author of Queen Christina of Sweden and Her Circle, (Brill, 1991).

Sources Concerning the Hospitallers of St. John in the Netherlands, 14th-18th Centuries

Johanna Maria van Winter

This source collection brings for the first time records from foreign archives concerning the Dutch commanderies of the Order of the Hospital of St. John or of Malta and their place within the Order's international organization.

The book presents bulls and letters from and to the Grandmaster and the Prior of Germany; a 14th-century rent-roll of St. Catherine's Convent at Utrecht; visitations and inquiries 1373-1732; and a list of pamphlets concerning the regaining of the Order's confiscated property in the Dutch Republic. All sources are given in their original language: Latin, French, Italian, German or Dutch. Because of the long period (14th-18th centuries) and the broad variety of subjects they are important for researchers of political as well as economic history from medieval to early modern times.

Johanna Maria van Winter, studied History at Groningen and Ghent, Doctor of Arts (1962), University of Utrecht; retired 1989 as Professor of Medieval history at this University. She has published on knighthood and nobility, and on medieval food habits.

Communities, Politics, and Reformation in Early Modern Europe

Thomas A. Brady, Jr.

The studies united in this volume explore themes of community, politics, religion, gender, and social conflict and accommodation during the first decades of the Reformation movement.

Other chapters investigate historiographical themes, especially the interpretation of early modern German history. Two longer chapters address European themes: the historical sociology of early modern societies in terms of legal definitions of status and modern conceptions of economic class; and the difference between central and western European development in a global context. Taken together, the studies explore the transition zone between medieval and modern history in both microhistorical, especially urban and regional, and broadly comparative contexts. Some of the studies are supplementary to the author's books on the sixteenth-century Protestant Reformation at Strasbourg, in southern Germany, and in the Holy Roman Empire.

Thomas A. Brady, Jr., Ph.D. (1968) University of Chicago, is Professor of Early Modern European History at the University of California, Berkeley. His publications include: Ruling Class, Regime and Reformation at Strasbourg, 1520-1555 (Leiden, 1978); and Turning Swiss: Cities and Empire, 1450-1550 (Cambridge, 1985) (German Studies Association Book Prize, 1987).

From the Communal Reformation to the Revolution of the Common Man

Peter Blickle

Translated by Beat Kümin

Brings together important studies related to a coherent interpretation of the Reformation and the Peasants War of 1525 as a mass movement, rooted in the structures of the communities of towns and villages. The volume presents both detailed studies from the archives and conceptualized essays.

Peter Blickle, Ph.D. (1964) in History, University of Munich, Professor for Early Modern History (1972) in Saarbrücken, teaches European History at the University of Berne, Switzerland (since 1980). He has published extensively in Legal History - Landschaften im Alten Reich, (1973), Agrarian History - Studien zur geschichtlichen Bedeutung des deutschen Bauernstandes, (1988) and Reformation History - The Revolution of 1525, (1977); Communal Reformation, (1992).
