European Environmental Case Law

Edited by Wybe Th. Douma

European Environmental Case Law is a collection of the most important cases decided upon by the Court of Justice and the Court of First Instance of the European Communities that deal with the protection of the environment. The cases demonstrate how European environmental legislation, laid down in the EC Treaty and in hundreds of directives and regulations, is interpreted and explained by the Luxembourg judiciary and how it relates to national law.

The book provides the full texts (in English) of the cases as decided by the Court of Justice and the Court of First Instance. The selected cases cover both institutional and substantive issues. It deals with a wide variety of topics ranging from Danish bottles and Danish bees, Walloon waste, French nuclear tests, Dutch dykes (Kraaijeveldt), Greek waste dump sites, German motorways, Italian taxes, Swedish additives (Kortas), British bathing water (Blackpool) to French GM Maize. The cases show inter alia how the Luxembourg judges have had to strike a balance between free movement of goods and protection of the environment, and the way in which they have dealt with issues which have been left unclear by EC legislation, such as the definition of waste and its transportation across borders, the right to environmental information, the classification of special protection areas, the protection of birds and environmental impact assessment.

Wybe Th. Douma (1965) is a senior research fellow in European Law / International Trade Law at the T.M.C. Asser Institute in The Hague, and is the editor of the European Environmental Law website (<http://www.eel.nl>) and of several environmental journals and loose-leaf publications. He specialises in European and international environmental law and has lectured and published widely in these fields.
