A MAJOR INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL

Child Language Teaching and Therapy

Editor David Crystal

- The only journal whose primary aim is to help those who have the task of teaching language-handicapped children.
- The journal's emphasis is a practical approach to problems of teaching handicapped children.
- It is the only journal in the field which aims to be explanatory in its approach to research developments.
- It is the only journal which aims to be interactive, by fostering a dialogue with readers on the points of special concern or controversy.
- There is no better way of keeping up-to-date with the field of language assessment or remediation.

"Topics covered to date have been wide-ranging. . . Material is presented in an easily digestible form. . . CLTT is going to be an important resource for anyone who works or is interested in children's language difficulties." Times Higher Education Supplement.

First Language Acquisition

Method, Description, and Explanation

DAVID INGRAM

This major textbook, setting new standards of clarity and comprehensiveness, will be welcomed by all serious students of first language acquisition. It provides advanced undergraduate and graduate students alike with a cogent and closely analysed exposition of how children acquire language in real time. Much emphasis is placed on methodology and explanation, along with discussion of various research methods, as well as the descriptive facts currently available on first language acquisition.

Bilingualism Across the Lifespan

Aspects of Acquisition, Maturity and Loss

Edited by KENNETH HYLSTENSTAM and LORAIN K. OBLER

An examination of the dynamics of bilingual language processing over time, from the perspectives of neurolinguistics, psycholinguistics and sociolinguistics. This multidisciplinary approach is fundamental to an understanding of how the bilingual's two (or more) language systems interact with each other and with other cognitive systems – a central theme of the book.

Vision and the Emergence of Meaning

Blind and Sighted Children's Early Language

ANNE DUNLEA

What is the relationship between language and conceptual development? Anne Dunlea considers this complex issue through a detailed analysis of the early language group of blind, partially sighted and fully sighted children who participated in a pioneering longitudinal study at the University of Southern California.

Breaking new ground in linguistics...

Language Variation and Change

A new journal from Cambridge University Press

Over the past 20 years the study of linguistic variation in both speech and writing has become a major branch of linguistics. Language Variation and Change is the only journal dedicated exclusively to this significant and developing area. It will focus on:

- linguistic structure
- mother-tongue or language-of-choice as an index of social relationships and structure
  - language policy and planning
  - ethnography of speaking
- study of speech acts and conversational roles

The journal will publish original research reports based on the data of linguistic production, both oral and written, using historical and contemporary sources.

NOTES FOR CONTRIBUTORS

Papers, notes and reviews should be sent to Dr K. Perera, Department of Linguistics, University of Manchester, Manchester, M13 9PL, UK. They should normally be written in English. Major articles should not exceed twenty printed pages.

Three copies of the typescript should be submitted, and of any revisions or resubmissions. Contributions should be clearly typed with double spacing, on one side of the paper only, using a conventional size of paper, preferably A4 (or 21.6 by 28 cm). Authors should hold one copy for correction of proofs. Footnotes should not be used unless absolutely necessary, and should be listed on a separate sheet (double-spaced) at the end of the article. Tables and figures should be drawn on separate pages at the end of the article. Each table/figure should have a title, and there should be an indication in the body of the text as to placement. Tables and figures should each be numbered independently of examples of utterances. A separate title-page should include the title, author's name and affiliation, together with an asterisked footnote which should include acknowledgements and an address for correspondence. Titles should be so worded that part may be used as a running headline (with a maximum length of 40 characters, including spaces). An abstract of the article, giving aims, general method, and principal conclusions, should be typed on a separate sheet (max. 120 words for articles and 60 words for notes).

Chronological age should be stated in years, months and (where needed) days as follows; 4;5.17. Cited forms should be underlined to represent italicization in print. Translational 'meanings' should be placed within single quotation marks. Emphasis or technical terms should be marked by the use of small capitals. Phonetic transcriptions should, wherever possible, employ the symbols and conventions of the IPA; they must never be used in footnotes, and should in no case be narrower than absolutely necessary for the purpose.

References are to be made in the text thus; (Neisser, 1967: 222). If the author's name is part of the text, the following form should be used; 'Piaget (1967: 131) investigates...'. When a work written by three or more authors is referred to, all names should be given in the first citation, with an ampersand linking the last two, e.g. (Fraser, Bellugi & Brown, 1963); in subsequent citations the first name only should be given, with 'et al.' added. A group of references within the text should be date-ordered.

All works referred to should be listed at the end of the article, double-spaced and in alphabetical order. The titles of journals should be given in full. Examples of references (note the use of punctuation marks) are:

Ferguson, C. A. & Slobin, D. I. (eds) (1973). Studies of child language development. New York: Holt, Rinehart & Winston.

With the exception of the title-page, book reviews should be submitted in the same form as articles. (Three copies should be sent.) The heading should be in the following form:

M. BOWERMAN, Early syntactic development: a cross-linguistic study with special reference to Finnish. Cambridge: C.U.P., 1973. Pp. xii + 302.
