

APPOINTMENTS AND STAFF CHANGES

Herbert E. Alexander, formerly of the United States Chamber of Commerce research staff in Washington, has been appointed an instructor in the department of politics at Princeton University.

Luther Allen has been promoted to the rank of assistant professor of government at the University of Massachusetts. During the summer of 1956, he did research at the Institut d'Etudes Politiques in Paris. In addition to his duties at the University of Massachusetts, he will be teaching European government at Amherst College in the spring semester, 1957.

Robert P. Bolan, former budget officer of the state of Rhode Island, is now serving as assistant director of the bureau of government research, University of Massachusetts.

Henry C. Bush, formerly of Hunter College, has been appointed assistant professor of political science at Wayne State University.

J. Leo Cefkin, formerly lecturer at Hofstra College, has been appointed assistant professor of government in the department of history and government at Colorado A and M College, Fort Collins, Colorado.

Donald Clark, former director of the budget of the state of Indiana, has been appointed as lecturer in government and special assistant to the vice president at Indiana University.

Harlan Cleveland has been appointed dean of the Maxwell School of Citizenship and Public Affairs at Syracuse University.

Dean R. Cresap has been promoted to the rank of professor at San Jose State College. As a member of the City Council of Palo Alto, he attended the recent meeting of the League of California Municipalities.

Howard E. Dean has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of political science and has resumed his duties at the University of Oregon after a sabbatical year at the Harvard Law School as a Fellow of the Fund for the Advancement of Education.

Sebastian de Grazia returned in January from Europe where he was on a mission for the Department of the Army and most recently director of Metron, a firm of consultants in international social science research, to become lecturer in the department of politics, Princeton University.

Alfred Diamant has returned to the University of Florida after a year's leave of absence made possible by a Danforth Foundation teacher study grant. Upon his return, he was promoted to the rank of associate professor.

James R. Donoghue was promoted to professor of political science, University of Wisconsin.

Martin Dubin has been appointed lecturer in government at Indiana University's Calumet-East Chicago Center.

Frederick C. Engelmann has been promoted to associate professor at Alfred University.

John L. Fletcher was appointed assistant dean of the Boston University Graduate School and assumed his duties on September 1, 1956.

Edwin J. Forsythe, formerly of the University of Detroit, has become an instructor in the department of political science at Wayne State University.

Paul Fowler has been appointed instructor in government at Indiana University's Jeffersonville Center.

Stanley H. Friedelbaum, Rutgers University, has been promoted to assistant research specialist in the bureau of government research.

Louis L. Friedland has been promoted to the rank of professor of political science at Wayne State University.

George Goodwin, Jr., has been promoted to the rank of associate professor of government at the University of Massachusetts. During the summer of 1956, he engaged in research for the Massachusetts Commission on State-Local Relations.

George L. Grassmuck, of the American University of Beirut, Lebanon, has been appointed assistant professor of political science at the University of Michigan, effective in September, 1957.

Joseph Hampton, formerly of Rutgers University, has accepted an appointment as an instructor in government at the University of Massachusetts.

John S. Harris, formerly of the faculty of Wayne State University, has accepted an appointment as professor of government at the University of Massachusetts.

William C. Havard, upon his return to the University of Florida after a year's leave of absence spent at the London School of Economics under a grant from the Southern Fellowships Fund, was promoted to the rank of associate professor.

Edward J. Heubel, formerly of Reed College, has become an instructor in the department of political science at Wayne State University.

Dunning Idle is now professor of political science and acting head of the department of political science at Western College for Women, Oxford, Ohio. Previously Dr. Idle was a research director (social science analyst) for the D/Army, Office of the Chief of Psychological Warfare, at the Pentagon.

Franklin A. Johnson, formerly professor of government at Rollins College and state director of the Florida Citizenship Clearing House, has become president of Jacksonville University. The inauguration was Feb. 15th.

Eugene W. Jones has been appointed chairman of the division of social sciences of Wayland Baptist College with permanent status.

Earle H. Ketcham has been appointed chairman of the department of political science at the Maxwell School, Syracuse University.

Alvin Knepper, assistant professor of political science, has become head of the political science section at the Pennsylvania Military College.

Ernest D. Lehman, who is completing his work for the doctorate in political science at the University of Chicago, has been appointed instructor in government at Valparaiso University and will assume his duties in September, 1957.

IN MEMORIAM

Word has been received of the recent death of Oliver E. Norton of Washington University. Professor Norton got his Ph.D. at Stanford University. He taught at the College of the Pacific, 1921-1924; at Stanford University, 1924-1927; and joined the political science department at Washington University in 1927. In 1944, he was a member of the St. Louis Committee for Revision of the Missouri Constitution. He was a veteran of World War I, and during World War II gave a regular daily news broadcast over one of the St. Louis radio stations. His teaching was primarily in the field of political theory.

Rev. Moorhouse I. X. Millar, professor emeritus of political philosophy at Fordham University, died on November 14, 1956. He was seventy years of age. Before joining the Society of Jesus, Fr. Millar studied in France and Germany, and at Loyola College, Baltimore. As a Jesuit, he taught at Holy Cross, Canisius, and Georgetown; then joined the Fordham faculty in 1923. Here he established the political philosophy department, and headed it until three years before his death. Fr. Millar's written works included Unpopular Essays, The State and the Church (in collaboration with the late Msgr. John A. Ryan), and numerous periodical articles for Catholic World, Modern Schoolman, Studies, and Thought. His dominant interest was scholastic political theory and its links with early American thought.