

Logic, Cause and Action

Essays in honour of Elizabeth Anscombe

Edited by Roger Teichmann

ROYAL INSTITUTE OF PHILOSOPHY

SUPPLEMENT 46

Elizabeth Anscombe is among the most distinguished and original philosophers alive today. Her work has ranged over many areas of philosophy, including metaphysics, ethics, the philosophy of mind and action, and the philosophy of religion. In each of these areas she has made seminal contributions. The essays in this book reflect the breadth of her interests and the esteem in which she is held by her colleagues. The distinguished contributors include Michael Dummett, Nancy Cartwright, Peter Geach and Philippa Foot; and Professor Anscombe's essay 'Making true' is published here for the first time.

Contents

1. Making true Elizabeth Anscombe
2. Sentences and propositions Michael Dummett
3. The first person: problems of sense and reference Edward Harcourt
4. An empiricist defence of singular causes Nancy Cartwright
5. Causality and derivativeness Stephen Makin
6. Intention, freedom and predictability Peter Geach
7. Intention Rosalind Hursthouse
8. Does moral subjectivism rest on a mistake? Philippa Foot
9. Ethics and psychology Roger Teichmann
10. Just war Nicholas Denyer

CAMBRIDGE
UNIVERSITY PRESS

ISBN 0-521-78510-3

9 780521 785105