Coming in tdr next issue: THEATRE IN ASIA

Folk and popular/proletarian theatre in Indonesia, Japan, Burma, India, Pakistan, and the Philippines. Articles on theatre and national identity; costume, makeup, puppets, masks, scripts, music, gesture; economics and politics of theatre in Asia; the impact of the West. Interviews with puppeteers, musicians, performers. Edited by A. J. Gunawardana.

Later:

ENACT

ENACT may be unique—being the only Indian theatre mag (monthly).

But it has proved worthwhile to practitioners-patrons of Indian theatre (16 languages) and—gratifyingly—to some abroad who 'find it useful in theatre history classes' etc.

Scripts like Mario Fratti's Che Guevara—one of 6 a year—are the exception to the rule of publishing original Indian playwrights in translation or otherwise.

Play reviews are impartial but taken to be controversial. Book reviews are correspondingly informative . . .

Subscription $5; £2 yearly. Back issues in handsomely bound set of 3 volumes (1967, 68, 69) for $25 £8.

"I think this play, about a young soldier in Vietnam, may very well speak for a generation. It really must be seen!"

- Clive Barnes, N.Y. Times

"Summertree," the play that won author Ron Cowen a Pulitzer Prize nomination for playwriting, as well as the general acclaim of the critics for an unbelievable "first play"... is now available as a single attraction or as part of a four-play "package." This rare combination of the right play, at the right time, by a brilliant new, young playwright will not happen again for another generation... For further details write, or call (collect)
