

REDISCOVERING THE BRITISH EMPIRE

edited by Barry J. Ward

The importance of studying Britain's past has never been in serious dispute.

What has been in play, however, is just how to go about this study, especially when considering Britain's worldwide imperial system. This volume is an effort to begin reconciling three perspectives: first, the imperialistic viewpoint that the British transformed the world into their own image; second, the revisionist approach that characterizes the history of the British Empire as essentially one of collaboration and interaction between the British and those they colonized; and, third, postcolonial criticism that focuses on opposition to imperialism and Western values. The essays in this book carry the reader into lively debates based on rigorous historical inquiry. They will be read with interest by those concerned not merely with the history of the British Empire but with the legacy of European imperialism.

BLOOD, TOIL, TEARS AND SWEAT."

Series 1: Speeches of Resonance and Power

The first series in the incomparable Sir Winston Churchill Papers presents the notes, drafts, typescripts, printed copy and press cuttings for thousands of speeches written and delivered between 1897 and 1959 by the pre-eminent personality of the 20th century.

From notes for an address to the Primrose League to his inspirational oratory of World War II to speeches delivered during the post-war recovery, this much-anticipated collection reveals as never before the full range of Churchill's political views. The survival of Churchill's full notes has created an unparalleled record of his speeches, and the handwritten changes to his already revised final texts demonstrate the meticulous care he devoted to their composition.

Subjects covered by Churchill's speeches, some of which have never been previously published, comprise the full range of domestic and international issues: education, free trade, foreign policy (including relations with India, Ireland, the Middle East, the United States and the Soviet Union), nuclear weapons, disarmament and much more.
