Studia Linguistica

A Journal of General Linguistics

Edited by Christer Platzack and Jan-Olof Svantesson

Studia Linguistica provides an international forum for the discussion of theoretical linguistic research, primarily within the fields of grammar, cognitive sentences and language typology. The principal aim is to open a channel of communication between researchers operating in traditionally diverse fields while continuing to focus on natural language data. It fosters a wider exchange by the inclusion of high quality feature articles, reviews of the most important new titles in the field, survey papers and thought-provoking comment pieces.
