EXPANDED SERVICES OF THE POLICY STUDIES ORGANIZATION

For a number of years the Policy Studies Organization has been providing various services to its members with regard to grant getting, book publishing, article publishing, the presentation of papers, and other professional activities. These services are now in the process of being more systematically organized and expanded. They include the following:

1. Obtaining Grants. PSO has obtained or helped obtain about 100 grants to enable PSO members to develop symposia.
2. Publishing Books. PSO has obtained contracts or arranged for the publication of over 130 books.
3. Publishing Long In-Depth Research Papers. Each PSO-JAI Press volume specializes in papers that are too long to be articles but too short to be books.
4. Publishing Articles and Book Chapters. In addition to the Policy Studies Journal, the Policy Studies Review, and the PSO book series, we are now editing symposia in the journals and books of other organizations.
5. Presenting Papers at Annual Meetings. In addition to policy studies panels at APSA and regional political science conventions, PSO is now coordinating some policy-relevant panels for the International Political Science Association, the American Society for Public Administration, and cross-national workshops sponsored by the Asia and Ford Foundations.

If you are interested in being a consumer/producer beneficiary of these services write Stuart Nagel at the Policy Studies Organization, 361 Lincoln Hall, University of Illinois, 702 S. Wright St., Urbana, Illinois, 61801, or phone (217) 359-8541.

You should also join PSO if you have not already done so by sending the attached coupon to the address indicated above.

Send me the PSO journals, directories, and other benefits immediately. Here is my name address, and check for only $18.

We could tell you that the editorial advisory board includes Dr Jennifer Bond (NSF, USA), Professor B Bowonder (Administrative Staff College of India), Dr Daryl Chubin (Office of Technology Assessment, USA), Dr Philip Gummert (Manchester), John Irvine (Science Policy Research Unit, Sussex), Dr Calestous Juma (African Centre for Technology Studies, Nairobi), John de la Mothe (Science Council of Canada), Fujio Niwa (Science and Technology Agency, Tokyo), Dr Craig Sinclair (Academia Europaea, London), Dr Michaela Smith (Commonwealth Science Council, London) and Professor Dorothy Zinberg (ST&PP, Harvard, USA) — but listing them might detract from the impact of this advertisement.

And there is not enough space to list recent papers, such as The globalisation of R&D (special issue, October 1990), The evolution of UK S&T policy, by Philip Gummert (Manchester University, UK), Technology policy and transfer from state-financed research institutions to the economy in Germany, by Ewe Schimank (Max Planck), Industry and sustainable environment, by Manfredo Maciotti (Science Advisor, EC, Belgium), Silicon Valley myths and science parks in Australia, by Richard Joseph (University of Wollongong), Nano-technology: development and impact, by Alan Porter (Georgia Institute of Technology) and

GUIDELINES

The distinctive readership of the Journal, cutting across academic disciplines and national boundaries, makes the following points of particular importance to contributors.

*Whatever the specific subject matter, the relevance of conclusions to a broad understanding of policymaking should be made explicit.

*Whatever the national setting, the extent to which conclusions are generalizable to many nations should be explicitly discussed.

*Each article should show an awareness of the constraints that public institutions place upon policymaking.

*Jargon should be avoided; technical terms not widely understood should be clearly defined; and the conclusions of statistical analyses should be set out in prose, as well as being supported by quantitative information in tables, footnotes and text as appropriate.

PREPARATION OF MANUSCRIPT

The entire manuscript, including footnotes and references, should be typed double-spaced on one side only of A4 size paper, with a left-hand margin of at least 1½ inches (4½ cm). Manuscript pages should be numbered consecutively.

The title of the article and the author's name and address should be typed on a separate page at the beginning of the article.

The second page should contain an abstract of not more than 150 words and the title of the article, but not the author's name.

Tables and Figures should be numbered consecutively in separate series. Each table or figure should be typed or drawn on a separate sheet. Every table or figure should have a title or caption and at least one reference in the text to indicate its approximate location.

STYLE

Spelling, capitalization and punctuation should be consistent within each article. Detailed advice on all matters of style is contained in Judith Butcher's book, Copyediting, Cambridge University Press (1975).

Headings of not more than two grades should be used and they should be typed on separate lines.

Numbered footnotes should be avoided; citation of references in the text is the norm. If there are a few points that require discussion in the article but not in the body of the text, numbered footnotes may be used. They may also be useful for technical details, e.g. statistical points that would interrupt the flow of the text. Numbered footnotes should be typed consecutively, double-spaced, at the end of the paper, starting on a new page.

References to publications should be placed in the text. Examples of correct styling for bibliographic citation where the author's name is mentioned in the text are Alford (1975), Biller (1976, 136-7), May and Wildavsky (1978), Ostrom, Parks and Whitaker (1978) and subsequently Ostrom et al. (1978).

At the end of the paper, all references should be consolidated in a single alphabetical list starting on a new page. Authors are particularly requested to verify that each text reference appears in the list, and vice versa. In addition to author(s) surname and first name(s) or initial(s), and the title of the book or article, references to books should always include the city of publication and publisher, and for journal articles the volume and part number. For example:

Alford, R. (1975) Health Care Politics. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

Biller, R. (1976) On tolerating policy and organizational termination: some design considerations, Policy Sciences, 7, 2, 133-49.

Campbell, D. (1971) Reforms as experiments. In F. Caro (ed.), Readings in Evaluation Research. New York: Russell Sage.

May, J. and A. Wildavsky (eds.) (1978) The Policy Cycle, Beverly Hills: Sage.

SUBMISSION

Please submit the original manuscript plus three copies to: Professor Richard Rose, Journal of Public Policy, Centre for the Study of Public Policy, University of Strathclyde, Livingstone Tower, Glasgow, G1 1XH, Scotland.

COPYEDITING AND PROOF-READING

The editor and publishers reserve the right to copyedit and proof all items accepted for publication. Authors will review their copyedited manuscripts only if substantial changes have been made. Manuscripts which do not conform to the requirements about style and format may be returned for retyping.

Page proofs of articles will be sent to authors for correction of typographical errors only. Authors must notify the editorial office of any corrections within one week of receipt or approval will be assumed.

Submission of an article or other item implies that it has not been published or accepted for publication elsewhere. Authors are responsible for obtaining written permission to publish material for which they do not own the copyright. Contributors of material accepted for publication will be asked to assign their copyrights to Cambridge University Press.

Each author will receive 50 offprints of his article without charge. Additional copies may be purchased if ordered at proof stage.

The Journal of Public Policy is sponsored by the Centre for the Study of Public Policy, University of Strathclyde
