The Archaeology of Human Origins

Papers by Glynn Isaac

Glynn Llewelyn Isaac

Barbara Isaac, Editor

As the only surviving collection of Glynn Isaac's papers, this volume illustrates his outstanding work in East Africa on the earliest records of the human species. It consists of eighteen papers on the archaeology of the Old Stone Age in Kenya and Tanzania with data drawn from two of the most important paleolithic sites in the world, Olorgesailie and Koobi Fora, which became the basis for Isaac's explanation of the evolution of hominid adaptations and human behavior.
