

Retirement of Revolutionaries in China

Public Policies, Social Norms, Private Interests

Melanie Manion

Melanie Manion analyzes the largest bloodless circulation of elites in history—the massive retirement of officials in the People's Republic of China. How were the elders persuaded to retire? Manion shows how a norm of age-based exit from office was engineered by top policymakers and aided by younger cadres. She provides a rich portrayal of manipulative leadership in post-Mao China, which reveals the key role of the private interests of all the parties involved.

Taoist Ritual and Popular Cults of Southeast China

Kenneth Dean

Since 1979, when the Chinese government relaxed some of its most stringent controls on religion, villagers in the isolated areas of Southeast China have maintained an "underground" effort to restore traditional rituals and local cults. Kenneth Dean argues that Taoist ritual provides the underlying structure for this unexpected revival of regional cults.

"This is an extremely important book. There is nothing else like it in the field, particularly in its detailed depiction of local religion in the People's Republic. Kenneth Dean has made a major new contribution to Chinese Studies."—Daniel L. Overmyer, University of British Columbia

The East Asian Region

Confucian Heritage and Its Modern Adaptation

Edited by Gilbert Rozman

The contributors to this volume range over 2,000 years of history as they show how Confucian values spread throughout the region in premodern times and how these values were transformed in an age of modernization. The introduction by Gilbert Rozman discusses the special character of East Asia.

"[An] informative volume of immense sweep . . . brimming with ideas. . . Its call for regional studies is most welcome; one hopes it will be followed by other works as sensitive to the complexities and ambiguities of history and society."—Conrad Schirokauer, The Journal of Asian Studies

Beautiful Imperialist

China Perceives America, 1972-1990

David Shambaugh

From President Nixon's historic visit to China in 1972 to the aftermath of the Tiananmen tragedy, this book examines the changing perceptions of the United States articulated by China's "America Watchers," whose occupation is to interpret the "beautiful imperialist" for China's elite and public.

"David Shambaugh has uncovered a story that shocks and dismays me because I for one . . . was innocent of the extent to which the supposedly best-informed Chinese are both ignorant and critical of America."

—Lucian W. Pye, The China Quarterly

The Political Logic of Economic Reform in China

By SUSAN L. SHIRK

Shirk pioneers a rational choice institutional approach to analyze policy-making in a non-democratic authoritarian country and to explain the history of Chinese market reforms from 1979 to the present. She pieces together detailed histories of economic reform policy decisions and shows how the political logic of Chinese communist institutions shaped those decisions.

Dialogues Between Chinese and Western Poetics

By WAI-LIM YIP

Internationally acclaimed poet and critic Wai-lim Yip calls Western scholarship to account for its treacherous representation of non-Western literature. Yip moves from Plato to Hans-Georg Gadamer, from Chuang-tzu to Mao Tse-tung, from John Donne to Robert Creeley, as he attempts to create a double consciousness that includes the state of mind of the original author and the expressive potentials of the target language.

Black Hands of Beijing

Lives of Defiance in China's Democracy Movement
By George Black and Robin Munro

This vivid chronicle of the lives of three Chinese compatriots reveals the defiant spirit that drives the struggle for democracy in China. No other book has so expertly rendered the inner workings of the Chinese democracy movement from its first inspiring tremors in 1976 to the present.

"Black", in the lexicon of the Chinese Communist Party, means the antithesis of "red". The term originated in Mao Zedong's radical land reform program of the early 1950s, which targeted the Black Five Elements: landlords, rich peasants, reactionaries, rightists and the catch-all category of "bad elements". According to the official line, the "Black Elements" attended "black meetings" in which they concocted "black materials", and if they rose high enough to manipulate others, they became "black hands".

Black and Munro have travelled extensively in China and interviewed hundreds of participants, from leading intellectuals to rank-and-file workers, uncovering crucial elements of the story of the movement never revealed before. The authors previously collaborated on a special issue of The Nation to commemorate the first anniversary of the crushing of the Tiananmen Square democracy movement, which was nominated for the 1990 National Magazine Award.
