ANNOUNCEMENTS

Two Academic Programs in Law and Philosophy at the University of Western Ontario. (1) There is a Special Ph.D. Program in Legal Philosophy. This program gives up to four semester courses credits towards the Ph.D. degree for having taken first year law at an accredited law school (antecedent to entering or during the program). Enrollment in the Ph.D. philosophy and law program is undertaken after the completion of an M.A. and with admission to Philosophy through the Graduate Faculty UWO. (2) There is an LL.B./M.A. program. In this program law students at the University of Western Ontario may receive credit towards the LL.B. degree by taking certain philosophy courses (up to four semester courses). Enrollment in the LL.B./M.A.program is undertaken at the end of the first year of LL.B. studies; a special M.A. year in philosophy is taken after completing the LL.B. degree. Graduate students in philosophy are eligible for various forms of financial support, to a maximum of $12,000. Application for the Ph.D. program should be made to the Director of Graduate Studies, Department of Philosophy, University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario, Canada N6A 3K7.

This journal is planning two special topic issues to appear in 1990 and 1991. One will be on Wittgenstein and Legal Theory under the guest editorship of Dennis M. Patterson; the other will be on Collective Rights under the guest editorship of Michael McDonald. Authors with interest in these topics are invited to write to Richard Bronaugh, at the Department of Philosophy, UWO or Peter Barton, at the Faculty of Law, UWO, London, Ontario, Canada N6A 3K7. The editors and guest editors of The Canadian Journal of Law and Jurisprudence are interested in completed essays or in expressions of willingness to submit work on these topics. Tentative deadlines are March 1990 for the Wittgenstein issue and August 1990 for the Collective Rights issue.

The Canadian Journal of Law and Jurisprudence offers an annual prize of $750 to a fulltime student who publishes in the journal. The writing qualifies if submitted while a student, or within six months of having been a student.
