

THE CHALLENGE OF PAIN

PAIN has always challenged the Christian. The Church has taught unequivocally that suffering can draw the sufferer closer to God and in theory it is easy to see why. But in practice . . . ? The author of Communion Through Pain is essentially practical. She has had a whole lifetime of physical suffering to discover how difficult the Christian acceptance is and in this book, simply and without self-pity, she gives her own recipe. Anyone who has to suffer pain will welcome this first-hand account.

FATHER FABER

A re-issue of the book by the founder of the London Oratory. Ronald Chapman in his preface calls it Father Faber's 'attempt to teach "the middle class of the spiritual life" how to respond to its vision of God—how in a practical humdrum way to answer love by love'. 18s

Meditations on the Love of God

J. N. GROU, S.J.

'In times which cry aloud for the ever-increasing production of a spiritual life altogether different in kind from what the world can either reproduce or understand it is refreshing and bracing in a rare degree to make intimate acquaintance with a spirituality such as that of Père Grou.'—Von Hügel 12s 6d
