Navigating Political Science: Professional Advancement & Success in the Discipline

Edited by Kent Worcester, this book brings together some of the most noteworthy, discipline-focused contributions to APSA journals published over the past couple of decades. With 28 chapters by 45 contributors, the book touches on topics from peer review, mentoring, and faculty governance, to blogging, data collection, and digital media in the classroom. The book should prove relevant for political scientists across the board, from aspiring ABDs to seasoned PhDs.

Style Manual for Political Science

The APSA Style Manual remains the standard style manual in the discipline upon which students, junior faculty members, and well established scholars authoring manuscripts, as well as editors, copyeditors, and proofreaders, can rely. The manual now includes style requirements for all four APSA membership-wide journals, as well as organized section journals.

Teaching Civic Engagement Across the Disciplines

Edited by Elizabeth C. Matto, Alison Rios Millett McCartney, Elizabeth A. Bennion, and Dick Simpson, this book redirects the focus on teaching better political science courses to teaching civic engagement across the disciplines. This movement involves university-wide coordinated civic engagement programs and action plans as well as a new nationwide action plan across high schools, community colleges, four-year colleges, and research universities to consolidate gains and provide resources for the next leap forward.
