Publication Policy

The American Bar Foundation (ABF) is an independent research institute committed to sociolegal research. Consistent with its mandate to create and disseminate knowledge about law, the legal profession, and legal institutions, and individuals' interactions with legal systems, Law & Social Inquiry: Journal of the American Bar Foundation invites the submission of manuscripts that make original contributions to the understanding of sociolegal processes. Law & Social Inquiry publishes both empirical analyses and theoretical studies from a variety of disciplinary perspectives. The analyses, conclusions, and opinions presented in Law & Social Inquiry are those of the authors alone.

Manuscript Evaluation: Law & Social Inquiry is a refereed journal. Manuscripts that the Editors deem appropriate for the journal are evaluated by two or more reviewers with expertise in the relevant subject matter and methodology. Manuscripts produced by ABF research fellows are evaluated by the same process as outside manuscripts and are not accorded priority in publication.

Submission of Manuscripts: Law & Social Inquiry uses the author/date citation system, as described in The Chicago Manual of Style, 14th Edition. You may obtain our style guidelines via surface mail by writing to us at: Editorial Coordinator, Law & Social Inquiry, American Bar Foundation, 750 N. Lake Shore Drive, Chicago, Illinois 60611; or from our Web site at: <http://www.journals.uchicago.edu/LSI/>. Manuscripts submitted to Law & Social Inquiry should be typed double-spaced and be accompanied by an abstract of not more than 150 words. The review process is anonymous; all identifying information should appear only on a separate cover sheet and not in the body of the manuscript.

Law & Social Inquiry does not accept multiply submitted articles. The Editors endeavor to make decisions promptly, usually about three months after submission.

Editing of Manuscripts: All manuscripts accepted for publication are edited for style by professional copy editors in consultation with the author. Copy editors do not check citations. Authors see edited manuscripts and/or proofs.

Off-Prints to Authors: Without charge, we offer authors a choice of 25 off-prints, 10 free copies of the journal in which their contribution appears or a complimentary 1 year subscription. Authors automatically receive 1 copy of the issue in which their contributions appear; additional off-prints may be ordered at the author's expense.

Republication Rights: The Foundation normally permits authors to republish their manuscripts in books or use their manuscripts after publication, but Law & Social Inquiry has the right to first publication of edited manuscripts. The journal retains the right to republish manuscripts as reprints or as part of any reproduction of the issue or volume in which they appear, by any means, including without limit electronic means or microfilm.

Copying Beyond Fair Use: The code on the first page of a contribution in this journal indicates the copyright owner's consent that copies of the contribution may be made beyond those permitted by Sections 107 or 108 of the U.S. Copyright Law provided that copies are made only for personal or internal use, or for the personal or internal use of specific clients and provided that the copier pay the stated per-copy fee through the Copyright Clearance Center, Inc., 222 Rosewood Drive, Danvers, MA 01923. To request permission for other kinds of copying, such as copying for classroom use without charge, copying for general distribution, for advertising or promotional purposes, for creating new collective works, or for resale, kindly write to the Permissions Department, University of Chicago Press, 1427 S. 60th Street, Chicago, IL 60637-2954.

Law & Social Inquiry 2006 Graduate Student Paper Competition

The editors of Law & Social Inquiry are pleased to announce a competition for the best journal-length paper in the field of socio-legal studies written by a graduate student. We invite direct submissions from graduate students and/or nominations of student work from faculty. (Faculty nominations should be accompanied by the paper in question, and should provide a short description of the nominated paper and its significance, and contact details for the student.) The winning paper will be published in Law & Social Inquiry and the authors will receive a cash prize of $500. Submissions will be judged by the editors, and the winning submission will be internally reviewed for publication. The author must be a graduate student or law student at the time of submission. Entries should be received by March 1, 2006. The winner will be selected by May 1.

Law & Social Inquiry publishes both empirical and theoretical studies of socio-legal processes from a variety of disciplinary perspectives.

Please send your best work in Word or WordPerfect to: lsi-abf@abfn.org. Please indicate in your cover letter that your intention is to be considered for the prize competition and confirm your graduate studies status. Please also indicate that this paper is a sole submission to Law & Social Inquiry, meaning that you have not submitted it to other journals. Submission is limited to one paper per student.

Papers should be double-spaced in Times New Roman 12 font with 1.5 margins on all sides, be 40–60 pages in length, and should include a 100–150 word abstract. For initial submission, it is preferred, though not necessary, that the author use footnotes rather than endnotes. If the winning paper is submitted in law review format, the student will be given time to alter the paper to social sciences format.

For further information send an e-mail to lsi-abf@abfn.org, or call (312) 988-6517.
