CAPITALISTS IN SPITE OF THEMSELVES

Elite Conflict and European Transitions in Early Modern Europe
RICHARD LACHMANN

Comparing regions and cities within and across England, France, Italy, Spain, and the Netherlands from the 12th through 18th centuries, Lachmann shows how conflict among landlords, clerics, kings, and officeholders transformed the bases of their control over land and labor, forcing the winners of feudal conflicts to become "capitalists in spite of themselves" as they took defensive actions to protect their privileges from rivals.

THE WINDS OF CHANGE

Buddhism and the Maritime Links of Early South Asia
HIMANSHU P. RAY

This pioneering study challenges the conventional view about the importance of Roman and Arab seafarers to maritime trade in South Asia. Using archaeological, literary and ethnographic evidence, much of it previously unpublished, Ray argues that Buddhism provided the structure necessary for the remarkable upsurge in trade in the period 400 BC to AD 400.

THE FREE-STANDING COMPANY IN THE WORLD ECONOMY, 1830–1996

Edited by MIRA WILKINS and HARM SCHRÖTER

Distinct from classic multinationals, free-standing companies were those companies established in the late 19th and early 20th centuries to organize and manage operations for a European parent company. Leading international scholars here provide evidence and analysis of the operations of free-standing companies and draw comparisons with the "American model" multinational enterprise.

Banking and Business in the Roman World

Jean Andreau

This is the first book to present a synthetic view of Roman banking and financial life from the fourth century BC to the end of the third century AD. It describes the business deals of the elite and the professional bankers and the interventions of the state. It shows to what extent the spirit of profit and enterprise predominated over the traditional values of Rome, what economic role these financiers played, and how that role compares with that of their later counterparts.

The Road to Poverty

The Making of Wealth and Hardship in Appalachia

Dwight B. Billings and Kathleen Blee

How poverty develops and why it remains is the broader topic of this provocative, social historical analysis of poverty in a rural Appalachian county. Kathleen Blee and Dwight Billings examine the social dynamics of persistently poor rural communities through the history of Clay County, an especially poor section of the Eastern Kentucky mountains. The authors uncover the systemic problems and patterns of low income by tracing the socio-cultural, economic, and political development of the region from its earliest settlement and agricultural development, to the advent of the coal industry, to the present day.

European and Islamic Trade in the Early Ottoman State

The Merchants of Genoa and Turkey

Kate Fleet

By using untapped Latin and Turkish sources, and focusing on the trading partnership between the Genoese and the Turks, Kate Fleet demonstrates how this interaction contributed to the economic development of the early Ottoman state and to Ottoman territorial expansion. Where previous literature has emphasized the military prowess of the early Ottomans and their role as "the infidel," this book considers their economic aspirations and their integration into the economy of the Mediterranean basin.

Masters and Servants on the Cape Eastern Frontier

1760–1803

Susan Newton-King

Describing the volatile relationship between European settlers and the indigenous Khoisan peoples in eighteenth-century southern Africa, this book explores the underlying causes of this pervasive violence in the eastern Cape, and considers the fate of the many women and children captured by Boer commandos and then assimilated to the condition of captive labor. It also offers a detailed analysis of the frontier economy, linking it to the markets and merchants of Cape Town, and revealing its subservience to the commercial policies of the Dutch East India Company.

Unions in a Contrary World

The Future of the Australian Trade Union Movement

David Peetz

Australia once had extremely high levels of trade union participation yet since the 1970s the number of union members has been falling dramatically. This book gives the clearest picture yet of why people do or do not belong to unions and, in a sophisticated way, examines the reasons for union decline. Uniquely, it considers both macro and micro levels, looking at the structure of the economy and the labor market, the ideological dispositions people have toward unionism, the role of the state and the political and industrial strategies of unions.

Slavery and the Demographic and Economic History of Minas Gerais, Brazil 1720–1888

Laird W. Bergad

This book examines the demographic and economic history of slavery in Minas Gerais, the single largest slave-holding region in Brazil, from its settlement in the early eighteenth century until the abolition of Brazilian slavery in 1888. This slave population was remarkable in its ability to diversify economically as well as to increase through natural reproduction, rather than through importation via the trans-Atlantic slave trade.

The Rise of African Slavery in the Americas

David Eltis

Exploring the paradox of the concurrent development of slavery and freedom in the European domains, The Rise of African Slavery in the Americas provides a fresh interpretation of the development of the English Atlantic slave system. The book outlines a major African role in the evolution of the Atlantic societies before the nineteenth century and argues that the transatlantic slave trade was a result of African strength rather than African weakness.

Models as Mediators

Perspectives on Natural and Social Science

Mary Morgan and

Margaret Morrison, Editors

Models as Mediators discusses the ways in which models function in modern science, particularly in the fields of physics and economics. The editors provide a framework that covers the construction and function of scientific models, and explore the ways in which they enable us to learn about both theories and the world.

Phoenix Assurance and the Development of British Insurance

Volume 2: The Era of the Insurance Giants, 1870–1984

Clive Trebilcock

This is the story of the expansion, trials, triumphs and demise of one of Britain's oldest and most important insurance offices. The records of the Phoenix are unusually rich. This, therefore, is more than the history of a single business. The insurance industry touches many aspects of modern life and the two have grown more complex together. Through the windows of the Phoenix the development of the entire modern insurance business can be studied and, at the same time, many aspects of social and commercial life in twentieth-century Britain are thrown into prominence.

Merchants, Companies and Trade

Europe and Asia in the Early Modern Era

Sushil Chaudhury and

Michel Morineau, Editors

The main objective of this book is to dispel some of the conventionally-held views surrounding trade between Europe and Asia in the sixteenth and eighteenth centuries. For instance, through a comparative and comprehensive study of merchant communities, markets and commodities, the individual authors demonstrate that Asian merchants were in no way inferior to Europeans in terms of their commercial operations and business acumen. The book as a whole attempts to view trade between Europe and Asia in its totality and emphasizes similarities rather than differences in the two regions.

Central and Eastern Europe 1944–1993

Detour from the Periphery to the Periphery

Ivan T. Berend

Ivan Berend uses a vast range of sources, as well as his own personal experience, to analyze the fortunes of the postwar socialist regimes in Eastern Europe. His comparative approach stretches beyond the confines of economic history to produce a work of political economy, encompassing the cultural and personal forces that have influenced the development of the "Eastern Bloc" countries over the past fifty years.
