A Manual of Psychological Medicine, containing the Nosology, Description, Statistics, Diagnosis, Pathology, and Treatment of Insanity. By JOHN CHAS. BUCKNILL, M.D., and DANIEL H. TUKE, M.D. Price 15s, 8vo., pp. 562.

"It has been reserved for Drs. Bucknill and Tuke to produce a volume that should be a hand-book for the student and practitioner on the history and practice of the art of curing insanity. Those who know the writings of these gentlemen on the subject of insanity, will feel that such a volume could not come from better hands. Dr. Tuke, the medical officer of the Retreat at York, has supplied the historical and general part of this volume, whilst Dr.
Bucknill has undertaken the diagnosis, pathology, and treatment. The general public will find Dr. Tuke's part written in an agreeable style, and devoted to subjects in which all persons living in a civilized community have a greater or less interest. Such questions as the increase or decrease of insanity, and the influence of civilization on its progress, are discussed with considerable ability; whilst the practitioner, engaged in the treatment of diseased mind cannot fail to be instructed by the earnest, truthful, and manly spirit in which Dr. Bucknill treats his part of the subject. There can be little doubt that the present work will become the introductory manual of all who are commencing their studies in psychological medicine."—Athenæum.
