A TWENTIETH CENTURY FUND REPORT

A pioneering survey on the economics of the performing arts with vital implications for their survival in the United States.

PERFORMING ARTS — THE ECONOMIC DILEMMA

A Study of Problems common to Theater, Opera, Music and Dance

By WILLIAM J. BAUMOL and WILLIAM G. BOWEN

Two Princeton economists, bringing to their work a special sensitivity to the arts, present a comprehensive and probing study of the economic problems besetting the performing arts in the United States today. It goes far beyond the issues of union demands, poor management, and inflation traditionally blamed for the financial predicament of the performing arts.

The authors re-examine the expansion of cultural institutions and offer provocative new insights. A profile of the audience gives detailed information on its education, occupation, income, geographic distribution, ticket-buying habits. New facts . . . a brilliant analysis of the underlying problems facing the performing arts.

To the citizen and civic leader, as well as the serious student, the professional, the manager, to all connected with arts centers, this book will bring a new understanding of the problems of the performing arts in a technological age.

THE EVERGREEN
PLAYSCRIPT SERIES

A new series that brings to the public new and vital works by contemporary playwrights, in an attractive format at reasonable prices. The series will include new plays by dramatists from the United States and abroad. First titles, $1.00 each:

MOON ON A RAINBOW SHAWL

By ERROL JOHN. This play has been produced in half a dozen countries, including a successful off-Broadway run in New York. "A brawling, laughing, bitter sense of life courses through this play."—New York Times. E-405

GREEN JULIA

By PAUL ABLEMAN. A witty duologue between two graduate students who are splitting up after five years of sharing rooms. "Virtuoso playwrighting, controlled, funny, and penetratingly incisive."—The Spectator. E-406.

THE GREAT AMERICAN DESERT

By JOEL OPPENHEIMER. This wild chronicle of three Western outlaws explores and parodies the vast myths of the Hollywood "horse opera" — with Wyatt Earp, Wild Bill Hickock, Billy the Kid and Doc Holliday as chorus. E-407

AFORE NIGHT COME

By DAVID RUDKIN. Presented by the Royal Shakespeare Company of England in 1962, this play tells how a group of English fruit-pickers become terrified by an eccentric Irishman who wanders into their midst — and how they destroy this fearful menace. E-408.

EDWARD GORDON CRAIG

by Denis Bablet, translated by Daphne Woodward

For all interested in the development of the modern theatre, Craig is of the greatest significance. He, more than anyone created the conception of decor as an integral part of production. This book, which attracted much attention when first published in France, provides a well-documented account of Craig's life and the evolution of his ideas, particularly his great creative period from the nineties to World War I, including the Moscow Hamlet and his editing of The Mask. Twenty-four pages of half-tone plates reproducing original sketches and photographs of productions Craig worked on. $7.75

STANISLAVSKI'S LEGACY by Stanislavski

Translated by Elizabeth Reynolds Hapgood

The increasing demand for this book has shown that it transcends the special occasion for which it was first published in 1958. Thus Elizabeth Reynolds Hapgood has searched through the heritage of writings left by Stanislavski and found unpublished material which adds new dimensions to Stanislavski's contribution to our theatre and life. $5.50

THE STORY OF SADLER'S WELLS

by Dennis Arundell

"Musicians and magicians, pimps and prostitutes, clowns and tragedians, characters....solemn and gay, jostle through these pages as the fortunes of the theatre rise and fall. It is a fascinating story." - The Yorkshire Post. Mr. Arundell has been with the Wells as director, actor and composer since Lilian Baylis's regime in the early 1930's. "His book is to be recommended equally to the historian,... theatre-goers in general and opera and ballet lovers in particular...." - Oxford Mail. Illustrated. $6.95

THE CRAFTSMEN OF DIONYSUS

An Approach to Acting

JEROME ROCKWOOD, Bronx Community College

College acting courses as well as community theater classes and workshops can benefit from this text. The author offers a fresh, dynamic approach to understanding and mastering the techniques of acting. From basic actions through script analysis to performance, the beginning actor learns the progressive steps necessary to create a role. Dr. Rockwood skillfully integrates specific exercises to develop each technique used to create a fully realized characterization. 1966, softbound, illustrated, 242 pages.

THE IDEA OF TRAGEDY

CARL BENSON and TAYLOR LITTLETON,
both of Auburn University

The text presents a collection of sixteen essays on the theory of tragedy coupled with six tragedies dating from the classical to the modern period. The essays, ranging in authorship from Aristotle to contemporary scholars, thoroughly explore the nature of tragedy. Following the essays, the student is presented with two triads of tragedies in the classical Greek and Elizabethan periods and the 19th century. This organization allows the student to make several illuminating combinations of comparison and contrast among the plays—thematic, historical, and analytical. 1966, softbound, 400 pages.

WHAT IS THE PLAY?

RICHARD A CASSELL, Butler University
HENRY W. KNEPLER, Illinois Institute of Technology

An introductory drama anthology with supplemental essays on the theatre, the genres, and the individual plays. The text is written to help freshmen understand not only the content of the play as a text but also to understand it as a stage presentation. It offers twelve plays (both ancient and modern) and fourteen essays, together with a general introduction, and features headnotes and postludes to each play, questions following each play, and an extensive bibliography. 1966, softbound, illustrated, 640 pages.

DRAMAS

From The American Theatre

1762-1909

Edited with Introductory Essays by Richard Moody, Indiana University

FROM THE INTRODUCTION

"The Dramas and play-scripts in this volume were chosen to illustrate the theatre-goer's story of the American theatre in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries and to center attention on the distinctly American qualities in the dramas, both in theme and technique . . . each in its way reflects a current fashion, either in manner or theme, or illustrates a public exploration into some aspect of our social or political history."

The twenty-nine selections in this edition mirror American tastes, attitudes and morals of these times. They are accompanied by introductory essays rich in pertinent biographical and theatrical details; each introduction examines more than just the contents of the play under discussion. Professor Moody describes the importance of the theatre in shaping American culture and in interpreting the American scene for audiences here and abroad. The larger portion of the material in the text is available for the first time in any collected edition; some has not appeared in print in this century.

Five books every theatre lover should know

THE NAKED IMAGE

Observations on the Modern Theatre
by Harold Clurman

The theatre is the world's image and the drama critic must be receptive to these reflections. From this viewpoint, Harold Clurman analyzes the theatre here and abroad and the playwrights who have most influenced the modern theatre. $6.50

KEATON
by Rudi Blesh

"Succeeds—unbelievably—in slipping into the rehearsal-hall . . . into the makeshift studios where a great comedian swiftly and unerringly grasped the nature of the medium set before him, sometimes into the camera itself." —WALTER KERR, Book Week
$8.95

The ART of the PUPPET
by Bil Baird

"A celebrated puppeteer has produced an elegant panorama of his craft in a big, bright, beautifully illustrated gift book."
$19.95 —The New York Times

IN VARIOUS DIRECTIONS
by Tyrone Guthrie

"Belongs in that scarce collection of genuinely distinguished books on theatre." —ANNE NICHOLSON, Chicago Tribune
$4.95

THE IMPOSSIBLE
THEATER
by Herbert Blau

"... a tingling statement of belief in the theatre.... Scholarly, well-documented, angry, outraged . . . significant and stimulating." —NORMAN NADEL,
$10.00 New York World-Telegram & Sun
