The Theory of Institutional Design

Edited by Robert E. Goodin

This volume illustrates and synthesizes new theories of institutional design recently developed by scholars across a range of disciplines — political science, economics, sociology, history and philosophy. The contributors emphasize the important interpenetration of normative and empirical issues in institutional design theories.

Theories of Institutional Design

Analytical Politics

Melvin J. Hinich
and Michael C. Munger

This book reviews and explains introductory 'formal theory' in political science. The basis of formal theory is the 'spatial model'. This is the first book to examine the foundations of spatial theory in the classic political theories of Aristotle, Hobbes, and Rousseau.

£15.95 PB 0 521 56567 7

Term Limits and Legislative Representation

John M. Carey

Term Limits and Legislative Representation tests the central arguments made by both supporters and opponents of legislative term limits. It examines the experience of Costa Rica, the only long-term democracy to impose term limits on legislators, and providing extensive comparisons with legislatures in Venezuela and the United States.

£40.00 HB 0 521 55233 8 232 pp

Perspectives on Public Choice

A Handbook

Edited by Dennis C. Mueller

This handbook surveys the main ideas and recent developments within the field of public choice theory. It contains twenty-five essays written by both economists and political scientists, from North America and Europe.

£19.95 PB 0 521 55654 6

Environmental Politics and Institutional Change

Elim Papadakis

Elim Papadakis asks whether Australian political institutions have been, and could become more, responsive to environmental concerns. The book includes detailed analysis of the major parties' environmental policies, and also tackles broader theoretical issues around the relationship between government and social change.

The Political Economy of Property Rights

Institutional Change and Credibility in the Reform of Centrally Planned Economies
Edited by David L. Weimer

This analysis investigates the transformation of property rights in post-communist countries and China. This process is inherently political, and thus should be studied from the perspective of political economy.

NOTES TO CONTRIBUTORS

GUIDELINES

The distinctive readership of the Journal, cutting across academic disciplines and national boundaries, makes the following points of particular importance to contributors.

*Whatever the specific subject matter, the relevance of conclusions to a broad understanding of policymaking should be made explicit.

*Whatever the national setting, the extent to which conclusions are generalizable to many nations should be explicitly discussed.

*Each article should show an awareness of the constraints that public institutions place upon policy making.

*Jargon should be avoided; technical terms not widely understood should be clearly defined and the conclusions of statistical analyses should be set out in prose, as well as being supported by quantitative information in tables, footnotes and text as appropriate

PREPARATION OF MANUSCRIPT

The entire manuscript, including footnotes and references, should be typed double-spaced on one side only of A4 size paper, with a left-hand margin of at least  $1\frac{1}{4}$  inches ( $3\frac{1}{2}$  cm). Manuscript pages should be numbered consecutively.

The title of the article and the author's name and address should be typed on a separate page at the beginning of the article.

The second page should contain an abstract of not more than 150 words and the title of the article, but not the author's name.

Tables and figures should be numbered consecutively in separate series. Each table or figure should be typed or drawn on a separate sheet. Every table or figure should have a title or caption and at least one reference in the text to indicate its approximate location.

When an article has been accepted for publication, the author is strongly encouraged to send a copy of the final version on computer disk (Apple Macintosh or IBM compatible PC) together with the hard copy typescript, giving details of the wordprocessing software used (Microsoft Word, Word or Word Perfect). However, the publisher reserves the right to typeset material by conventional means if an author's disk proves unsatisfactory.

STYLE

Spelling, capitalization and punctuation should be consistent within each article. Detailed advice on all matters of style is contained in Judith Butcher's book, Copy-Editing, Cambridge University Press (1992).

Headings of not more than two grades should be used and they should be typed on separate lines.

Numbered footnotes should be avoided; citation of references in the text is the norm. If there are a few points that require discussion in the article but not in the body of the text, numbered footnotes may be used. They may also be useful for technical details, e.g. statistical points that would interrupt the flow of the text. Numbered footnotes should be typed consecutively, double-spaced, at the end of the paper, starting on a new page.

References to publications should be placed in the text. Examples of correct styling for bibliographic citation where the author's name is mentioned in the text are Alford (1975), Biller (1976, 136-7), May and Wildavsky (1978), Ostrom, Parks and Whitaker (1978) and subsequently Ostrom et al. (1978).

At the end of the paper, all references should be consolidated in a single alphabetical list starting on a new page. Authors are particularly requested to verify that each text reference appears in the list, and vice versa. In addition to author(s) surname and first name(s) or initial(s), and the title of the book or article, references to books should always include the city of publication and publisher, and for journal articles the volume and part number. For example:

Alford, R. (1975) Health Care Politics. Chicago: University of Chicago Press.

Biller, R. (1976) On tolerating policy and organizational termination: some design considerations, Policy Sciences, 7, 2, 133-149.

Campbell, D. (1971) Reforms as experiments. In F. Caro (ed.), Readings in Evaluation Research. New York: Russell Sage.

May, J. and A. Wildavsky (eds.) (1978) The Policy Cycle. Beverly Hills: Sage.

SUBMISSION

Please submit the original manuscript plus three copies to: Professor Richard Rose, Journal of Public Policy, Centre for the Study of Public Policy, University of Strathclyde, Livingstone Tower, Glasgow, G1 1XH, Scotland.

COPY-EDITING AND PROOF-READING

The editor and publishers reserve the right to copy-edit and proof-read all items accepted for publication. Authors will review their copy-edited manuscripts only if substantial changes have been made. Manuscripts which do not conform to the requirements about style and format may be returned for retyping.

Page proofs of articles will be sent to authors for correction of typographical errors only. Authors must notify the editorial office of any corrections within one week of receipt or approval will be assumed.

Submission of an article or other item implies that it has not been published or accepted for publication elsewhere. Authors are responsible for obtaining written permission to publish material for which they do not own the copyright. Contributors of material accepted for publication will be asked to assign their copyrights to Cambridge University Press.

Fifty offprints will be supplied without charge to the (first) author of each article. Additional copies may be purchased if ordered at proof stage.
