THE MAKING OF A STATE

Württemberg, 1593–1793

By JAMES ALLEN VANN. The author examines the social structure and institutions of Württemberg during the two centuries that witnessed the decline of the medieval political world and the emergence of the modern state. His book constitutes a major reinterpretation of state building in early modern Europe and will be of interest to historians of German and early modern Europe as well as historians and social scientists concerned with the transition from the medieval to the modern state. $29.50

THE NATIONAL QUESTION IN YUGOSLAVIA

Origins, History, Politics

By IVO BANAC. Yugoslavia is an archetypical example of a troubled multinational mosaic, a state without a single national base or even a majority. The first complete introduction to the history and civilization of the South Slavic peoples and to the politics of interwar, war-time, and present-day Yugoslavia, this book is a major contribution to the scholarship on modern European nationalism and the stability of multinational states. $35.00

BITTER WOUNDS

German Victims of the Great War, 1914–1939

By ROBERT WELDON WHALEN. Whalen explores the experience of German victims of World War I and assesses the Weimar Republic's efforts to deal with the complex problems war victims presented. He argues that the Republic's failure to meet war victims' needs was a major reason for the subsequent loss of support for the state, and a factor in the rise of the National Socialist Party. $24.95

Andropov and Chernenko Whither Big Brother?

Chernenko, in his role as ideological controller, has been promoting "socialist realism" in the Soviet arts and literature; it would seem that it is "socialist funerealism" that prevails in Soviet life.

However "interim" a leader Chernenko may turn out to be, neither the problems of the "real" succession, nor the problems of the Soviet economy can be swept under the carpet.

In this issue of SURVEY we scrutinize Andropov's 15 months in power and analyse what Chernenko's succession may signal. We also have an extended analysis of the problem of Soviet economic reform which includes a sensational Soviet document – the leaked Novosibirsk Report.

THE WORLD TODAY

STUDENTS OF CURRENT AFFAIRS, to be well informed, need the facts. In THE WORLD TODAY, the monthly journal of the Royal Institute of International Affairs, experts bring to the general reader up-to-date and reliable information on world affairs.

Authoritative and objective, THE WORLD TODAY deals primarily with international problems but also includes articles on internal political and economic conditions in individual countries or regions, written by authors with first-hand knowledge. Short comment in 'Notes of the Month' puts current developments into perspective and provides a background to events of international significance.

Comparative Studies in Society and History is a forum for presentation and discussion of new research into problems of change and stability that recur in human societies through time or in the contemporary world. It sets up a working alliance between specialists in all branches of the social sciences and humanities. Debate and review articles bring the general reader in touch with current findings and issues.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Contributions may be descriptive, analytical or theoretical. Any article not in itself comparative may be accepted if it lends itself to comment that will place it in comparative perspective. Correspondence with the editors prior to the submission of articles will help to enable them to obtain such comment or a companion study. Emphasis in comparative studies may be either on similarities or, if these are significant enough and call for some recasting of generalizations, on differences. All contributions and editorial correspondence should be sent to the Editors, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Department of History, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, Michigan 48109.

Two copies of each contribution, preferably accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope, should be submitted. Both text and footnotes should be clearly typed with double spacing and wide margins; footnotes should appear on separate pages at the end of the article. Illustrations may be included by arrangement with the editors.

Contributors will receive 50 offprints. Any additional offprints must be ordered on receipt of the first proof.
