THE SUNDAY SERMONS OF THE GREAT FATHERS

Volume One

M. F. TOAL

Here are the sermons, Sunday by Sunday, together with the greater festivals, and for all the year, of Ambrose and Augustine, of Chrysostom and Gregory Nazianzen, of Leo the Great and Gregory the Great, of Jerome and Basil and of the great Cyril of Alexandria, as well as those of Origen and the later Bede, and of many others also great but lesser in fame and authority. This book is therefore a rich mine of material for the preaching and explanation of the Gospel, all drawn from the most authentic sources. It is unrivalled in its authority and comprehensiveness, providing now in the English tongue the treasury of Gospel preaching as used in the great Homiliaries throughout the ages from the days of the Fathers; it comprises four volumes, corresponding with the four liturgical divisions of the year. The first volume, originally published with the title Patristic Homilies on the Gospels, is now reissued in this smaller and handier pocket format.

THE SACRIFICE OF PRAISE

VILMA G. LITTLE

Today a growing number of people participate in the Church's official daily prayer; they use the psalms, the readings and sentences from scripture and the collects, sequences and hymns, which make up the Divine Office. The author initiates the newcomer into the meaning of the Office, at the same time providing minute directions for its day to day use. She explains the structure of the Office with short references to its historical growth out of the Jewish temple liturgy and the prayers of Christians during the early centuries.
