Cambridge Studies in Social Theory, Religion and Politics Series

Series Editors:

DAVID C. LEEGE, University of Notre Dame

KENNETH D. WALD, University of Florida

This series applies explicit social theory and the comparative method to religious and political phenomena. Studies will range from diachronic analyses of single religious institutions of politics, to synchronic comparisons of religious groups, parties, components of civil society, political regimes, public policies, and conflict events.

Evolution, Creationism, and the Battle to Control America's Classrooms

MICHAEL BERKMAN
ERIC PLUTZER

"Do not be fooled into thinking that this is 'merely' the single best book of social science on the controversy over evolution. It is, but it is more than that. This book is also a masterful treatment of big questions about the nature of public education and democratic governance."

—David E. Campbell, University of Notre Dame

Who should decide what children are taught in school? This question lies at the heart of the evolution-creation wars that have become a regular feature of the U.S. political landscape. Ever since the 1925 Scopes "monkey trial" many have argued that the people should decide by majority rule and through political institutions; others variously point to the federal courts, educational experts, or scientists as the ideal arbiter.

Michael Berkman and Eric Plutzer illuminate who really controls the nation's classrooms. Based on their innovative survey of 926 high school biology teachers they show that the real power lies with individual educators who make critical decisions in their own classrooms. Broad teacher discretion sometimes leads to excellent instruction in evolution. But the authors also find evidence of strong creationist tendencies in America's public high schools. More generally, they find evidence of a systematic undermining of science and the scientific method in many classrooms.

POLITICS AND RELIGION

Call for Proposals for New Editor(s)

The Religion and Politics section of the American Political Science Association invites applications from individuals, pairs, or teams for the editorship of Politics and Religion (P&R) from January 1, 2012, through December 31, 2016. Nominations and self-nominations are encouraged. The section particularly encourages nomination of pairs or teams of editors where each editor represents a different country and a variety of substantive expertise.

Interested applicants for editor should be senior scholars and members in good standing of the Religion and Politics section. Applicants are expected to have records of significant research accomplishment in the subfield of Religion and Politics, intellectual breadth and depth, an entrepreneurial approach to attracting and soliciting quality manuscripts, authors, and reviewers, and excellent administrative, organizational, and interpersonal skills.

INFORMATION FOR CANDIDATES

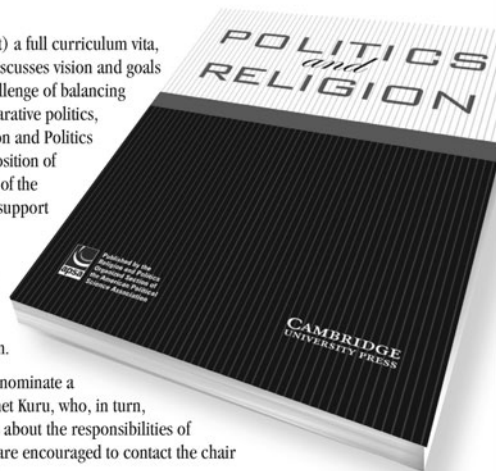

Politics and Religion is the flagship journal for the subfield of Religion and Politics, published by Cambridge University Press. Since its inception in 2005, P&R has received over 100 submissions per year, with a 21% acceptance rate. As a result, serving as editor requires substantial commitments of time, intellectual effort, and management skill.

The P&R editor reports to the Executive Committee of the Religion and Politics Section of APSA and to the Managing Editor at Cambridge University Press Journals. The editor will appoint book review editors and journal editorial board members in consultation with the section's executive committee. The editor is required to provide at least one written report per year on the state of the journal, in addition to frequent informal consultation with the section and CUPJ. Cambridge University Press provides a stipend to the editor each year to defray some of the administration costs of the journal.

TO APPLY

Candidates should e-mail (as a PDF attachment) a full curriculum vita, a letter of intent or proposal that specifically discusses vision and goals for the journal, particularly addressing the challenge of balancing international politics, American politics, comparative politics, and political philosophy in an outlet for Religion and Politics research; experiences directly relevant to the position of editor; plans for management, and organization of the journal's workflow; and statements of financial support commitments from the host university(ies). Applications should be sent to Ahmet Kuru (akuru@mail.sdsu.edu), Religion and Politics section chair, and must be received no later than 5:00 p.m. on Tuesday, March 15, 2011. All applicants will receive an e-mail confirmation.

Nominations and Questions: If you wish to nominate a person to serve as editor, you may contact Ahmet Kuru, who, in turn, will contact the nominee. If you have questions about the responsibilities of serving as editor of Politics and Religion you are encouraged to contact the chair of the Religion and Politics section committee.
